TANKS DRIVE ON NAZIS' LAST MAIN BELGIAN ROAD

Rundstedt Shuttles Troops to Meet New Threat.

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP). — American doughboys and tanks drove thru a paralyzing blizzard today to within four miles of the Germans' last main supply and escape highway in the Belgian salient. Tonight Field Marshal Von Rundstedt was reported hurriedly shuttling German armored forces from the Bastogne area to meet the threat to his lifeline.

As the allies in Belgium pinched Von Rundstedt's salient to a width of nine miles between the areas of La Roche and Herbaimant, the Germans increased their pressure in Alsace and shelled Strasbourg with heavy artillery from the east bank of the Rhine.

Should the Yank drive from the northern waist of the Belgian bulge sever the Houffalize-St. Vith highway, all German forces in the western half of the salient would be placed in a precarious position.

A field dispatch said "the next 12 to 24 hours may provide the turning point in the great battle that began on Dec. 16."

Drifts 4 and 5 Feet High.

The American forces threatening the enemy's only lateral highway out of the potential trap were pushing thru snowdrifts four and five feet high south of the captured villages of Provendoux and Ottre. Their drive, if unchecked by Nazi reinforcements, would cut the vital road at a point about five miles northeast of Houffalize, the Germans' principal base inside the salient.

An American staff officer warned against describing the Nazis' situation as "hopeless," citing that Von Rundstedt already has moved some of his tanks and infantry out of the western half of the salient and that he still would have usable minor roads to the east.

Ten miles west of the American thrust toward the vital highway the famed "hell on wheels" 2d armored division engaged in a furious armored battle for the crossroads hamlet of Samree, three miles northeast of La Roche. The decision was reported still in the balance tonight.

Germans Need Road Hub.

Samree was needed by the Germans in extricating their forces from that sector of the shrinking salient. They threw many tanks into the swirling fight, including numerous captured American Shermans. Samree's stone buildings were hammered to bits by American tanks and eight inch artillery, which closed in from three sides.

Capture of the hamlet would give the allies control of the La Roche-St. Vith trunk highway for some 20 air line miles all the way to Vielsalm.

Ceille, only a mile north of La Roche, was captured by elements of the 2d armored division in advances up to two miles on the east side of the Ourthe river.

British forces hammering in on the western nose of the salient met weak opposition for the second day, the Germans withdrawing nearly a mile south of the Hotton-Marche sector. British infantry took the village of Cheoux, five miles east of Marche, and cleared the entire Nolaumont forest near-by.

British Capture High Ground.

With British capture of high ground northeast of Grimbiemont, midway between Marche and La Roche, German armor began quitting the area.

Other towns and villages along the northern flank of the salient which fell to the Americans and

MONTGOMERY'S JOB TEMPORARY, BRADLEY SAYS

WITH THE 12TH ARMY GROUP, Jan. 9 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Bradley, breaking his silence regarding the German counter-offensive which was aimed at splitting the allied line in his 12th army group sector, said today that the now-thwarted enemy move "may materially affect the Germans' ability to resist."

Bradley, who was awarded the bronze star by Gen. Eisenhower today for his prompt part in halting the Germans, stated at a press conference that Germany's ability to prolong the war may have been reduced, but added quickly that this did not mean the allies could "assume the Germans are on the verge of collapse."

Bradley gave the full credit for stopping the Germans to the United States 1st, 3d and 9th armies.

Montgomery's Job Temporary.

The shift of part of the United States 1st army and all the United States 9th army on the northern flank of the German penetration to the command of Field Marshal Montgomery is temporary, Bradley emphasized, and those American forces will be returned to the 12th army group as soon as the enemy salient is eliminated and communications are reestablished.

Prime Minister Churchill, in a message which he asked Gen. Eisenhower to deliver to Bradley, said "I congratulate you wholeheartedly upon the signal mark of merit [the bronze star] which has been conferred upon you by the supreme commander in chief.

"It seems to embody the feelings that we Britons all have about your part in this great battle in which United States troops have won such high renown and above all upon the epic of Bastogne. We are proud to serve in loyal comradeship with your soldiers and to march with them to final victory."

Attack the Result of Pressure.

Gen. Bradley's statement on the German offensive said: "The German attack was the direct result of pressure exerted by the 9th, 1st, and 3d American armies—and the forces of the 6th army group [American 7th and French 1st armies] against the weakening German defense line.

"It was necessary that the Germans launch some diversionary attack in sufficient strength to cause the allies temporarily to stop their offensives against vital German areas and to try to gain time.

"The buildup of German forces had been observed in the Ardennes area for some weeks before the attack, and the possibility of a German attack thru the Ardennes was thoroly studied by me and my staff.

"In leaving the Ardennes line lightly held we took what is known in military terminology as a 'calculated risk,' to strengthen our northern and southern drives. In other words, instead of employing our surplus divisions in the then

THE OFFICIAL BELT TIGHTENER

Post-War B-29 Spans Nation in Six Hours

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—A double decked transport version of the B-29 Super Fortress, known as the army's C-97, apparently set a cross-continent speed record of approximately six hours today.

The time on this flight from Seattle, Wash., to Washington compares with the record of 6 hours, 31 minutes, and 30 seconds set by a Mustang fighter flying from Los Angeles, Cal., to New York last spring.

The flight of the enormous Boeing-built plane, which in a commercial post-war model will be known as the strato-cruiser, compared also with a time of six hours and 58 minutes made by the Lockheed Constellation last May from Los Angeles to Washington.

The C-97 is the first bomber converted to a transport which fits into postwar plans while meeting military needs.

The C-97 has a B-29 fuselage, minus the armor, armament, bomb bays, and other military equipment, with a second fuselage super-imposed on the first.

It has been described rather fully in its post-war version, which will use engines of more than 3,000 horsepower each and carry 100 day time passengers.

Secrecy Forbids Details.

The big transport left Seattle some time before noon, Pacific war time [before 2 p. m., Chicago time] and landed at Washington National airport about 7:40 p. m. [Chicago time].

Military officials declined to give any information and Boeing officials said they also were forbidden to discuss the flight or performance of the B-29 conversion inasmuch as it was an army plane.

The C-97 has been undergoing a service test on the west coast since November and reports of its performance have been extremely gratifying.

MAJ. BONG, TOP ACE, REVEALS HE'S THRU SHOOTING DOWN JAPS

Maj. Richard I. Bong, Poplar, Wis., farm boy, who is America's top war ace, with 40 Japanese planes to his credit, told reporters at Chicago airport last night that he is home for permanent reassignment in the United States and that he doesn't expect to add another plane to his record.

This was the first disclosure that he would not return to combat.

"Why do you think I'm getting married?" he asked. "I wouldn't get married if I were going back to fight Japs."

The boyish looking, soft spoken major declined to say what his next assignment will be, but said his bride to be, Marjorie Vattendahl of Superior Wis., whom he will marry Feb. 10, will go with him.

Maj. Bong arrived from Washington at 5:45 p. m. He was guest of Lt. Col. Walter M. Dunham, commanding officer of the "Winged Victory" army air forces stage show company, at a performance here last night. The flyer expects to be here until Saturday, when he will make a radio appearance.

Maj. Bong was reminded that Maj. Thomas McGuire has a record of 38 planes in the South Pacific and is pressing Bong for ace honors.

"He's a fine fellow," Bong said. "I served with him. I wish him luck and hope he breaks my record tomorrow, if he hasn't already."

PATRICIA DIES IN SLEEP, WITH PARENTS NEAR

Patricia Attaway, 6, whose battle for life against a dread blood disease, lymphatic leukemia, attracted nation-wide attention when her father, Chief Petty Officer Floyd M. Attaway, was flown back from the South Pacific to be at her side, died at 7:10 p. m. yesterday in St. Charles hospital, Aurora.

Death came while the child was sleeping. Both her father and her mother, Mrs. Florence Nokuti, were at her bedside. She was stricken with the disease three months ago, and entered the hospital early in November.

Attaway's leave from the navy expires today. Yesterday, before Patricia died, Aurora's mayor and city council telegraphed a request to his commanding officer at Camp Endicott, R. I., for an extension.

Tribune Man Sees Air Fight from Cruiser

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 7TH FLEET EN ROUTE TO LUZON, P. I., Jan. 8 [Delayed].—You leave the beach and go aboard a cruiser feeling alone and naked, defenseless against the beastly Japanese and their planes and guns and bayonets.

But once aboard the convoy, and you awake in the morning with ships stretching to the horizon on all sides, you feel better. And when the first Jap planes come over and our planes tangle with them, your confidence grows until you feel everything is all right.

Plane chases plane. Off the starboard, off the port, abaft, in one part of the sky after another, planes break into flame or smoke or, without any evidence of mortal damage, plunge nose first into the sea. There is a splash, and that is all.

It's a Game for Keeps.

When a Jap plane breaks thru the screen, every ship in the flotilla opens up. The sky is a mass of angry black welts, thru which are interwoven the golden lines of tracers floating upward.

It's thrilling. And it's awful. You don't just watch those planes. You feel them. This is a game for keeps, and there are only two stakes—life and death.

When a Jap dies, you cheer. You can't help yourself. When an American dies, you are sick all over.

You marvel at the brains that created the thousands of gadgets which make the ship run. You wonder if they all work.

You Find They Work.

When, in the blackness of the night, the ships bring down a Jap snooper plane five miles away, you know they work, and you're glad you're an American, with American ingenuity on your side—not a bunch of brutal, imitative monkeys.

Virtually every soldier in this mightiest of Pacific flotillas feels that way, no matter whether he be on tiny LCIs or large transports. Those on large ships find comfort in their largeness. Those on the small craft find comfort in the smallness, telling each other any Jap attack will be concentrated on the big ships.

Ever since we first stepped on the white rubber mats of this cruiser's gangway, we've been getting cockier. Sitting down at the first meal of good navy food served on white linen is a miraculous remedy for your worries. Ice water, glistening showers, beds with mattresses and sheets—the luxuries convince you all's well.

And the nation which can provide such luxuries will also make certain you have all the essentials of war.

YANKS SMASH INLAND ALONG 15 MILES OF LINGAYEN COAST WITH LIGHT LOSS

General at Rail of Warship as Bomb Drops Near-by.

BY YATES McDANIEL.

WITH GEN. MacARTHUR ON LUZON, Jan. 9 (AP).—He left Luzon furtively in the dead of night aboard a small torpedo boat.

He returned today proudly and jubilantly, standing at the rail of an American warship in broad daylight.

Gen. MacArthur never missed a puff of his corncob pipe as a Japanese bomb dropped between his ship and a near-by destroyer.

A few minutes later he watched a Japanese raiding plane hover for a moment directly overhead, then make tracks in a shell pocked sky.

Witnesses Full Battle.

From the deck MacArthur witnessed the full savagery and vindictiveness of an enemy's desperate but futile efforts to prevent his return to Bataan.

Our convoy never deviated from its course in spite of attacks by submarines, planes that were recklessly hurled at our ships, destroyers which attempted to cut across our path.

"Man battle stations to repel submarine attacks," blared the loud speakers, and a torpedo cut thru the water. MacArthur barely paused in his measured pacing of the deck as a near-by destroyer brought the midget sub to the surface with charges, and then finished off the raider by a head-on ramming.

Sees a Bomber Crash.

Early the following morning MacArthur saw and heard the guns of eight warships concentrate on a bomber which sank a scarce 100 yards away. One wing was blown off by a five inch shell burst; the plane spun around like a top and crashed into the sea.

As our force was steaming north on the Luzon coast that night, three Japanese destroyers made a dash from Manila bay. One of our picket destroyers went after them, sinking two and forcing the third to flee thru the night, before they had a chance to attack our ships.

Yesterday morning MacArthur was again at his railing when more raiders came over. This time they concentrated their attention on one of the 7th fleet's jeep carriers.

Walks to Command Post.

As our warships approached Lingayen gulf early this morning, MacArthur again witnessed the abandoned remnants of Japanese air power.

Just before he left his warship and made shore in a small landing craft, another single enemy plane plunged thru a hail of warship gunfire.

The troops were still on the alert on the beach when MacArthur waded ashore, but the general started right off in a jeep to find the nearest divisional command post. When the jeep broke down, the general took off across the sand dunes on foot, and in a few minutes was firing questions and nodding his head with satisfaction as the divisional commander reported the progress made.

Retraces His Route.

MacArthur had every reason to be satisfied with the success of his bold landing assault on the shores of Luzon. One hundred twenty-two airline miles south is Manila, prime goal of the Philippines liberation campaign.

Returning to Luzon, to guide the fulfilment of the dream which he steadfastly believed could and should be made true, MacArthur retraced much the same route by which he left Luzon as the first drama of the Philippines was moving inexorably toward its final tragic act on Corregidor.

Once the great American armada began disembarking troops and guns at Lingayen this morning, Japan's Luzon force was as powerless to prevent the American landing as was MacArthur's virtually isolated force to block the Japanese onslaught at the same place Dec. 22, 1941.

'WE ARE NOW AT THE JAPS' REAR; BACK DOOR SHUT'

MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Jan. 10. [Wednesday] (AP).—Gen. MacArthur's bulletin covering the invasion of Luzon said:

"Philippines: Luzon: Our forces have landed in Luzon. In a far flung amphibious penetration, our troops have seized four beachheads in Lingayen gulf. The movement was covered by a blistering naval and air bombardment using both land-based and carrier-based planes.

"The enemy's air force made repeated and desperate attacks against our naval force formations in an endeavor to break the cohesion of our movement, but beyond inflicting some loss and damage, was unsuccessful.

"The enemy evidently had not prepared for a landing in the Lingayen sector, and as a result of this strategic surprise our landing losses were insignificant. We are now at his rear. His reenforcement and supply lines to the Philippines are cut and his ground fight for Luzon will have to be made with such resources as he now possesses there.

"His back door is closed. The decisive battle for the liberation of the Philippines and control of the Southwest Pacific is at hand.

"Gen. MacArthur is in personal command at the front and landed with his assault troops."

Planes Smash 73 Jap Ships in Three Days

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Jan. 9 (AP).—United States naval flyers, slashing at Japan's sea-air strength within the Luzon defense orbit, sank or damaged 73 ships and destroyed or damaged 262 planes in a three day sweep over the Luzon-Formosa-Okinawa area.

A navy bulletin today listed additional damage to the enemy on Luzon in the carrier based strikes of Jan. 5 and 6 and ship-plane casualties in the raids Jan. 8 on Formosa, Okinawa and other islands in the Formosa area.

Hellcat fighters shot down a total of 18 Nipponese planes and joined dive bombers and torpedo planes in destroying 74 more aircraft and damaging 103 on the ground at Luzon in heavy pre-invasion attacks by the 3d fleet's carrier forces.

Fifteen U. S. Planes Lost.

Shipping sunk in the Luzon sweeps included three medium cargo ships, four small coastal cargo vessels and five luggers.

Fifteen American planes were lost in combat, the bulletin said.

Incomplete reports on the raids from Formosa to Okinawa, including Ishigaki and Miyako in the Saki group, showed 17 Japanese planes destroyed and 17 more damaged. In addition, 14 small ships were sunk, 17 small vessels and luggers damaged, and one large tanker left burning off Toshien, Formosa.

Iwo Pounded Again.

Army Liberators flew from their Marianas bases Sunday to hit Iwo Island in the Volcanos.

Adm. Nimitz announced briefly before dawn today that the planes from Vice Adm. McCain's fast carrier force were in action in the Formosa area. He had no details at that time.

B-29s Set Fires in Tokyo.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—Flames seared the Tokyo target area after today's two way smash at the Japanese homeland and the Formosa Island base by scores of American Super Fortresses.

The B-29s braved heavy weather to reach the Jap capital, but found the sky clear over their objective.

The army made no mention of any losses on the Tokyo flight. All planes returned from the Formosa raid. Apparently more than 40 planes participated in each attack.

Put 3,400 Tanks and Other Vehicles on Four Beaches.

MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Jan. 10 (Wednesday)—(AP).—Tens of thousands of United States troops, accompanied ashore by Gen. MacArthur, landed Tuesday morning along 15 miles of Lingayen gulf coast on Luzon Island from an 800 ship convoy, and pushed deep into flatlands leading 120 miles south to Manila.

The task of transferring thousands of men to the beaches along with equipment to keep them fighting went ahead on schedule. Lt. Gen. Krueger, head of the 6th army, was in command of operations.

No fewer than 900 amphibious tanks, tractors, and ducks, and 2,500 vehicles were sent ashore.

One half hour after the landings, enemy mortar fire began falling on the Yank positions at San Fabian.

Yank Losses Light.

From the beaches, cleared of Japanese by fierce warship shellings and aerial bombings, the lightly opposed Yanks surged inland over the same crescent of sand dunes the Japanese employed three years ago and established four beachheads. Their losses were light.

A field dispatch, disclosing that MacArthur already has set up headquarters on Luzon, said the landings were on the southern extremity of the gulf, which includes the city of Lingayen. At one point, only 11 enemy snipers could be found in an hour's hunt.

Wearing his famed campaign hat and five stars on his collar, Gen. MacArthur rode upon the engine box of a landing craft and waded knee-deep in water onto the soil of Luzon he left nearly three years ago. He was flanked by a gum-chewing coxswain, Henry Zilner of Hazelton, Pa., and a handful of Filipino scouts.

3 from Corregidor Along.

In the boat which took MacArthur to the beach were his aides, Col. Lloyd Lehrbas, Pocatello, Idaho, and Lt. Col. Roger Egberg, Cleveland, O., and three of the men who accompanied the general in his flight from Corregidor—Lt. Gen. Richard Sutherland, Maj. Gen. Richard Marshall, and Brig. Gen. Spencer B. Akin.

Also with the party were Warrant Officer Paul Rogers and Sgt. Adam Shorter, Altoona, Pa., the one American marine who went ashore with MacArthur. Shorter had stood guard outside MacArthur's cabin aboard the warship which brought the general to Luzon. When the general found out that his guard had a brother in one of the army divisions taking part in the landing, he obtained permission for Shorter to make the landing in the hope of finding his brother, Earl.

In a shortwave broadcast from Luzon, George Thomas Folster of NBC said the 70 mile long convoy reached the gulf without the loss of a single soldier. He said 50 per cent more troops went ashore in the first wave than landed at Leyte.

"I visited the beaches with Gen. MacArthur and we found no beach defenses worthy of the name," Folster reported.

A headquarters spokesman reported 800 ships of virtually all categories were in action. The heavy warship bombardment apparently drove the defenders back and knocked out the big coastal guns.

If the Japanese strategy is to launch vicious counter-attacks after the beachheads are established, the spokesman said the Yanks will be at a strong advantage. In every Pacific invasion the Americans have mowed down the Japanese charges.

Use 3,000 Landing Craft.

Just prior to the landings, 3,000 small amphibious craft, each with a full complement of troops, rotated near the transports while the last naval gunfire and blistering rocket barrage softened the four landing beaches.

When this curtain of fire lifted, troops crowded into armored amphibious tanks and tractors churned toward the landing points, extending roughly from San Fabian on the southeast west to Lingayen city.

The giant convoy, one-third larger than the force which invaded Leyte, was under enemy observation from the time it started. Japanese aircraft waited for the convoy to approach Luzon before attacking, then struck with the fury of desperation.

79 Planes Shot Down.

The brunt of the strike fell on the advance force, a heavy bombardment group of pre-Pearl Harbor battleships, escort carriers, cruisers, and destroyers which shelled beaches at Lingayen city and San Sebastian town to destroy coastal batteries three full days preceding the landings.

Preliminary reports indicated that at least 79 enemy planes were shot down by Yank combat pilots and the fire from the ships. The fleet suffered some loss and damage, which a 7th fleet officer said did not impair our efficiency.

One Japanese midget submarine attacked the cruisers, but as two torpedoes raced harmlessly thru the formation a destroyer pounced on the 60 foot submersible and rammed it.

Two Jap Destroyers Sunk.

The enemy attempted to slip a destroyer into the main convoy formation the night of Jan. 7, but it also was detected and sunk by American destroyers.

The enemy made another surface attack when the little mine sweepers approached Lingayen gulf the night of Jan. 5. They suddenly were beset by two Japanese destroyer escorts.

A battle seemed imminent, but again an American destroyer interposed, driving off the raiders. Later, fighter and torpedo bombers sank one Japanese destroyer and probably another.

The full magnitude of the convoy was not evident until the warships, fast transports, slow landing craft, and huge supply train was drawn up before the four landing beaches at dawn yesterday.

Find Few Mines.

Japanese fighter planes and dive bombers made a number of sharp passes at the vast assemblage of ships as H-hour approached, but it was obvious they were overwhelmed by numbers.

As the small landing craft milled in tight circles to form landing waves, dreadnaughts and cruisers, including one Australian squadron, stepped up the intensity of the shore bombardment.

Underwater demolition teams, who brazenly two days before the landings sought out floating mines and barbed wire entanglements, reported few, if any, such hazards. Minesweepers had discovered none of the extensive mine fields which had been anticipated.

Shore Batteries Weak.

Even shore batteries, which might have caused considerable trouble, offered none. As a precaution, however, the known positions on Poropoint, near San Fernando, and on Santiago Islands, received heavy gunfire, as well as smaller gun emplacements along the 15-mile landing beaches.

The Japanese apparently abandoned hope of stopping the invasion, but were determined to inflict as much damage from the air as possible. Their attacks reached a crescendo Jan. 5 and 6, then tapered sharply on Jan. 7 and 8, altho the main bulk of the convoy was then passing near Manila. It was obvious that the constant attacks of both the United States army and navy planes had taken effect and had smothered the air weapon on which Japan depended to continue its three-year hold on Luzon.

Naval forces at the scene were the United States 7th fleet of Vice Adm. Kinkaid—which played a heroic part in the second battle of the Philippines sea last October off Leyte—and an Australian squadron.

The 3d fleet of Adm. Halsey, who conceived the invasion of Leyte, is acting in close coördination.

Japs Claim Battle Is On.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 9.—Monitors of the National Broadcasting system tonight recorded Tokyo radio accounts acknowledging that Gen. MacArthur's forces had landed on Lingayen gulf, but asserting Japanese defenders had engaged the Yanks in "hand to hand fighting" on the beaches.

This contrasted with MacArthur accounts of the beaches cleared of enemy troops by pre-invasion attacks.

Radio Tokyo in a broadcast heard by Blue network claimed that prior to the Lingayen landings, one battleship, one cruiser, and four transports were sunk by Japanese aerial action.

The first three landing barges, the broadcast said, were blown up before they reached shore. Several barges managed to reach the beach, the broadcast admitted.

YANK WHO SPEAKS EXCELLENT GERMAN TURNS TABLES ON FOE

WITH BRITISH-AMERICAN TROOPS IN BELGIUM, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Germans ran into complications in dressing some German troops in American uniforms during the first days of their counter-offensive.

One American on patrol was seized by two Germans. But he had heard of Nazis dressed in the United States uniforms, and he spoke excellent German. In an exasperated voice he declared: "You fools. Let me go. I am a German on a special mission."

The Germans released him, with apologies. The American sought another Yank to help him, returned and shot one German and captured the other.

BANDITS FIND FIRST-COMERS GET THE SUGAR

Three men who held up Gust Ballas, 43, 4637 Drexel blvd., in front of his home last night obtained only $6, because two other men who held him up a few minutes earlier at 47th st. and Evans av. took from him $400 and an eight pound bag of sugar he was carrying home from his grocery at 553 E. 47th st.

One of the three men slugged him for having only $6, and refused to listen to his explanation that it was his second holdup of the evening, Ballas told Hyde Park police.

The reason he had $6 left, he said, was because the $400, representing receipts from his store, was in the bag with the sugar which the first holdup men seized without bothering to search his pockets.

TIME TABLE OF HIGHLIGHTS IN PHILIPPINE WAR

First Jap Bombing to Marinduque Invasion.

(BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Highlights of the war in the Philippines:

Manila first bombed by the Japanese Dec. 8, 1941.

Japanese land in Philippines Dec. 10, 1941.

Japanese take Manila Jan. 2, 1942.

Gen. MacArthur, ordered out of Philippines, arrives in Australia March 17, 1942, saying "I will return."

Bataan surrendered April 9, 1942. Corregidor falls May 6, 1942.

Jap Navy Defeated.

Japanese navy sustains heavy losses, June 18-19, 1944, in first battle of Philippine sea, fought between air and surface forces at the time of the American invasion of the Marianas.

MacArthur's bulletin of July 24, 1944, makes first mention of Philippines, reporting raids on enemy shipping off Mindanao.

First raids on the Philippines, staged from Southwest Pacific Aug. 6-8, 1944, since the April 15, 1942, attack from Corregidor on Clark field.

First heavy bomber strike against Philippines, Sept. 3, 1944.

First American carrier aircraft attack on archipelago made by Adm. Halsey's task force Sept. 8, 1944. Other carrier attacks quickly followed.

Carriers Strike Manila.

First carrier plane smash at Manila, Sept. 21, 1944.

On Sept. 24, 1944, Adm. Nimitz said carrier operations had forced "the enemy to withdraw his naval forces from their former anchorage in the Philippines and to seek new refuges in the same general area."

American amphibious forces land Oct. 20, 1944, on Leyte Island in first reinvasion of the archipelago.

Japanese navy meets its second great disaster in Philippine waters Oct. 21-26, 1944, losing many warships in costly effort to interfere with the invasion of Leyte.

Americans land on Mindoro Island Dec. 15, 1944, just south of Luzon, almost without opposition.

Tokyo radio on Dec. 17, 1944, broadcast an editorial warning that the victor on Mindoro "will assume full control of tomorrow's military situation."

Marinduque Island, just east of Mindoro and south of Luzon, invaded by Americans from Mindoro on Jan. 6.

Mussolini's Army Takes Over Milan Restaurants

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 9.—The mayor of Milan has ordered all restaurants closed or transformed into "common tables" following a decision by the Mussolini government, it was reported in the Italian Fascist press today. As an immediate transformation was impossible, the reports said, military authorities took over the restaurants selling meals for 6 cents.

CONGRESS MEMBERS ACCLAIM INVASION OF LUZON BY M'ARTHUR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—News that Gen. MacArthur's forces have landed on Luzon, the main Philippine island, stirred the capital tonight, bringing expressions of happiness and good wishes from members of congress.

Sen. Chavez [D., N. M.], whose home state had sent national guard units to the islands before the Japanese attack, said, "Nothing could make the people of New Mexico happier."

"We hope and pray that this will lead eventually to the freeing of many Americans reported prisoners on Luzon," he said. "I hope MacArthur has the supplies and men to keep going and clean up the island quickly."

LASTING PEACE MUST BE JUST TO ALL: BROOKS

No peace that is not founded upon justice for small nations as well as for large can be a lasting peace, Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.], told the the 30th anniversary dinner of the Waukegan-North Chicago Chamber of Commerce last night in the Glen Flora Country club in Waukegan.

Pointing to the apparent pre-occupation of our allies with their own political aggrandizement in the Balkans and the Mediterranean, he observed that the directors of America's policies should have assured compliance with policies of justice before the floodgates of American aid in men and money were opened. He added:

"I am afraid we have lost a great opportunity again."

A. W. Conover, president of the North Shore Gas company, Waukegan, assumed his post as president for the coming year as successor to George W. Morris, president of the National Office Supply company, also of Waukegan.

Badoglio, Ex-Premier of Italy, Ill of Influenza

WESTERN LUZON IDEAL SITE FOR MAJOR BATTLES

Flat Coastal Plain Leads to Bataan.

When American liberation forces hit Luzon, main island of the Philippines, they tackled the largest land mass in that archipelago and hub of Japan's war stolen gains in the South and Southwest Pacific.

As the Japanese demonstrated in the months immediately following their sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, Luzon is well suited for open warfare in which tanks and other mechanized equipment can be used.

Japan's exact strength on Luzon is not known, but has been variously estimated at from a quarter to a half million fighting men.

Holds Many Airports.

She holds many important airports on the island and has in her hands such strategic installations as Corregidor fortress and other fortified islands guarding the mouth of Manila bay; the reconstructed naval base at Cavite, also on the bay; the navy yard at Olongapo on Subic bay, northwest of Manila; Fort Stotsenberg, the army base at Clark field airdrome, and other army centers in the Manila area.

Luzon, of 40,814 square miles, is the largest of the 7,083 islands in the Philippine archipelago. Its population is between 4,000,000 and 4,500,000 out of a total of about 18,000,000 in the islands. Manila's war time population alone shot over a million.

Ideal for Fighting.

Luzon's flat country, ideal for major fighting, is in the west central sector and in the northeast. In the west central section, stretching southward from Lingayen gulf, one of the Japanese invasion points in December, 1941, is the flat country of Pangasinan, Tarlac, and Pampanga provinces. These lead southwestward to Bataan, the bloody battlefield of 1942.

In the northeast the fertile Cagayan valley, approximately 150 miles long, is sandwiched between high mountain ranges. At its northern extremity is the port of Appari, 225 miles southwest of Formosa.

Rugged mountains cover Luzon's northeast coast, facing the Pacific, and also the wild regions of the northwest. On the west and southwest coasts there are suitable troop landing points in Lingayen gulf and to the north, and also in Batangas province just across the Verde Island waterway passage between Luzon and Yank held Mindoro Island.

Holds Many Prison Camps.

East coast Lamon bay and Albay gulf are suitable for the landing of an army. The Japanese landed on Lamon beaches in 1941, swept across mountain ridges to Laguna province, and then marched northwestward to Manila.

The major air fields on Luzon are Clark, 75 miles northwest of Manila; Nichols, Nielson, and Zablan, on the outskirts of the metropolis; Appari and Tuguegarao, in the northeast Cagayan valley; in Batangas on the southwest, and at Legaspi on the southeast.

On Luzon are located sundry military and civilian camps in which thousands of American and other allied nationals have been held for three years and more. The military prison camps, housing survivors of the Bataan death march, are located at Cabanatuan, in Nueva Ecija province northeast of Manila; at Clark field to the northwest, and at Pasay and the bay area of Manila proper.

4,000 at Santo Tomas.

The civilian camps are Santo Tomas, in Manila, with a population of around 4,000; Los Banos, south of Manila, 800, and Holmes, in the Baguio mountains, about 600.

When the Japanese lose Luzon they will be cut off from its rich war supplies, including sugar for industrial alcohol, cotton, copper, other minerals, rope plants, copra, lumber, rice, and fish.

Luzon has many fine highway systems, covering the entire island and even penetrating the mountain districts. Its railroad line runs from the northwest to southeast with a terminal at Legaspi.

People Are Vigorous.

The mountain peoples of the Philippines, especially those of north Luzon, whose temperate environment favors a more vigorous physical type, are among the most promising of the archipelago.

Foremost among these are the Ifugao, famous for their successful, tho primitive agriculture, their social structure and animistic beliefs. The Igorots are another mountain group who long anticipated the American miner. The Tinggians are still another mountain group who have made use of irrigation.

Manila, capital of Luzon and of the Philippines, was founded in 1571. The Spaniards made it their administrative center. Thereafter the conquest of Luzon proceeded rapidly, and most of the archipelago was in fairly peaceful possession of the Spaniards by 1600.

Seized by British.

In 1762 Manila was taken by a British fleet and held for 15 months. The bay was the scene of the first naval battle of the Spanish American war of 1898, in which Dewey destroyed a Spanish fleet. The city surrendered to United States forces in August the same year.

The heroic last stand of outnumbered American and Filipino troops at Bataan in 1942 has produced the rallying cry for the liberation of the Philippines.

FRENCH TOLD NO FOOD INCREASE UNTIL SUMMER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—The French food outlook between now and next summer is gloomier than ever, according to an apparently inspired review of the situation published today by the French Press agency.

The review not only dashed all hopes of any increase in present rations but hints that they won't be maintained. The reason given is the same old one—lack of rolling stock plus military priorities, which frequently paralyze all ordinary traffic for several days.

Present prospects are stated to justify the forecast that bread rations won't be cut and that meager allotments of potatoes and fats will continue on the present level. On the other hand, the food ministry is unable to make any promises about milk, meat, and wine. The live stock situation is understood to be particularly bad, while winter wheat sowing has not been satisfactory. The report, however, predicts that the food situation will be in hand by summer.

DEFENDANT GETS CLEANED OUT OF $210 BAIL MONEY

After a traffic accident last October, Lawrence Mazzanars, 32, of 3402 Lyndale av., was released in $210 bail. Yesterday, after he was fined $5 in Safety court for having no safety sticker, Judge Gibson E. Gorman ordered his bail returned.

But Mazzanars had left his bail receipt in a shirt pocket, and when the shirt came back from the laundry the writing on the receipt had been obliterated.

So now he must [1] get an affidavit from the police sergeant who accepted the bail; [2] get another affidavit that he was the defendant in the case; [3] take both affidavits to the clerk's office in the city hall, and hope for the best.

FLYERS' ERRORS TURN MALMEDY INTO GHOST CITY

Yanks and Refugees Are Bombed Twice.

Admit Mistake

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Jan. 9.—United States strategic air force headquarters in Europe today admitted bombs were dropped in error on Malmedy, Belgium, by six American medium bombers on Dec. 23 and by 18 heavy bombers on Dec. 24. Stories of the bombings written by correspondents in the field had been held up, meanwhile, until investigations were completed.

Mistaken identifications resulted in the first bombing when Marauders, separated from the remainder of their 9th air force formation and from their pathfinder aircraft by bad weather, pelted the town.

The American heavies of the 8th air force repeated the error the following day.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MALMEDY, Belgium, Dec. 31 [Delayed by censor].—Ten days ago this was a picturesque town snuggled at the base of steeply wooded hills on the Warche river. Advancing German columns had been stopped nearly a mile away and shunted south toward Stavelot. Malmedy, which never had been retaken by the Germans, was strongly held by the Yanks.

Today Malmedy is a ghost town. Snow obscures but cannot conceal its scars. Part of it is gutted. Smoke curls from rubble heaps, which still hide bodies of civilians and American soldiers.

The town stands as a mute monument to the accuracy of American bombers which ripped it by mistake. Then German bombers dropped propaganda leaflets.

Reasons for the tragedy lie somewhere far from here—back at the bomber bases. Its sources may rest on faulty navigation, but Malmedy had never left our hands.

Refugees Crowd Town.

The first attack came Dec. 23. At 4 p. m. medium bombers dropped eight bombs. They exploded in the square and set many fires. Malmedy was crowded with refugees. They were huddled in air raid shelters and crowded in schools, hotels, and private homes.

"That day was bad enough," said Capt. Melvin Handeville, Syracuse, N. Y., "but nothing like the big attack which came at 3 p. m. the next day, the day before Christmas. I was looking out of my office window. I saw two formations of bombers. I counted 18 planes. Then I saw the leading plane drop smoke to mark the target. I shouted to take cover as the bombs came down."

Those crunching bombs, leaving great craters, swept a path straight thru the center of the town. Water mains were broken. G. I.'s formed bucket brigades and tried to man the town's one small water pumping vehicle. Other G. I. fire fighters were summoned from the rear, but the flames raged on unchecked.

Troops Isolated.

Only by dynamiting buildings in the path of the flames were the engineers able to halt the sweep of the flames.

Had the German counter-attacked that night there would have been no holding them from Malmedy, said Capt. Handeville. Troops who held the town perimeter were isolated by the bombed rubble.

No one knows yet how many persons were killed in the two bombings. Twisting thru what had once been streets, convoys of captured German trucks now are winding back toward rear areas carrying pathetic refugees. Malmedy had been a refugee center before the German push.

[In a dispatch appearing in Tuesday morning's Tribune, Correspondent Thompson related that one recent example of inaccurate announcements by supreme headquarters was the one saying that the Germans had captured Malmedy. "Hence, we were not permitted to tell the truth until SHAEF had reported officially that Malmedy had been 'recaptured,'" Thompson said.]

DR. P. R. BLODGETT TAKES PLACE OF DEAD SON IN WAR

Dr. Pliny R. Blodgett, 1602 Otto blvd., Chicago Heights, for 22 years a member of the council of the Chicago Medical society, gave a farewell address to that body last night at its monthly meeting in the Palmer House. Commissioned a lieutenant commander in the navy medical corps on Dec. 28, Dr. Blodgett said he enlisted to replace his son, 1st Lt. P. R. Blodgett Jr., an engineer of armament in the army air forces, who was killed last May 25 in an air accident over Scotland.

Dr. P. R. Blodgett.

Comdr. Blodgett served as a lieutenant in the army medical corps with Gen. Pershing in Mexico in 1916, and was commissioned a captain at the beginning of World War I., in which he served overseas and participated in six major engagements. His family has served in every American war since 1776, and he wears several decorations, including the Purple Heart with one oak leaf cluster, the victory medal with six stars, and the St. Mihiel and Verdun medals, both French decorations. He is stationed at Navy pier, but has requested overseas assignment.

Mrs. Estelle W. Blatt, director of home nursing for the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross, also addressed the council session.

SHIPS REACH CITY TO SET WINTER LAKES RECORD

Exactly on schedule, the new maritime commission ships, the Pemiscot and the W. L. Nelson, arrived in Chicago last night after establishing a new late season record for Great Lakes winter voyages.

The 2,400 ton cargo ships, built at Duluth, Minn., went thru St. Mary's river and the Soo locks, linking Lakes Michigan and Superior, behind the 10,000 horsepower U. S. S. Mackinaw, new coast guard ice breaker. Both ships were met three miles out by the coast guard cutter Hollyhock, commanded by Lt. F. H. Harmon, and escorted to dockage at Navy pier. A third ship, the Hidalgo, in the original convoy, laid up at Milwaukee.

The joint trip of the ships was an event in lake history. Dec. 15 is the official closing date of Great Lakes shipping. At 9:30 a. m. today the Pemiscot and the Nelson will be towed down the river by tugs to the Howard Dismantling company for a few minor riggings.

REP. SUMNER ASKS U. S. TELL NAZIS OUR TERMS

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—Rep. Sumner [R., Ill.], adding her voice to recent congressional demands for scrapping the "unconditional surrender" terms for Germany, declared today that this policy is causing needless sacrifice of American lives.

Miss Sumner told the house that the unconditional terms are goading the Nazis to the stiffest possible resistance, because of German fears that surrender would mean the splitting of Germany into communistic states or the imposition of the "Morgenthau plan" for virtual enslavement of the German nation.

"Dictated" Peace Asked.

Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] last week called for a "dictated peace" rather than unconditional surrender and asserted the latter policy has led to "brutal and costly" loss of American lives. Wheeler was rebuked by Secretary of State Stettinius, who replied publicly that the senator spoke for a "discredited" minority.

Miss Sumner, calling upon President Roosevelt to hasten an allied victory in Europe by announcing surrender principles that would pave the way for a dictated peace, said:

"The unconditional surrender policy is an anachronism. What reason can there be for it? If it is because the President does not know what terms he wants to impose upon Germany, then multitudes of American soldiers may die needlessly because the President has not made up his mind what our soldiers are fighting for."

"If Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt intend to impose upon the German people a fate less harsh than chaos, death and slavery worse than death," she declared, "they owe it to our gallant fighting men to spare our service men needless suffering by saying so plainly, unequivocally, and reliably."

Italy's Case Cited.

President Roosevelt, himself, the congresswoman continued, has already, during this war, sanctioned "dictated peace" thru negotiation, as in the case of allied dealings with Adm. Darlan in North Africa and Marshal Badoglio in the surrender of Italy.

"The fact seems to be," she said, "that armies do not surrender without some preliminary negotiation. The important thing that nobody seems to understand is that when you obtain everything you demand, you have 'dictated' the peace whether or not it is negotiated.

"Recently we saw German resistance stiffen because of the revelation of the 'Morgenthau plan.' But the American people have not been told that the reason was because it seemed to confirm the devilish Nazi dogma which says that unconditional surrender means the shattering of Germany into communistic revolutionary chaos with middle class people being killed or carried off into Russian slavery."

Miss Sumner declared the end of World War I. was hastened by former President Wilson's willingness to "negotiate" with the Germans during an armistice preceding the final surrender. But, she added, the allied victory was no less complete because of this.

PREDICTS JAPAN WILL SEND NAVY OUT TO BATTLE

BY LEIF ERICKSON.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 9 (AP).—Japan may risk her remaining first line warships in another sea action with the Pacific fleet, now that Gen. MacArthur's invasion of Luzon has opened the Pacific war's most critical campaign.

I say this on my own responsibility, knowing Luzon is more vital to Japan's defense of her empire than was Guadalcanal, Saipan, or Leyte.

Every time American amphibious forces have assaulted objectives of key importance to Japan, her fleet has joined in major sea action—the second battle of the Philippines after the Leyte landing; first battle of the Philippine seas after the Saipan landing in the Marianas; the Solomons surface battles after the Guadalcanal landing.

Chiang Replaces China's Communications Official

FREEDOM FROM FRANCE MAY BE MONACO'S PLEA

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTE CARLO, Monaco, Jan. 7 [Delayed].—The principality of Monaco is likely to try to crash the peace conference after this war with a demand for recognition of sovereignty and escape from control by France.

The Monacans stress the fact that the Italians and Germans and now the Americans respect Monaco's neutrality, which they claim is tacit recognition that the little duchy is entitled to autonomy and not necessarily a belligerent because France is at war.

It is rumored that Prince Charles III. is anxious to retrieve his traditional prerogatives as the ruling house of Monaco and will make new demands for this new status in his domain on the basis that he seeks to preserve the principality from the leftist movement and the communist influence spreading over the continent.

Political Position Is Nebulous.

Monaco's political position prior to the establishment of the gambling casino a century ago is nebulous as the great powers ignored the little state completely.

After Francois Blanc established the casino and gambling began luring tourists from the French Riviera, the Paris government on moral grounds attempted to force the gaming tables to close.

But foxy old Blanc, seeing his investment menaced, whispered the solution to Prince Charles. The Monaco monarch delivered an ultimatum to the French ambassador, saying, "If any foreign government attempts to interfere with the domestic affairs of my realm I shall ask the emperor of Germany to assume a protectorate over Monaco."

France could not risk having Germany on her southern flank and Britain could not permit the kaiser to establish a naval base on the Mediterranean so the anti-gambling campaign against Monte Carlo was stifled in England and France. The Paris government, thru pressure on Francois Blanc, a French citizen, gradually absorbed the principality.

U. S. Helps Feed State.

This war revealed that France could not protect Monaco from either Italian or German aggression, giving the little state a right to freedom of foreign policy, assert outspoken Monacans, or Monegasques as they call themselves. They also say that the depreciated French franc and the economic disturbance in France give Monaco the right to an independent domestic policy.

The poorer classes of Monaco's 20,000 population live entirely off rationed food and the black market for the wealthier classes is dependent on transport from France for all commodities.

The American government is supplying certain rations and the French have sent thru additional foodstuffs.

An excellent dinner of thick, tender rump steak, French fried potatoes, chicory salad, and goat's milk cheese, with buttered toast and American army coffee, for two costs 1,000 francs [$20] with tax and tip.

Monaco's only war damage is the yacht basin, which the Germans used to shelter their coastal convoys.

INDIAN TROOPS TAKE SHWEBO, LAST BIG MANDALAY OUTPOST

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, Jan. 9 (AP).—Indian troops entered Shwebo Sunday and are consolidating their positions in the town, the last major outpost north of Mandalay, a bulletin announced today. Shwebo, 46 miles above Mandalay, is the hub of a number of north Burma roads.

The bulletin said enemy positions at Kin-U, 15 miles north of Shwebo on the Mandalay-Myitkyina railroad, had been captured.

Northeast of captured Akyab on the Bay of Bengal, British 15th corps troops engaged in brisk fighting with the enemy, the bulletin said, and east of the Kaladan river, 13 miles southeast of Kyauktaw, British patrols probed southward aided by strong support of the eastern air command. Kyauktaw is 25 miles northeast of Akyab.

U. S. Strategic Air Forces Command Now in France

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Jan. 9.—Headquarters of United States strategic air forces in Europe was moved from the United Kingdom several months ago, but first announcement of the change was made here today. This headquarters coördinates operations of the United States 8th air force in the United Kingdom and the United States 15th air force in Italy.

U.S. TANKS DRIVE ON NAZIS' LAST BULGE LIFELINE

Rundstedt Shifts Troops to Meet Threat.

British included Regne, Sart, Verleumont, Marcourt, and Dochamps.

On the southern flank of the salient the enemy put up much stiffer resistance and Lt. Gen. Patton's American 3d army was held to minor gains north and east of Bastogne. The 101st air borne division drove a half mile in taking Recogne, three miles north of Bastogne, and the 6th armored division pushed a half mile in the area southeast of that big road junction. A quarter mile gain was registered near Wiltz, nine miles east of Bastogne.

German forces continued to strike back hard west of Bastogne, and two enemy counter-attacks forced the Yanks to withdraw a mile along a three mile front there. The 3d army, however, cleared Bonnerue, six miles east of St. Hubert, which had changed hands several times. Patton's men destroyed 12 out of 23 German tanks employed in one counter-attack near Tillet.

The blizzard drove allied and German planes from the snow filled sky and placed an additional burden on the infantry as tanks slipped and skidded and sometimes stalled in the deep drifts. It did not, however, affect allied artillery, which laid down a terrific day and night barrage on the entire salient.

Heavy Attacks in Alsace.

A dispatch from the United States 9th army front "in Germany," said German-flying bombs suddenly were thrown against that force in salvos of threes and fours.

Far to the south of the Belgian front the Germans threw a half dozen attacks against American and French forces in eastern France, one of them a powerful blow against the French in the Alsace plain south of Strasbourg.

Attacking northward from the Colmar pocket near the Rhine, Nazi infantry spearheaded by at least 20 tanks drove thru the towns of Witternheim and Neunkirch before being halted by the French about 16 miles south of Strasbourg.

North in the Rhine valley near Wissembourg the Germans launched two attacks four miles southeast of Soultz and at near-by Hatten, but were beaten back with heavy losses.

Found at Bitche Salient.

North of Lemberg, on the west side of the enemy's Bitche salient, the Germans attacked in strength in heavily wooded terrain and lost seven tanks.

American 7th army troops were pounding at the Bitche salient and were making slow progress against stiff resistance. No changes were reported from the enemy's bridgehead north of Strasbourg. The immediate threat to Strasbourg was lessening.

Official credit for the failure of the Germans' southern offensive to break thru and do serious damage at any point is being given to intelligence officers of the 7th army, who correctly anticipated the attack. It appeared that the allied command had decided against falling back to a winter line in the Vosges and yielding Alsace.

9TH AIR FORCE DROPS 217,028 TONS OF BOMBS

U. S. 9TH AIR FORCE HDQ., Jan. 9 (AP).—During 1944, its first full year as a tactical weapon, the United States 9th air force flew 328,015 sorties and dropped more than 217,028 tons of bombs on the enemy, it was announced today.

Its pilots destroyed 1,752 enemy planes, probably destroyed 257 and damaged 817 in combat. On the ground they destroyed 470, probably destroyed 67, and damaged 236. The Americans' losses were 1,455 fighter bombers and 288 medium and light bombers.

Ninth air force fighter bombers, which accounted for 126,618 of the total tons dropped, destroyed more than 21,000 enemy vehicles of all types, including tanks and self-propelled guns.

From D-day on June 6, to Dec. 31, the fighter bombers knocked out 2,397 locomotives, destroyed 10,906 railroad cars, and destroyed or damaged 840 bridges.

R. A. F. BOMBERS SMASH SHIPS IN NORWAY FJORDS

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP).—Three forces of R. A. F. "ship busting" Mosquitos and Beaufighters carried out a sweep thru icy clouds over Norwegian fjords today and destroyed at least five enemy vessels.

The British attack bombers dived over the wharves firing dozens of rockets into the enemy ships. The last crews to leave the target area saw a modern cargo liner lying on its side burning and a small, modern diesel merchant ship disappearing beneath the surface with only its bow above water. Another large ship was ablaze. Two smaller cargo ships were punctured by rocket projectiles. One large formation of Mosquitos darted over Lervik harbor for attacks on large cargo ships there.

High altitude snowstorms over the English channel prevented allied Britain based bombers from blasting western Germany.

YANK CIGARET LOOTERS GIVEN 45 TO 50 YEARS

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP).—Four enlisted United States army men convicted of looting supply trains and diverting cigarets and other rations into the French black market today were sentenced to prison terms ranging from 45 to 50 years at hard labor by a general court martial.

The court martial was the first of a series of trials involving 182 enlisted men and two officers charged with stealing frontbound supplies and selling them to the black market.

Convicted and sentenced today were Sgt. Alexander Fleming, Pvt. Arthur T. Nelson, Pvt. William Davidson, and T/4 William R. Smith—all of the same company, the 716th railway operating battalion. Another group of five men from the same battalion will go on trial on Thursday.

Two Get 50 Years.

Fleming, 29, and Smith, 25, each were sentenced to 50 years' imprisonment. Davidson, 29, and Nelson, 26, each received 45 year sentences. All were dishonorably discharged and lost their pay allowances. The sentences are not final until ratified by reviewing authorities.

Testimony supported by signed confessions showed the four soldiers figured in several dealings netting as high as 100,000 francs [$2,000] for a single night's theft.

Disclose Other Shortages.

During the trial Lt. Harry W. Kline of the post exchange division testified that shipments from the United States were geared to deliver 77 million cigarets monthly.

But actually, he said, only 34 million cigarets were available overseas in September and a subsequent inventory showed that on Nov. 15 there were only 11 millions. Similar shortages were experienced in candy, razor blades, and soap, he said.

Nazi Version of West Front Battle

Admit Breaches.

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP).—The German radio admitted tonight that the United States 1st army, driving between the Salm river and the township of Marche in a bid to break thru the German Belgian salient, had scored several breaches in the Nazi lines.

"Several enemy penetrations could not be frustrated, but the Germans foiled the planned break-thru," a Berlin broadcast said, countering with the claim:

"On the west front of the German salient, a wooded country south and southwest of St. Hubert was cleared of enemy resistance and Bonnerue was again retaken by the Germans, changing hands for a third time."

The propaganda broadcasts asserted that the Ardennes fighting had developed into a great battle of attrition, with the struggle proving costly to both sides.

The Germans also began to talk of withdrawal. Transocean said, "if need be, Von Rundstedt could always withdraw from the salient to the west wall [Siegfried line] from where he began his great offensive, and he would then possess a defense line which would exclude all possibility of a vast allied break-thru on the Avranches pattern."

Official Report.

Tuesday's German war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin said:

"In the northern Ardennes [forest] our troops again yesterday [Monday] were engaged in hard but successful defensive fighting against Americans who had been trying to break thru between the Salm and the Ourthe [rivers]. In counter-attacks, gaps which had temporarily resulted in the front were closed and numerous prisoners were taken.

"Our forces, encircled in some hotly contested localities, again fought themselves free. An American attempt to cut off our salient projecting southeast of Bastogne was smashed by offensive successes in the last few days.

"On the western slopes of the lower Vosges and in the mountains proper enemy counterattacks were frustrated with heavy losses to the enemy.

"In the Rhine plain south and southeast of Wissembourg in Alsace our troops have taken the entire forefield of the Maginot line and have widened and deepened their penetration into the defense in hard fighting for pillboxes. Attacks by enemy tanks against our bridgehead north of Strasbourg were repulsed. In the area south of Erstein captured ground is being cleared of the enemy."

FRANCE READY TO GRAB RICHES OF PROFITEERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Most of the gaps in legislation aimed at ferreting out the gains of occupation profiteers today were expected to be plugged up by a drastic new ordinance which authorizes local confiscation committees to seize not only the illegal profits of an offender but to recommend the seizure of his entire fortune and property.

When filling out this year's tax declaration, industrialists and business men will be required to declare all profits made with the enemy during the four years of 1941-1944.

EVEN IN ALSACE THEY KNOW OF CIGARET FAMINE

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY IN ALSACE, Jan. 9 (AP).—As Pvt. Vincent Libertini cleaned up in a recently vacated company headquarters he stopped occasionally to pick up stray bits of paper, matchsticks, and cigaret butts. Two Alsatian civilians watched him intently, mindful of newspaper accounts of a tobacco shortage in America.

"Attendez!" one of the civilians said finally, tugging at the sleeve of the soldier. "Eet eez not necessaire."

The civilian reached into his pocket and gave the startled private one limp American cigaret.

NEWS THEIR MEN ARE IN COMBAT CHEERS AUSSIES

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 9 (AP).—Australians were cheered today by the announcement of Gen. MacArthur that Australians are fighting on three Pacific sectors in the Solomons, New Britain, and New Guinea, and expressed the hope there would be no more blackouts on activities of their troops.

The Sydney Sun said "this news, by adjusting a wrong impression, particularly in America, restores Australia to the war map on land as well as by sea and air."

Reports, held up pending issuance of the announcement, said on New Britain Australians broke new ground by landing at Jacquinot bay, 100 miles from Rabaul, without opposition and a latter amphibious movement carried the Australians to within 50 miles of Rabaul.

NAME CORPS AND DIVISIONS WITH U. S. 9TH ARMY

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP).—The 13th and 19th corps and the 29th and 102d infantry divisions are operating with the United States 9th army of Lt. Gen. Simpson on the western front. Exact locations where these units are deployed may not be given.

The 13th corps is new, its commander had not been announced. The 19th corps is commanded by Maj. Gen. Raymond S. McLain and at last reports included the 2d armored, 29th, 30th, and 102d infantry divisions.

The 29th infantry division last was reported at Julich on the Roer under command of Maj. Gen. Charles Hunter Gerhardt. The 102d also was last reported on the Roer under command of Brig. Gen. Frank A. Keating.

'I DIE FOR IDEAL,' SAYS EXECUTED FRENCH OFFICER

Convicted of Writing Against Reds.

BY ROBERT SAGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Paul Chack, elderly former naval officer convicted by the Seine Court of Justice Dec. 18 of intelligence with the enemy, was executed this morning by an F. F. I. [French Forces of the Interior] firing squad at the fort of Montrouge on the southern outskirts of Paris.

The gray haired officer was calm when Government Commissar Vassard awakened him in his cell at Fresnes prison to tell him his plea for mercy had been rejected. Betraying no emotion, he dressed, drew on a blue overcoat, and asked for the prison chaplain and letter paper. He refused cigarets, and after thanking his lawyers, said to the examining magistrate, "I congratulate you on your independence."

"I Die for My Ideal."

A police car carrying Chack and his lawyers arrived at the fort at 10:20 a. m. As the prisoner walked toward the execution stake, he said, "I die for my ideal." Then, while his hands were being fastened behind his back to the execution stake, he cried, "Long live the French navy! Long live France!"

Like 11 collaborationist predecessors at Montrouge, Chack refused to be blindfolded. At 10:28 he was executed.

Chack, writer of naval adventure novels, became president of the German sponsored anti-Bolshevik organization in Paris during the occupation and also wrote frequent articles against the allies, particularly Russia, in Aujourd'hui, newspaper of the late Georges Suarez, who also died at the Montrouge stake.

Writer's Appeal Denied.

The high court rejected a request for an appeal lodged by Henri Beraud, Anglophobe writer in the weekly, Gringoire, who was sentenced to death Dec. 29, and he is expected to be shot before the end of the week.

HOW CENSORSHIP 'SCOOPS' FRONT LINE REPORTERS

Violations and Immunity of BBC Told.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH AMERICAN 6TH ARMY GROUP, France, Jan. 9.—The lack of coördination of censorship between supreme headquarters of the allied expeditionary force and the 6th army group [comprising the American 7th army and the French 1st army] and the immunity of the British Broadcasting corporation in London from any penalty for violating censorship and presenting distorted reports of military events, have placed correspondents here at a great disadvantage and at times in a ridiculous position.

The most recent instance was last Saturday when BBC, quoting a Reuters dispatch from SHAEF, said that Strasbourg was endangered by the German landings on the west bank of the Saverne gap and by the enemy thrust thru the Haardt forest. The truth is that the enemy drives in those sectors are definitely under control.

Impossible Here.

For two reasons, no correspondent here would have sent a dispatch on the matter such as Reuters presumably was allowed to transmit from SHAEF and the BBC was allowed to use.

Those reasons are:

1. Such a dispatch did not give a true picture as the men in the field know it.

2. Even if a field correspondent wanted to be over-sensational and file such a story the censorship would have stopped it.

Seventh army authorities were furious when they heard the BBC broadcast and a protest is being made.

Another incident which put field correspondents in an unenviable position, took place in mid-November. On Nov. 13 the 7th army jumped off on the offensive which ultimately brought it thru the Saverne gap and to Strasbourg and on the 14th the French 1st army began the offensive which carried it thru the Belfort gap and to the Rhine.

Offensives Misnamed.

We were not allowed to call these offensives by their real name; we had to refer to them as local attacks. There was some security justification for this the first few days when the enemy might not have known fully the pattern and ultimate design of our drives.

But on the fourth and fifth days, SHAEF was styling the actions as offensives and the local edition of Stars and Stripes [army newspaper] also was using that term. Yet the 6th army group directives to our censors demanded that we still use the words "local attacks" and it was not until a determined protest by correspondents reached Lt. Gen. Devers, the group commander, that on the seventh day we were allowed to catch up with what our officers and the world knew, and mention offensives in our stories.

It was a case of the 6th army group taking literally the SHAEF caution against any premature use of a word indicating the scope of the drive while SHAEF, itself, cast aside that caution.

Fall of Colmar "Imminent."

After the French had gone thru the Belfort gap and taken Mulhouse, correspondents in Paris were allowed to print a declaration by Gen. De Gaulle that his forces were at the gates of Colmar. No such statement would have been passed by the censorship here. Now, more than six weeks later, the fall of Colmar, as one wag remarked, is still imminent and likely to remain that way for some time.

One thing which particularly harried correspondents during the early part of the campaign in southern France was the 7th army's prohibition against identifying the American units in action.

While the correspondents here are willing to accept such a prohibition when this army argues that security requires it, some of us cannot understand why SHAEF does not impose a uniform policy in the matter. Lt. Gen. Patton allows his battle lineup to be disclosed as soon as his men are in action.

Officers' Stories Held Up.

Last September, when it was becoming evident that the European war would not end until at least this spring, several correspondents sought to get out stories to that effect—stories particularly desired by field officers who were perturbed at the reduction in combat efficiency of their men when the latter received letters from home containing such remarks as: "We are so happy for you that the war will be over in a few weeks," or "We are planning a big Christmas for you at home."

But a SHAEF directive stopped such articles from being sent from here. Then late in September, Prime Minister Churchill made a speech warning that the war in Europe might not end until spring.

Lost Battalion Story Held Up.

But what is possibly the classic example of censorship variation between SHAEF and the 7th army and BBC practice in the matter, concerned the lost battalion story. This chronicled one of the most dramatic infantry operations of the war—of the survivors of a unit of the 36th division who came down from a Vosges hill Oct. 31 after an eight day ordeal under German fire.

The dispatches were all written and ready for transmission a few hours after the correspondents had talked with the survivors, but 7th army censors held up the story because army intelligence decreed it.

Meanwhile, Colin Wills, then a BBC representative here, made recordings of the event. He did not submit these to censorship here but sent them to London via Paris.

The correspondents still were struggling to get their copy released when, on the night of Nov. 4, the American broadcasting station in Europe [ABSIE] came on the air with Wills' story. Whether ABSIE was repeating from the BBC or whether the BBC had just turned over the discs to ABSIE is not clear yet but it doesn't matter, for in either case the recordings had emanated from the BBC before the story was released here.

It was only after the broadcast had "scooped" us that our field stories were passed and even then they were governed and deleted in accordance with what the recordings had told.

A letter of protest in the matter was written in November by the 7th army but there has been no report of any action being taken against the BBC and the SHAEF censors who released the story. The BBC has disregarded field censorship rules before and correspondents' complaints have brought no redress.

Chief of Armored Division Is 'Broken' by Gen. Patton

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—Maj. Gen. Lindsay McDonald Silvester, World War I. hero, who commanded the 7th armored division in its history making drive across France last summer, has been broken in rank and relieved of his command by order of Lt. Gen. Patton, commander of the American 3d army.

Col. Silvester.

It was disclosed today that Silvester has reverted to his permanent rank of colonel and been assigned to the war department here. He has recently undergone a series of physical tests at the army hospital.

The war department declined to comment on the relief and demotion of the general who has been an army officer for 33 years and holds the distinguished service cross for gallantry in action in the last war.

Replaced by Hasbrouck.

Silvester was replaced last November as commander of the 7th division by Maj. Gen. Robert Hasbrouck At that time the division was a part of Patton's 3d army. It has since been assigned to the 1st army.

A war department spokesman said that if Silvester has been demoted, it was for good cause. His friends said that they were convinced that the demotion was due to friction with Patton because the latter felt that Silvester was not aggressive enough in attack. The friends said Silvester did not believe in ripping up the French countryside uselessly or causing unnecessary damage to villages.

Silvester, a Washingtonian, was born in Virginia 55 years ago. He is a graduate of the University of Maryland and entered the army in 1911.

Honored in Last War.

In the World war he won the silver star, French Legion of Honor, French croix de guerre and Purple Heart in addition to the distinguished service cross. He is a graduate of the infantry school, the command and general staff school, and the army war college.

At the outbreak of the present war he was on duty with the 1st armored division at Fort Knox, Ky. In March, 1942, he took command of the 7th armored division. He was promoted to the permanent rank of colonel in August, 1940, to the temporary rank of brigadier general in July, 1941, and to the temporary rank of major general on March 10, 1942.

Loaned to British

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY IN GERMANY, Jan. 10 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Maj. Gen. Lindsay McDonald Silvester, who was disclosed yesterday to have reverted to his permanent rank of colonel, was relieved of his command of the 7th armored division after that division was badly mauled by the Germans near Venlo last November. At that time the 7th was holding an extended front and was on loan to the British 2d army. Silvester was removed from his command when the division reverted to the 9th army's control. Several members of the division command were released in the shakeup.

LEFTIST PARTIES JOIN; TELL AIM FOR NEW FRANCE

'Renovated' Popular Front Sought.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Communist and Socialist organs today published a proclamation of an entente committee of the two left wing parties calling for large scale demonstrations to be held Feb. 11 to commemorate the "victory of the republic over the Fascists."

The date chosen is the 10th anniversary of the original get-together of the Communists and Socialists after the Stavisky rigts. That so-called front later was expanded by the inclusion of the Radical Socialists into the famous Front Populaire.

Delegates Leave for Moscow.

The proclamation of the entente committee, which is working toward a renovated Front Populaire merger, coincides with the departure for a three week stay in Moscow of five representatives of the influential French Confederation Generale du Travail on a mission similar to that of the soviet delegation at present touring the French provinces.

The declaration of the committee voices a joint slogan of "fight and work," and says the objectives for which the two parties are determined to fight are total liberation of France, destruction of Hitlerism, return of prisoners and deportees, the greatness and independence of France, and fulfillment of the country's commitments to the allies.

Demanding the uncompromising repression and purge of all doubtful elements in the French social structure, the committee asserts it is impossible to secure the army's rear without ridding the country of the enemy's accomplices, who, the declaration says, are still plotting against the republic and democracy.

"Strike at Top."

Furthermore, the declaration asserts, the rearmament of troops and the feeding of civilians cannot be assured as long as nothing is done to oust "directors of trusts and of committees who were beneficiaries, if not the actual initiators, of defeat."

To remedy the situation the entente committee proposes to:

Strike at the top, quickly and justly.

Make a clear-cut distinction between outright traitors and those who, altho they cannot be convicted of treason, collaborated in some measure with the Germans and consequently do not merit a place in the renovated France.

Entrust those who proved their patriotism during the occupation with the task of aiding the authorities in the clean-up by allowing them to call attention to abuses, demand investigations, check up on the carrying out of justice, and otherwise act as unofficial auxiliary police.

Candidates for Purge.

The committee then defines in detail persons it considers as candidates for the purge: Directors of large commercial, industrial, and banking enterprises, "who have knowingly prepared for defeat or voluntarily worked for the enemy"; military chiefs who delivered French material, opened fire on the allies, or servilely executed the orders of Vichy; all government officials and civil servants "who were accomplices in treason"; members of political parties and semi-military organizations who took up arms against patriots; spokesmen of collaboration, and propagandists for deportation and against resistance and the allies.

All such men, the committee says, should be tried with the least possible delay. On the other hand, accomplices of the men specified in the above list may be exempted from the purge if they can prove to local and departmental committees of liberation that they have performed important services for the resistance or that they remained at their posts by agreement with some resistance organization.

CHICAGOANS TO SEE 3D CRUISER CHICAGO JOIN THE NAVY TODAY

A party of Chicagoans headed by Mayor and Mrs. Kelly will be on hand today in the Philadelphia [Pa.] navy yard when the new heavy cruiser, U. S. S. Chicago, will be commissioned. The 13,000 ton ship was built after 47 million dollars' worth of series E bonds were purchased by Chicago citizens and will be the third navy craft to bear the city's name.

Among the gifts to be presented to the navy for use on the new cruiser are a $6,000 silver service purchased by order of the city council, a ship's bell cast in the shops of the city fire department, a complete library donated by members of the University club, and sailor's ditty bags and equipment for crew members from the Chicago chapter of the Navy Mother's club. At least 23 Chicagoans are to be members of the ship's crew.

After the ceremonies, it is expected that the mayor will go on to New York, to attend a meeting of the United States Conference of Mayors. He is scheduled to return to Chicago next Tuesday.

NAZIS DIG IN ON EASTERN END OF ITALIAN FRONT

ROME, Jan. 9 (AP).—German troops at the extreme eastern end of the Italian front have dug in for a stand along the southern bank of the Reno river about six miles northeast of fallen Sant' Alberto, the allied command announced today. The new German position is in the region of Passo di Primaro along the southeastern shore of the Comacchio lagoon.

Bitter winter weather and deep snowdrifts on the Italian front confined activity to patrols almost from coast to coast. Snowfall continued yesterday on the American 5th army front. In some sectors the depth of the fall was more than 12 inches. There was a sharp increase of enemy patroling on the right sector of the 5th army front southeast of Bologna.

In the central sector a group from the 361st regiment collided with heavy opposition near the town of Barchetta east of Highway 65.

'WORK OR FIGHT' DRIVE PUSHED; 5,000 SEEK JOBS

War man power commission officials continued yesterday to spur their drive for new workers in critical war plants here as an estimated 5,000 men and women lined up at employment offices and plant doors for jobs.

William H. Spencer, regional man power director, said revised figures showed that 7,182 applicants, of whom 5,551 were men, applied for jobs or information at the 18 Chicago area employment offices Monday, setting a new record, in addition to thousands more who applied directly at plants. The WMC offices referred 2,695 directly to war jobs, including 2,191 men, he said. All male applicants except former service men need referral cards from the WMC to obtain war plant jobs, he said.

The city's 400,000 school children will be asked to take letters home to their parents pointing out the need for more plant workers, it was announced by Col. Dan A. Hardt, chairman of the Chicago production urgency committee. Col. Hardt said the board of education will distribute the letters to the schools this month.

The 40 public high schools will hold contests for war work slogans, he said, and the 10 best in each school will be chosen as poster subjects. The posters will be displayed in theaters and stores. Prizes will be awarded, and juniors and seniors will be urged to take part time war jobs.

SICILIAN YOUTHS PROTEST DRAFT; NUMBER KILLED

ROME, Jan. 9 (AP).—Anti-draft riots in which a number of persons have been killed have created a "serious situation" in Ragusa province in Sicily, a spokesman for Premier Ivanoe Bonomi said today.

Government troops have restored order in most places, he said, but "nests of sedition" still are holding out at the towns of Comiso, Vittoria, and Giarrantana as youths protest the call to arms.

Sicily has been in a state of ferment for several months.

Gained by Taking Risks.

"This technique—of striking boldly while taking calculated risks—is what has gotten us to the German border. In my opinion, had we followed more cautious policies we would still be fighting west of Paris.

"We felt, in the case of the Ardennes, that we could take this risk because this territory contained no strategic objectives or large supply installations, and when Von Rundstedt sent his troops into action with orders to live on American dumps, they found slim pickings.

"The actual timing of the attack and its strength were somewhat of a surprise. The attack was skilfully launched. Field Marshal von Rundstedt's movement of his reserves from the Cologne area to the jumping-off position in the Siegfried line was masterfully executed. This was made possible by a period of bad weather which restricted our air reconnaissance.

Able to Meet an Attack.

"In considering the possibilities of a German attack thru the Ardennes, we recognized that it might meet initial success, but we felt the nature of the terrain and the size and mobility of our forces would justify our taking a risk. They would enable us to meet and stop an attack before it could do too much damage. This is exactly what has happened.

"The enemy's schedule for his attack was upset by the heroic resistance of our troops and by the speed made by all three [American] armies in shifting divisions to meet the attack.

"The result was that wherever the enemy turned along the north flank, groping toward a place where he could break out in the Belgian lowlands, he was met by troops of Gen. Hodges' 1st army.

"An even greater surprise to the enemy was the quick appearance of Gen. Patton's [3d] army on the south flank. Matching the speed with which Gen. Simpson [9th army] and Gen. Hodges deployed their divisions from the north, Gen. Patton's forces first relieved Bastogne—which was, of course, a key to the whole battle—and then attacked with such fury that the enemy was forced to slow his drive on the north.

Communications Broken.

"The German attack launched on Dec. 16 cut our direct telephone communication to the 1st army and direct roads over which personnel contact was normally maintained. The weather prevented us making frequent personal contacts with the 1st army by plane. It was therefore decided that the 21st army group should assume temporary command of all allied forces north of the salient.

[The 21st army group includes the British 2d and Canadian 1st armies under the command of Field Marshal Montgomery. Its front extended thru southern Holland and southeastward into Germany.]

"This was a temporary measure only, and when the lines are rejoined, the 12th army group will resume command of all the American troops in this area. The soundness and flexibility of our allied command is illustrated by the ease with which this change in command was made.

"Field Marshal Montgomery has made a notable contribution. Even before he took this temporary command of the 1st and 9th armies at 12:20 a. m. on Dec. 20, the field marshal had moved to station his British and Canadian forces in position to protect Antwerp in event of any unforeseen break-thru.

British at Tip of Salient.

"It can now be announced that British troops were at that time dispatched to the tip of the salient. These troops served with distinction, engaging the covering forces of the Germans near their furthest advance.

"German losses in this offensive have been enormous. Our artillery and air forces have been able to punish him much more severely in the open than had been possible while he remained in his fortifications.

"Even in the matter of prisoners the total number taken since Dec. 16 [so far 22,621 have been reported] by the 1st and 3d American armies is much greater than the number of United States troops reported missing in action or captured. His dead and wounded must be many more times the number we have suffered.

Considerable Fighting Ahead.

"Events may prove that the losses in men and materiel, and the loss in morale when the salient is eventually reduced, may materially affect the Germans' ability to resist on the western front.

"I do not mean to imply by this that we can assume the Germans are on the verge of collapse. They are not. We have known for some time there will be considerable fighting ahead. But we have never had any doubt about the outcome and we have none now.

"What the American soldier has done in the Ardennes in the last three weeks is to my mind one of the greatest stories in the history of fighting men.

"Most of our army are veterans now, and know every trick of the trade. But there were a lot of men who stopped the Germans in the Ardennes who had only joined us a short time ago and had only what they had been taught in their training—and their native courage and character—to carry them thru the battle.

Faced Picked Veterans.

"Three Americans, veteran and newcomer, fought against picked German soldiers—especially trained, rested, and equipped just for this offensive. The Germans had thinned the Siegfried line to make this force possible.

"The American soldier met the best fighting force that German militarism had been able to put in the field, and licked it to a standstill again and again.

"The stories of individual heroism that you have read are far from being exaggerated, and have been, to my certain knowledge, if anything, understatements. The American people can be deeply proud of the achievements of their sons and brothers on this battlefield."

F.D.R. DISCUSSES CRITICISM OF HIS FOREIGN POLICY

Talks to Aids About It; Appears Depressed.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—Unfavorable public reaction to President Roosevelt's foreign policy, or lack of policy, was discussed with concern by the executive with Democratic congressional leaders at the White House today.

Sen. Barkley [D., Ky.], majority leader of the senate, said on leaving the White House that "the downward trend of public opinion about our relations with our allies" had been discussed with the President. He added that he had a feeling that the forthcoming conference of the President with British Prime Minister Churchill and Russian Dictator Stalin "will clear up a lot of that."

Barkley said the President is "as aware as any one else" of the present trend of public opinion as reflected in editorials and newspaper dispatches. Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, said there is a "public uneasiness" over foreign affairs of which Mr. Roosevelt is cognizant.

Appears Depressed.

At the ensuing White House press conference the President was asked about his discussion of adverse public opinion with his congressional advisers but only mumbled an unintelligible avoidance of comment. The jauntiness he usually musters up for a press conference was wholly wanting and he appeared to be greatly depressed. His mood is variously attributed to the war news from Europe and to the unfavorable reception of his message to congress, which he had expected would be hailed as a great state paper.

In anticipation of the "full dress" debate on foreign policy in the senate tomorrow Connally said he would engage in it only to challenge criticisms of the government which he considered unjust and not based on facts.

Challenges Critics.

"I challenge those who from time to time says this nation has no foreign policy," Connally said.

"We have no foreign policy in the sense of grabbing territory all over the world and seeking trade advantages . . . [but] . . . American hopes for international peace, self-determination, the rights of small nations and the sanctity of treaties are well known to people who want to know."

Sen. Shipstead [R., Minn.], a member of the foreign relations committee, took the President to task for saying in his message that "evil and baseless rumors" against the Russians, the British, and American military commanders all bear "the same trade-mark—'made in Germany.'"

"Does he expect our people to believe," said Shipstead, "that the proposed butchery of Poland by Russia, with the consent of Britain, the destruction of Finland's freedom, possibly to be followed by domination over the Scandinavian peninsula, the rape of the Baltic states and the poker game of power politics in the Balkans, are mere German rumors?

Derides Rumor Charges.

"Does he expect our people to believe that Britain's affair in Greece is a mere rumor, planted by Germany?

"Does he want us to believe that German rumors are responsible for the fact that the American people are now coming to believe that the Atlantic Charter is nothing but a few scraps of paper?

"Does he not know that we learn these things from reports of Churchill's speeches in the British parliament, from the Manchester Guardian and other official papers like the Pravda, the official organ of Stalin, and our own press correspondents abroad.

"We have only in the last six weeks been given to understand what appear to have been the secrets of Moscow, Quebec, Cairo, and Teheran."

From Democratic internationalists also came criticism of the Roosevelt foreign policy. Sen. Fulbright [D., Ark.], author of the post-war peace resolution adopted by the house, said that "blunders of inaction rather than of action" are delaying the creation of a world security organization and jeopardizing future peace.

EACH CITIZEN'S SHARE OF DEBT IS NEAR $2,000

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—Your share of the public debt is going above $2,000 in the next fiscal year.

If you're interested in settling up—even if you do, you'll have to keep right on paying taxes—the exact figure is calculated at $2,118.12 on June 30, 1946. That will be an increase of $293.47 over the $1,824.65 per capita debt next June 30.

It's going to cost us $602.20 apiece to finance the war and keep the government going thru the year starting July 1. The cost this year is $722.38.

BRITISH DRIVE GREEK REBELS INTO MOUNTAINS

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 9 (AP).—British mobile units driving left wing ELAS forces before them have occupied Thebes and were pushing northward today toward the Parnassus-Helicon range, straddling Greece about 100 miles north of Athens, where the guerrillas are expected to make a stand.

A British announcement said only slight resistance was encountered at Thebes and British troops had broken thru an ELAS roadblock in a narrow defile on the shoulder of Mount Pateras, just south of the town. The British reported 25 ELAS were killed in a brief skirmish for Thebes and 250 captured. Just beyond the town 50 more prisoners were taken and a 75 millimeter gun was captured.

Seize Ammunition.

In the town the British reported capturing 20 tons of ammunition, rifles and machine guns, and one 105 millimeter field gun.

Most of the Attica peninsula has been cleared of ELAS forces which the British said at one time numbered about 25,000 men. During the month long fight for the capital and the port of Pireaus it was estimated 4,000 ELAS were killed or wounded and another 12,000 captured.

In Athens, which was slowly returning to normal, the newspaper Elephthera said the administrative council of the Greek general federation of labor had presented Lt. Gen. Scoble, British commander, with a memorandum expressing gratitude for his measures in liberating Athens.

The government appealed to Athens civilians to return to work and said the Red Cross and allied authorities were ready to bring in relief supplies.

Set Up Committee in Germany.

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP).—The German agency Transocean said today that a "Greek national committee" had been formed in the reich under the leadership of the former deputy prime minister, Hector Tsiornikos. The broadcast said the organization would "look after Greek national interests and after many Greek workers in Germany." It said other leading members of the committee included Jankie Passadakis, a former governor of Crete, and Konstantin Goulas, leader of the "Free Greek movement" known as the "E. E. E."

F.D.R., CHURCHILL REPORT UPSURGE IN U-BOAT WAR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—U-boat warfare "flared into renewed activity" during December, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill reported tonight, describing the increased activity by German submarines as "but another index that the European war is far from over."

They said allied losses of merchant shipping increased, but despite the losses "the united nations are regularly continuing to supply their expanding armies over the world, enabling them to resist the attackers or drive back the foe."

"The allies continue to sink the enemy undersea craft in widely separated parts of the world," their monthly joint statement said.

FERGUSON AGAIN SEEKS PROBE OF PEARL HARBOR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] disclosed today he will renew his demand for a senate investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster in the new session of congress. Ferguson is seeking a full inquiry by a committee of 10 senators.

He proposed the investigation late in the last session, but the session ended before the senate military affairs committee was able to act to bring the measure to the floor. Ferguson said he will reintroduce the same proposal within a few days and predicted it will meet with favorable response.

REDS' DRIVE IN SLOVAKIA NEARS KEY ROAD TOWN

Half of Budapest Is Held by Russians.

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Red army won control of approximately one-half of Budapest today by capturing another 350 blocks. In an outflanking drive to the northwest of the Hungarian capital the Russians drove to within four miles of the strategic Slovak communications center of Komarom, the soviet command announced tonight.

The German counter-offensive striving to relieve the encircled Nazi garrison in Budapest appeared stalled, the Russians again telling of repulsing the Nazi attacks. The Germans for the second straight day failed to report gains toward the capital.

The Russians, declaring that Budapest has 4,500 blocks, now have claimed capture of a total of 2,300. The areas captured today included an airfield, a park, an oil refinery, and a machine factory.

Suburb Is Occupied.

The Russians claimed occupation of the southeastern suburb of Pesterzsebe and said their troops were driving thru adjoining Kispest. An earlier report from Berlin acknowledged German evacuation of Kispest "and other southeastern suburbs."

The westward drive of the Russians north of the Danube, which threatens to outflank the Nazi forces striking at Budapest below the river, gained approximately three miles and reached Izsa, only about four miles east of Komarom. Five other towns were taken in the advance, the Moscow war bulletin said.

Drive 50 Miles from Austria.

This drive thru former Czechoslovakian territory ceded to Hungary is aimed at Bratislava and the Austrian border, both about 50 miles from the farthest soviet advance.

Enemy infantry and tanks pushing toward Budapest from the west and northwest again were repelled with heavy losses, 60 Nazi tanks having been knocked out in fighting in this sector Monday, the Russians announced. The Germans were last reported within 15 miles of the capital.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

The German war bulletin broadcast yesterday said:

"In southeastern Croatia the enemy attacking to the south of Vukovar on the Danube was beaten off suffering heavy losses.

"In Hungary our formations south of the Vertes mountains have pushed on as far as the area north of Szekesfehervar against tough soviet resistance. Between the Vertes mountains and the Danube they smashed fierce enemy counter-attacks.

"Soviet attacks directed against the east front at Budapest by day and night were frustrated. In numerous attacks, repulsed on either side of the Danube, 99 soviet tanks once again have been shot up, and 98 guns have been seized.

"German battleplane formations, joining in the ground fighting in spite of bad weather and snowfalls, destroyed 27 more soviet tanks. Luftwaffe flak shot up ten more. Altogether the soviets lost 136 tanks in Hungary yesterday.

"In the western part of the bridgehead across the Vistula at Baranov there was lively mutual fighting activity. In Courland a major number of tanks were knocked out in local offensive and defensive actions north of Doblen."

BUDGET MESSAGE OF ROOSEVELT ASKS 87 BILLIONS

BY ROBERT YOUNG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C. Jan. 9.—President Roosevelt today presented his 13th consecutive deficit budget. He asked congress to appropriate nearly 87 billion dollars to cover war expenditures and the cost of other federal government operations for the coming fiscal year, compared with the 100 billions he requested a year ago.

The President's annual budget message was more than a presentation of anticipated receipts and expenditures. The lengthy document requested future legislation and discussed lend-lease, foreign reliefs, reconversion, demobilization, and post-war jobs, agriculture, international monetary programs, social security, and public works.

Mr. Roosevelt said he was proposing "no substantial change" in tax legislation at this time, altho revenues are expected to decline as a result of the anticipated decrease in expenditures.

New Debt Limit Asked.

He estimated, however, that the national debt—now 232½ billion dollars—will reach 252 billion by next June 30, and 292 billion a year later. Before the debt mounts to the latter total, he told congress authorization for a further increase in the present 260 billion dollar debt limit will be necessary.

While the President said that he was asking $86,767,000,000 from congress for the next fiscal year—which begins next July 1 and ends June 30, 1946—he said that actual expenditures probably will total $83,103,000,000, compared with $99,688,000,000 to be spent in the current fiscal year. The course of the war will determine what finally is spent, he said.

The President's estimate of congressional authorizations for the 1946 fiscal year included 73 billion dollars for direct war purposes, against 85 billions this fiscal year and 120 billions in the 12 months ended June 30, 1944. Mr. Roosevelt proposed a tentative estimate of 70 billion dollars for actual war expenditures—as distinct from appropriations—in the coming year, compared with an estimated 89 billions for the current year.

Asked 100 Billion Year Ago.

The 87 billion dollar figure requested from congress today compares with the 97 billions expected to be appropriated this year in response to Mr. Roosevelt's request a year ago for 100 billions. The peak authorization was 128 billions in the fiscal year of 1944.

Borrowing requirements during the 1946 fiscal year will amount to an estimated 40 billion dollars, compared with 51 billion this year, the President said. Interest on the public debt will rise next year by an estimated 750 million dollars to 4½ billion, reflecting the current increase in the outstanding debt, he announced. No change in current interest rates is expected, he added.

Net federal receipts are expected to decline from 45 billion 700 million dollars in the current fiscal year to 41 billion 300 million in 1946, Mr. Roosevelt said. This development reflects principally the estimated 17 billion dollar decrease in war expenditures, he explained, since such a reduction in government spending will mean smaller individual and corporate incomes and less tax receipts.

Opposes Tax Reduction.

The President, who demanded higher taxes a year ago, said in this year's budget message that war time taxes must be maintained as long as large scale war spending is necessary. Declaring that there is no justification for tax reductions as long as the nation is fighting a major war, he promised that when war developments permit smaller expenditures, "minor tax adjustments will become possible and desirable."

The President opened his message with the declaration that as fighting all over the globe reaches "a climax of fury," it is the supreme duty of those on the home front to back the fighting men and women to the limit. At the same time, the nation must look ahead, he continued, and must be ready to throw its entire effort into the war against Japan as fast as the war in Europe permits. Finally, plans must be made to transform a total war economy into a "full employment peace economy" whenever demobilization becomes possible, he said.

"We must make sure that our armed forces can plan their procurement programs for continuing global war," Mr. Roosevelt went on. "I shall transmit detailed recommendations for war appropriations by early spring, in time for the congress to act on these requests before the beginning of the new fiscal year.

"Actual expenditures of the federal government depend largely on the course of the war. I have not made in the past, and I shall not now make, any prediction concerning the length of the war. My only prediction is that our enemies will be totally defeated before we lay down our arms."

Reviewing the war program, the President said the initial equipment of the army and navy and their air forces, and war construction are "substantially" complete.

An army and navy three times the strength at the time of Pearl Harbor is fighting or deployed overseas, Mr. Roosevelt said. Lend-lease aid totaling 36 billion dollars has been provided to allies of the United States, and 4½ billion in goods and services have been received in turn, he said.

Lend-Lease a Weapon.

In discussing lend-lease, Mr. Roosevelt asserted: "Lend-lease has been and will be an instrument of war; it will be liquidated with the end of the war."

But when the war draws to a close in any theater, he continued, it may become "urgently necessary" for the United States to assist in relieving distress in the liberated areas. Congress already has appropriated 1 billion 350 million dollars as the contribution of this country to the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration for use "after the battle lifts," he said.

President Roosevelt told congress that the cumulative total of war program appropriations and authorizations from July 1, 1940, to next June 30 will be 392 billion 300 millions and by June 30, 1946, will have reached an estimated 449 billion 700 millions. The cumulative totals of actual war expenditures on those respective dates will be 288 billion 800 millions and an estimated 358 billion 800 millions, he said.

Discusses Post-War Costs.

Turning to what he termed "the aftermath-of-war category," Mr. Roosevelt reported that total expenditures for war veterans, public debt interest, and tax refunds have increased from 1 billion 600 millions in 1939 to an estimated 7 billion 200 millions in the current fiscal year, and probably will amount to 9 billion 800 millions in the coming fiscal period.

He called attention to the fact that the 1946 total of "aftermath-of-war costs" alone is larger than the entire federal budget of five years ago.

He said that altho the full impact of the veterans program will not be felt until the years following demobilization, total estimated 1946 requirements of 2 billion 623 million represent about 20 per cent of appropriations for other than direct war purposes.

Asks Funds for Agriculture.

To assure continued agricultural production at high levels, the President informed congress, he recommended department of agriculture and war food administration appropriations totaling 512 million dollars, or somewhat less than the authorizations for this year. Mr. Roosevelt asked that the borrowing authority of the farm security administration be raised from 67 to 125 million dollars for rural rehabilitation and from 15 to 50 million dollars for the tenant purchase program.

He then asked congress to increase the borrowing authority of the rural electrification administration from 25 to 150 million dollars, and said he already had given his approval to the recommendation of the war food administrator for an increase of 2 billion dollars in the borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit corporation. He announced further that he will recommend "in the very near future," appropriations for financing the revived program for crop insurance.

Problem of Employment.

In the portions of his message dealing with demobilization, post-war employment, and reconversion, the President said that large scale demobilization can hardly be expected to begin during the period covered by the budget, but that nevertheless the nation must not be caught unprepared for peace. He asserted that after the war—or "before long"—it may be necessary to have total employment of 60 million men and women.

Mr. Roosevelt stated that war spending has resulted in more than full employment in the nation, then raised the question of what will the outlook be when federal expenditures are reduced to "50 and 25 billion dollars annually in the post-war years." The federal budget averaged 8 billion dollars a year in the four years before the war.

"Manifestly, full employment in peace time can be assured only when the reduction in war demand is approximately offset by additional peace time demand from the millions of consumers, businesses, and farmers, and by federal, state, and local governments," the President said.

Asks Employment Laws.

To promote employment opportunities and assure proper occupational adjustment of returning veterans it will be necessary to enact permanent legislation for a national employment service, he continued. He also urged preparation of present labor dispute adjustment machinery for the reconversion period.

President Roosevelt recommended extension of the economic stabilization act before its expiration June 30 because, he said, it will be necessary to retain allocation and price control during reconversion as long as certain raw materials and finished goods are scarce.

Recommended appropriations under the general public works program in the 1946 fiscal year total 279 million dollars, an increase of 93 million over the current year.

The President declared that the international monetary fund and bank for reconstruction agreed upon last July at the united nations financial conference will be integral parts of a broad program for international coöperation in "areas of economic contact."

Berlin Gets U. S. Budget Figures an Hour Early

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP).—A full hour before President Roosevelt's message was to be released in Washington today, the Berlin radio said he had asked congress to approve an expenditure of 83 billion dollars for the coming fiscal year. Washington advances covering the message for release, expected about noon eastern war time [11 a. m. Chicago time], had been transmitted in some cases by radio. The enemy station apparently recorded these.

CHARGES BIDDLE AIDED CORCORAN IN TRUST CASE

Littell Calls Action 'Low Point' in Justice.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—Norman H. Littell told the senate war investigating committee today that Atty. Gen. Biddle's settlement of the Sterling Products corporation case marks "the lowest point in department of justice history since the Harding administration."

Littell is the man President Roosevelt fired from the post of assistant attorney general Nov. 30 at the height of a feud between Littell and Biddle that rocked the capital.

The Sterling Products corporation action was a keystone case, according to Littell, in German economic warfare in the western hemisphere. He told the committee that the corporation had come under German domination and that it served in direct opposition to the United States even to the end of subsidizing Gestapo agents.

"Dominated by Corcoran."

Nevertheless, Littell said, Biddle never took the case to a grand jury, but permitted the company and individual defendants to get off with $5,000 fines under a consent decree forbidding further violations.

Littell reported to the committee that the settlement was "completely dominated by Tommy Corcoran thru his influence over Mr. Biddle." This is Thomas G. [Tommy the Cork] Corcoran, former White House adviser.

Littell said the case was settled Sept. 5, 1941, the day after Biddle became attorney general. Corcoran represented the Sterling firm, according to Littell, and had been working to have Biddle appointed attorney general.

Charges Many Sided.

Littell's charges were contained in a voluminous report to the committee, to which he appealed in his feud with Biddle before being fired. The report bristled with accusations against Biddle, Corcoran and numerous Washington officials, and even brought in the New York Stock Exchange.

One of Littell's most spectacular charges was that the Savannah [Ga.] shipyards company's plant was built with lend-lease funds advanced to its parent organization, the Empire Ordnance company, for the manufacture of guns. The Savannah company, Littell said, had Corcoran as legal counsel.

Littell gave this background of the Sterling Products corporation, a drug firm which he said is now the Sterling Drug company: It purchased the German Bayer company after World War I. on condition that ownership remain 100 per cent American. Later it came under domination of the German I. G. Farbenindustrie. The justice department investigated the Sterling firm shortly before the United States entered World War II.

Races Against Time.

Littell said that when justice department attorneys learned that Corcoran represented Sterling, they tried to speed up legal action. Meanwhile, Littell asserted:

"Tommy Corcoran was engaged in a race with time to stop the investigation before it reached such a conclusive stage, to get the cases filed on a civil basis with consent decrees merely restraining further violation of the anti-trust laws and above all things to prevent the presentation of the evidence to a grand jury. . . .

"It was common knowledge that Tommy Corcoran was in and out of the department of justice and it was also known that he was working hard to secure Mr. Biddle's appointment as attorney general."

Biddle was acting attorney general when he became attorney general.

Escaped Grand Jury Quiz.

Littell said the company was permitted to admit its violation of the law on an information [an accusation substituted for an indictment] and thus escaped a grand jury investigation.

"Beyond all shadow of doubt," Littell said, "this case is one of the most significant, not only in the history of the department of justice, but in the history of the country, and its settlement without submission of all the evidence to a grand jury marks the lowest point in the history of the department of justice since the Harding administration.

"The settlement was not only influenced by Tommy Corcoran, it was completely dominated by Corcoran thru his influence over Mr. Biddle.

Other Crimes Suspected.

"If the case had gone before a grand jury, the jury could have reviewed documents of the history of this company right down to Pearl Harbor, and might have discovered additional crimes, such as conspiracy or fraud against the government to obtain patents. There could have been numerous true bills returned for different crimes, rather than the one count in the indictment."

Littell said the Sterling firm, which supplied drugs vital to the war program and civilian life, had its funds diverted to spread German propaganda. There was a "blind" office in the United States, he said, set up to receive money from Sterling.

Littell submitted a list of American companies against which the department of justice obtained indictments.

Magic of Corcoran.

"Are American owned companies to be prejudiced," Littell demanded, "by their failure to employ Tommy Corcoran?"

Littell told the committee that the Empire Ordnance company, parent of the Savannah Shipyards company, was started by Frank Cohen of New York on "a shoestring personal investment of $5,000."

The government sought to acquire the Savannah shipyards by condemnation. Littell says Biddle wanted to settle the case thru friendship for Corcoran, after the government had offered $985,665 and the owners had asked $2,187,000.

Littell finally tried the case and the company got $1,285,000 from a jury. Littell further says securities and exchange commission attorneys refused him confidential information on the company because they feared as a result of Corcoran's friendship for Biddle it would find its way to Corcoran.

Lend-Lease Diversion.

Littell's statement to the committee today said:

"Had SEC investigations been available to justice department attorneys, they would reveal that construction of the Savannah shipyards was financed in the first instance by diverting lend-lease money advanced to the Empire Ordnance company for other purposes.

"While the British purchasing commission brought an end to this practice after discovering the diversion of funds advanced the Empire Ordnance corporation for the manufacture of guns, nevertheless several thousand dollars of lend-lease money were used to finance construction of the shipyards.

"Government counsel might successfully have contended, if such information had been available, that no reimbursements of costs should be made by the federal government to the extent that diverted lend-lease funds were used, on the theory that a constructive trust was created in favor of the United States."

Biddle Denies Hindrance.

Littell said Biddle has denied SEC withheld information and that Biddle has quoted Chairman Ganson Purcell of SEC as authority. Of this, Littell commented:

"Ganson Purcell was head of the trading section of SEC in 1941. On his desk was evidence that Charles Harding, chairman of the New York Stock exchange and a member of the firm of Smith Barney & Co., one of the most powerful companies having seats on the exchange, had violated the law and the exchange regulations, such as by 'trading against the book.' Purcell was pressing for Harding's prosecution.

"Following so closely on the Whitney scandal there was a great desire within the stock exchange to avoid another shock to the public confidence. Tommy Corcoran . . . arranged for Emil Schram, then at RFC, to become president of the stock exchange. Mr. Purcell was elevated to a position on the commission, and the charges against Harding were not pressed.

Wonders About "Indebtedness."

"Has Purcell's indebtedness to Tommy Corcoran anything to do with his present rallying to the cause of Mr. Biddle and his 'good friend,' Tommy Corcoran?"

Littell has asserted that Biddle sought his ouster because of Littell's denunciation of administration projects before congressional committees, among the projects being the late Navy Secretary Knox's contract with the Standard Oil Company of California for the Elk Hills naval reserve oil.

Littell attacked Knox's oil contract today as "loaded with booby traps," and said only Biddle and Interior Secretary Ickes "are lavish in their praise."

QUESTION WAR PLANT BOSS ABOUT $30,000 SPARE PARTS SCHEME

Thomas J. Lane, 55, ex-convict superintendent of maintenance at the Kropp Forge company, 5301 Roosevelt rd., Cicero, was held in the Cicero police station last night while Assistant State's Atty. C. Vernon Thompson investigated charges that he fleeced the company by operating a dummy spare parts supply house.

Thomas J. Lane.

An incomplete audit disclosed that checks for more than $30,000 were issued to pay bills prepared by Lane for supplies that were not received, Kropp officials told Thompson. They said at least one supply house appeared to be a fictitious concern, and others were being investigated. Checks mailed to a purported business address in Cleveland, O., were returned to Lane's wife, Beatrice, Thompson said.

Lane, who lives in a hotel at 4000 Washington blvd., has been employed by the Kropp company for five years. He was reëmployed last April after he was freed of a charge of operating a confidence game. His police record dates from 1909, and he served four prison sentences, including one in Leavenworth for mail fraud. A petition for a writ of habeas corpus will be heard in Criminal court at 1 p. m. today.

Base on Gironde River Bombed, Germans Report

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The German war bulletin yesterday said the greater part of the bathing resort of Royan, at the mouth of the Gironde river in France, has been levelled by an allied bombing and that 1,000 Frenchmen, half the remaining population, "fell victim" to the attack. About 21,000 German troops at last report were in the Gironde area barring access to Bordeaux port.

BILL FOR DRAFT OF NURSES 18-45 OFFERED HOUSE

'Not Necessary'

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9 (AP).—Opposition to the drafting of nurses was expressed in an interview here tonight by Miss Katharine J. Densford, president of the American Nurses' association. Such drafting, she said, will not be necessary now that the public and the nursing profession realize the urgent need. There has been a "tremendous response" to the President's call, she added.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP)—Steps were taken today in congress and the war department to meet the army's shortage of nurses, which President Roosevelt said is so grave that a draft should be undertaken.

Rep. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the house military committee, introduced a bill for induction of registered nurses into the army, as requested by the President Saturday in his message to congress.

Civilian Aid Named.

The army announced the surgeon general's office will take a hand in the recruiting of nurses, previously the sole responsibility of the Red Cross.

Surgeon Gen. Norman T. Kirk appointed Evelyn Blewett, staff manager of the war advertising counsel, as civilian consultant on nurse procurement.

The President had said the army needs 20,000 more nurses and that more than 1,000 are hospitalized now, most of them from overwork.

Used to Be Lawyer, Says F. D. R.

He told his news conference today the justice department had found ample legal authority for induction of nurses into the fighting forces. Asked which law provides the authority, the President suggested that the questioner consult the department of justice.

He, the President, only used to be a lawyer, he added.

May's nurse draft bill would require the registration of all qualified nurses between 18 and 45 years of age. They would be assigned to medical duty if found qualified, but they would receive only a private's pay if inducted. Draft boards could defer registered nurses considered essential in civilian life.

May expressed hope it would not be necessary to induct nurses. He said many would join as commissioned officers rather than face induction.

Fireman William Trainor, 51, of hook and ladder company No. 23, suffered a heart attack yesterday while wading in hip deep water in the rear of a building at 4817 Irving Park rd. to fight a 2-11 alarm fire. He was taken to his home a block away at 4819 Dakin st. Chief Deputy Fire Marshal Michael Cody estimated the fire damage at $15,000. The building is occupied on the first floor by the Dorothy Wyand beauty shop and on the second floor by physicians' offices.

1918 Argonne Battle Won; Pain in Neck Ends for Vet

For 26 years Walter Ford, 53 years old, war worker, 616 N. Porter av., Elgin, had to endure a recurring pain in the neck, but not any more. Yesterday a sliver of shrapnel which entered his neck during the battle of the Argonne, Nov. 1, 1918, worked its way to the surface of the skin and was removed with tweezers.

DEMOCRATS PUT LUCAS, HATCH ON FOREIGN GROUP

Internationalists Given Big Senate Posts.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington D. C., Jan. 9.—The Democratic steering committee of the senate today named three of its party's internationalists to the senate foreign relations committee. They were Senators Hill [Ala.], Hatch [N. M.], and Lucas [Ill.]. Sen. Connally [Tex.] was renamed chairman.

Hill and Hatch teamed with Senators Burton [R., O.] and Ball [R., Minn.] last year in sponsoring the "B2-H2" resolution calling for outright participation of the United States in world politics. The resolution was dropped by the foreign relations committee in favor of Connally's resolution proposing a world security organization.

Lucas is recognized as a spokesman for President Roosevelt's foreign policies in the senate. Following his appointment today, he told reporters he considered the foreign policies portion of the President's report to congress Saturday as "admirable and statesmanlike" and that he expected the President's forthcoming conference with Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain and Premier Stalin of Russia will be "to the best interest of the United States."

Unanimously for Lucas.

Lucas received the votes of all of the 14 members of the steering committee present. Hill received 13 votes and Hatch 11.

The name of Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.], a leading critic of the President's foreign policies, who had been mentioned as a candidate, did not come before the steering committee. Earlier, he had told reporters he believed he could do the country more good as an independent critic than as a member of the foreign relations committee. Senatorial courtesy frequently prevents senators from criticizing actions of committees of which they are members.

Last week the Republicans in the senate named Senators Bridges [N. H.] and Wiley [Wis.] to the foreign relations committee. Bridges has fought for the principles of international security in the senate but has repeatedly attacked the administration for failing to state its foreign policy aims. Wiley has been a constant advocate of American sovereignty in foreign affairs.

Wiley Denounced.

Wiley was branded an "out and out isolationist" today by Sen. Green [D., R. I.] in an interview in which he criticized the Republicans for naming the Wisconsin senator to the foreign relations committee.

Commenting on Green's attack, Wiley said that "sometimes New Deal hatchet men get off balance." He said Green's statement, coming as it did after a conference with the President was a reflection on congressional integrity.

No major changes were made by the Democrats in assignments to other committees. Sen. Thomas [Utah] was elected chairman of the military affairs committee succeeding Sen. Reynolds [D., N. C.] who retired from the senate at the end of the last session. Senators Wagner [N. Y.] and Stewart [Tenn.] were named to Democratic vacancies on military affairs.

Lucas Quits Navy Affairs.

Lucas resigned his membership on the naval affairs committee in order to accept the foreign relations post. New Democratic members of that committee will be Senators McClelland [Ark.], Eastland [Miss.], Magnuson [Wash.], and Myers [Conn.]. The latter two are new members of the senate.

Sen. Fulbright [D., Ark.], with an internationalist record in the house where he served one term, was not considered for a foreign relations seat which he coveted. Instead, his committees will be banking and currency, education and labor, immigration, and public buildings and grounds.

WOMEN TAXICAB DRIVERS! NO, SAY UNION, COMPANY

Chicagoans won't be calling "Taxi!" to women drivers for a while, Dominick Abatta, president of local 777 of the Cab Drivers' union [AFL], and Michael Sokoll, president of the Checker Cab company, said yesterday, in spite of the man power shortage which has hit the taxi companies.

"There aren't five women in Chicago and suburbs who could operate cabs in their present condition," Abatta said. "Many motors and other mechanical parts are not running at maximum efficiency, and cab breakdowns are frequent."

Sokoll said his company is awaiting efficiency statistics from major communities in the United States already employing women drivers. His company employed 1,900 drivers in 1941, Sokoll said, and has lost 869 men to the war—351 to the fighting forces and the remainder to industry. Approximately 85 per cent of Chicago's cab drivers are over draft age, Abatta said, and are working 10 to 12 hours a day. Women drivers, if hired, would work only in the day time, he said.

Wins Children

MRS. WINIFRED L. LIPMAN.

Mrs. Winifred Lietzman Lipman, 29, of 1221 Glenlake av., was given custody of her three children yesterday in Circuit court by Judge Michael Feinberg, who rebuked attorneys for persuading her to surrender the children to her first husband when he divorced her in September, 1943.

Her first husband, Paul Lietzman, 33, a bartender, who has remarried and lives at 4923 Sheridan rd., was represented by Atty. Sam Winston, and obtained the divorce on the ground of desertion. Mrs. Lipman, who appeared yesterday with Atty. Robert E. Cantwell Jr., said Winston obtained his office associate, Atty. Joseph Honoroff, to represent her in the divorce action. She said she was informed that the state might claim the children if she fought for their custody, so she stipulated that Lietzman could have the three boys, who now are 6, 8, and 9 years old.

"There never was a clearer case of collusion in any court," said Judge Feinberg. "This woman was persuaded to give up her rights. If it is true that this is a common practice, it is high time that the guardians of legal ethics clean house."

PAC SPENT MORE THAN A MILLION TO ELECT F.D.R.

CIO Group Still Has $546,297 on Hand.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—The political action groups controled by Sidney Hillman, Congress of Industrial organizations leader, spent $1,327,774 in the 1944 election campaign, according to a report filed today with the clerk of the house.

The CIO-PAC also revealed itself the richest of present political organizations by listing an unexpended balance of $546,297 in its trade union account which was accumulated thru large contributions ranging up to $100,000 from union treasuries.

Adding the CIO expenditures to the $2,056,122 reported by the Democratic party last week gives a total of $3,383,896 spent in behalf of a fourth term for President Roosevelt and a New Deal congress. The statutory limit on expenditures by a political party is 3 millions. Republicans reported disbursements just under the legal maximum.

Reward Still Unrevealed.

Thus far, observers noted, no reward had been publicly announced by the White House for the support of the Hillman slush fund. Moreover, the house, on opening day, revived the committee on un-American activities, target of CIO-PAC propaganda thruout the campaign, and made it permanent.

Hillman's financial report was transmitted in two parts thru the national citizens political action committee and the CIO political action committee which were alleged to be separate organizations. The report revealed, however, that the two groups split office expenses of $36,000 a month.

The NC-PAC reported contributions of $380,306 and expenditures of $378,424. The "trade union account" of the CIO-PAC reported contributions of $101,606, an unexpended balance of $546,297 and total expenditures of $478,498. CIO-PAC "individual contributions" totaled $376,910 and expenditures totaled $470,852.

Large Expenses Listed.

Among the larger expenditures reported were: McMurray for Senator club, Milwaukee, Wis., $3,000; Biemiller for Congress club, Milwaukee, $1,000; Illinois Progressive Voters council, $1,000; Usher L. Burdick, North Dakota, $1,000; Augustus W. Bennet [R., N. Y.], who defeated Rep. Fish, $1,000, and the Byron G. Allen for governor committee, Minnesota, $6,000.

Most of the large contributors to the NC-PAC were from New York City. Listed as giving $1,000 each were Mrs. Felix Warburg, Mrs. S. Samuels, Henry A. Liebowitz, S. Kapell, Louis M. Friedman, H. Lecht, Nathan Langer, L. M. Rabinowitz, Nathan Strauss, Nelson Bengston, and Julius Rubin.

WOMAN BURNED BY STOVE EXPLOSION.

Mrs. Josephine Machowiec, 78, of 1341 Haddon av. was severely burned yesterday when her coal stove exploded. The ensuing fire did minor damage. Mrs. Machowiec was taken to County hospital.

WAR PRODUCTION DEBATE CENTER IN WARD TRIAL

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

At the conclusion of arguments in federal District court over the legality of the government's seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co. plants in Chicago and six other cities, Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday gave Ward's seven days in which to file its briefs and the government five days thereafter to file its answer. The court also asked each side to prepare statements of the facts and findings of law involved and to prepare a decree as it thinks it should be written. Attorneys for both sides indicated that more affidavits may be filed.

"The case will be tried on its merits," said Judge Sullivan.

The lawsuit, regarded as of high importance because it involves issues relating to Presidential powers, is on a petition by the government for an injunction to restrain Ward officials from interfering with army operation of the seized plants.

Debate Meaning of "Production."

Much of the final arguments dealt with the word "production" and its meaning. Opposing counsel, Stuart S. Ball for Ward's, and Solicitor Gen. Charles Fahy, metaphorically threw dictionaries at each other, as they delved into etymology. They tossed varying definitions at each other. Ball contended that operations in Ward's retail stories are not embraced in the categories in the war labor disputes act—plant, mine, or facilities—so that no sanction is given by the law for the seizures.

Fahy maintained that the word "production," as used in the law, includes distribution, to make available for human use, according to his dictionary.

Cravat and Kerchief Arguments.

Both lawyers sought to illustrate their definition of "production." Atty. Ball, pointing to his necktie, said, "Who would argue that because Ward's sells neckties, Ward's is engaged in manufacturing or mining neckties?"

Solicitor Fahy in his rebuttal was constrained to pull out his handkerchief with a chautauqua flourish. "I produce a handkerchief," he said. "I didn't manufacture it, but I make it available to human needs, and that is a definition of 'production.'"

"Counsel argues," said Ball, winding up his argument, "that the word production means something more than production, and includes 'storage, repair, maintenance, and distribution and supply'—in other words, almost the sum total of the nation's economic activities.

"Counsel knows very well that congress never gave the President the power to seize and operate corner grocery stores, neighborhood drug stores, garages, filling stations, and warehouses. Yet every one of those businesses would be a plant equipped for production under counsel's definition of that word. This strained attempt to twist a tortured meaning for the word production out of the statute defeats itself.

"The common and accepted meaning of the word production precludes any idea it can be extended to include distribution.

"Production" is accounted one of the key words in the issues of the case, and Atty. Ball quoted definitions from two leading dictionaries.

U. S. Challenges Ward Plea.

In rebuttal, Fahy said that on the question of whether Ward's facilities are equipped for manufacture, production, or mining, within the war disputes act, "manufacture" and "mining" are out. Application of the statute, he declared, hangs on the meaning given "production."

"We contend," he said, "that congress used the word production to include all steps in the preparation, construction, assembly, maintenance, storage, repair, distribution, and making available of articles or materials which may be required for the war effort or which may be useful in connection therewith."

Firm Upholds Liberty, Counsel Says.

Ball, Ward's chief counsel, in his summary declared that when the government asserts that Ward's actions jeopardized the established procedure for settlement of war time labor disputes, the government "really means that Ward's has refused to sacrifice the liberties of its employes to the board's policy of imposing the closed shop in the form of union maintenance upon all industry."

"Ward's," he continued, "believes that liberty required that every employe be free to join, refuse to join, or resign from a union without losing his job. That liberty must be preserved in war as in peace."

Atty. Ball repeated his argument that military seizure of the Ward plants violated the Bill of Rights, heart of the federal Constitution.

President's Power Questioned.

"The President," he said, "by his order seizing Ward's retail stores and warehouses, mail order houses, and general offices, acted in complete disregard of the basic guarantees of civil liberty. The seizure was a denial of due process of law, because congress never empowered the President to issue his order of seizure."

Further in his argument, Ball contended the President's order was in direct defiance of the will of congress because it seized properties where no interruption of business was threatened.

"It was also in defiance of congress," he said, "because it directed immediate changes in the working conditions in the seized properties in favor of a union which had evidenced its disregard for law and order.

Legislative Will 'Defied.'

"This defiance of congress is evidence of a cynical disregard for the branch of our government which in a democracy has the sole responsibility of deciding what restrictions must be placed upon the liberties of our citizens in time of war.

"This disrespect for the will of the legislature evidences a belief in the supremacy of the chief of state over congress, the courts, and the liberties of the people.

"The order of seizure is an assertion of autocratic power because it is based upon the claim that the President, as commander in chief, may in time of war make laws by executive decree, punish citizens for acts which congress has never made unlawful, and seize the property of any one of whose conduct he disapproves."

Cites "Disrespect" for Constitution.

Ball called upon the court to declare that the seizure of Ward's properties is in violation of the Constitution and the laws.

"Every element of the case," he said, "evidences a disrespect for congress, the courts, and the Constitution.

"Ward's employes have been threatened with criminal prosecution for refusing to obey army commands which they believed to be inconsistent with their duties. Ward's employes have been shadowed by the agents of the FBI. They have been threatened with immediate and discriminatory induction into the armed forces.

"Nor has the army hesitated to exceed the commands which the President gave it. Drafts have been drawn upon funds which were not covered by the seizure order, and the signatures of Ward's officials have been used without authority.

"These lawless actions have been taken without awaiting the decision of this court. The army has taken the law into its own hands, and has shown its disrespect for the court by its impatience to exercise power."

The seizure order, Ball concluded, proclaimed the belief that the President "has the power in time of war to seize private property without awaiting authority from congress."

"If this be so," he added, "then the Constitution is suspended and the will of the President is the supreme law."

Seizure Legal, Fahy Contends.

Solicitor Gen. Fahy in his rebuttal contended the seizure did not involve the Bill of Rights, and was not unlawful seizure. He said the government will answer charges by Ward's that coercion has been used by the army in the seizure, and he denied that the closed shop was an issue, though union maintenance is a slant in that direction.

"The main issue," he said, "is whether the President acted properly under authority granted under the war disputes act.

"Ward's counsel would have the court believe the seizure was only to help labor, but in this he is entirely mistaken. The first seizure was that of the North American Aviation company plant, which was seized to break a strike. Seizure of the coal mines and of the Philadelphia transit lines was in the same category. Where labor has been at fault, action has been taken against it.

Government View of "Production."

"A word takes color from the surroundings of a whole purpose, and in light of a definite end. 'Production' is a word of wide meaning. A court orders books to be produced—they are brought in. An author produces a play—actually he writes the play and many people combine to place it on the stage.

"Under the statute, the sentence, 'production, mining, and manufacture of essential goods required for the war effort,' is used in a general sense and is reasonably susceptible to the construction the government has given it."

Answers Ward Contention.

Replying to Ward's charge that the plant seizure violated the Bill of Rights, Fahy contended that the Bill of Rights also provides for just compensation for any property seized, and he said the government intends to comply.

Fahy cited price and rent control as extents to which the government may go in its effort for successful prosecution of the war. He quoted a recent Supreme court decision: "Citizens need not only think of their rights, but should also think of their obligations during time of war."

"The threat to the interruption of operation at Ward's," Fahy added, "gave the government and the President the right to seize the properties."

Present for the second day among the spectators were Sewell L. Avery, chairman of Ward's, and a staff of subordinate officials, and Samuel Wolchok, international president of the CIO Retail, Wholesale, and Department Store Employes union.

THE GALS PROVE GOOD MIXERS IN BARROOM CRISIS

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

With good men to put "behind the wood" getting scarcer daily and the increasing threats to put those who are left into the military services or the war plants, the barmaid-for-the-duration has definitely made her debut, Edward Flore, international president of the bartenders' union [AFL], said yesterday.

Women and girls all over the country are being taken into the bartenders' locals on permits, Flore disclosed. The permits, he said, allow the women to join the unions with the understanding they may remain only until the war ends. They then must resign and give way to the men who return from the army, the navy, and the assembly lines.

123 Women in Union Here.

In Chicago, it was announced, 123 women and girls already have donned the apron and taken to swabbing the mahogany. They have become members of local 278 of the bartenders' union, headed by James Crowley. Under the permits granted them they will work under the same conditions as men bartenders and receive the minimum Chicago wage of $45 weekly. They will pay $3.30 monthly for the permits under which they were admitted to membership.

Another 25 barmaids have been installed behind bars in Decatur, under the stewardship of Louis Morel, business agent of local 423. These in part have taken the places of 28 Decatur bartenders who are in the army and navy. Others will be enrolled to take the positions of men going into war plants soon.

Make Good Bartenders.

Flore, Crowley, and Morel all said the young women are making excellent barmaids. They are impersonal, they said, and seem even more able than their male predecessors to "keep order in the house."

"When it comes to mixed drinks they appear to have the touch," Morel said. "Maybe it's their instinctive food mixing ability. Anyway, they can shake or stir up a whisky sour or cocktail as if they were at home stirring up a cake."

ATTY. BUNDESEN SUED BY WIFE FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Gwen Bundesen filed suit for divorce yesterday in Superior court against Russell Bundesen, an attorney and son of Health Commissioner Bundesen, charging cruelty.

The couple were married Sept. 28, 1936, and separated Jan. 3 of this year. The complaint alleged that Bundesen struck his wife Dec. 2 and Jan. 3. Mrs. Bundesen asked custody of two children, Lynne, 7, and Karin, 3.

An appearance was filed on behalf of Bundesen.

POLK SUGGESTS CANAL EXPRESS ROAD TO LEMONT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9 [Special].—The state division of highways will extend its first survey of the abandoned Illinois and Michigan canal as a potential super-highway as far southwestward as Lemont, Wesley W. Polk, chief state highway engineer, said today.

He instructed H. E. Surman, the state's engineer in charge of designing highways, to inspect the old waterway with C. H. Apple, Chicago district engineer, as soon as weather permits.

Polk's suggestion that the superhighway could be built to Lemont, in the southwestern corner of Cook county, was a departure from previous plans to utilize the canal as a means of reaching the municipal airport and of providing downstate an express route into Chicago. The Cook county highway department has advocated the construction of a canal super-highway to Summit.

The canal right of way extends to Peru in La Salle county, and residents of that area have proposed that the entire route be used for a highway.

JUDGE SUGGESTS DRURY MAY TAKE POLICE EXAMS

Judge Joseph A. Graber of Superior court suggested informally yesterday that Lt. William Drury be permitted to take the civil service examination for promotion to captain. He will rule formally on the matter Friday.

Drury is petitioning for the right to take the examination on the ground that he was deprived of that right illegally when the regular examinations were held last September. At that time he was off the police force on a dismissal order which also had ousted six captains.

Judge Graber since then had invalidated the civil service order against Drury and the six, but the city is preparing an appeal and the men have not yet been restored to duty.

TUOHY TO BACK BILLS TO MODIFY STATE'S CRIMINAL STATUTES

State's Atty. Tuohy said yesterday he would back efforts of the Chicago Crime commission to bring about modification of certain criminal statutes in Illinois to facilitate prosecution.

The state's attorney said he would support a bill to be proposed by the crime commission modifying the present statutes governing prosecution of perjury cases. The proposed amendment would make the utterance of conflicting statements made under oath prima facie evidence of perjury.

Tuohy also indorsed a measure to compel defendants who intend to use an alibi defense to give notice of their intention in time for the prosecution to investigate the alibi claims.

The third proposed reform which will get his support, Tuohy said, will modify the search and seizure phase of the state constitution in its application to concealed weapons prosecution.

BEATEN EVANSTON WOMAN RECOVERING; EX-CONVICT HUNTED

Mrs. Ruth Randall Mayer, 34, of 2247 Orrington av., Evanston, wife of Carl G. Mayer, vice president of Oscar Mayer & Co., packers, who was severely beaten Saturday in her home by a man who gained entrance by representing himself as a radio repairman, was reported making satisfactory progress yesterday in Evanston hospital.

George Bristol.

Hospital authorities said it is too early to determine whether Mrs. Mayer will be permanently disfigured by her injuries, or to predict when she may be able to leave the hospital.

Lt. Anton Schultz and Sgt. Hubert Keish of the Evanston police were searching for George Bristol, 27, an ex-convict, whom Mrs. Mayer has identified from a picture as her assailant.

7 CHICAGO AREA YANKS AWARDED BRONZE STARS

Six Chicago area members of infantry units have been awarded the bronze star, the war department announced yesterday. They are: 1st Lt. Ross H. Sturtevant, 2239 N. Sawyer av.; Tech. Sgt. Thomas McNamer, 1938 Humboldt blvd.; Staff Sgt. Francis W. McLean, 2338 Monticello av.; Corp. Albert L. Melone, 2127 Lexington st.; Staff Sgt. Eric F. Leitner, 2313 77th av., Elmwood Park, and Staff Sgt. Richard J. McLaughlin, Yackley av., Downers Grove.

Mrs. Sophie Dehning, 183d st. and Kedzie av., Homewood, was notified that her son, Pvt. Melvin C. Dehning, has been awarded a bronze star for heroism on Leyte.

HARRIS IS NAMED G.O.P. LEADER IN ILLINOIS HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—Homer B. Harris of Lincoln, a second termer, today was appointed Republican majority leader for the house of representatives. Old timers could not recall an occasion when a second termer was given this important post. Benjamin S. Adamowski of Chicago was a third termer when he first served as Democratic majority leader.

Rep. Harris managed the campaign of Reed F. Cutler for the house speakership which, by the governor's wishes, went to Hugh Green of Jacksonville. The appointment of Harris by Rep. Green may placate Cutler.

Like the governor, Harris is 48 years of age, gray haired, with a soft spoken, easy manner that belies his determination. Born in Lincoln, he was graduated from Northwestern university and the University of Illinois law school. He was in the navy in World War I.

JEWISH CULTURE CENTER BOMBED; MOTIVE MYSTERY

A powerful bomb was exploded early today at the rear of Culture center, which occupies seven halls on the second and third floors of a three story building at 3223-25 Roosevelt rd.

The halls are used by more than two score Jewish groups. The first floor houses a shoe store and a hosiery shop which extend farther back than the upper floors. The bomb was placed on the roof of the stores at the second floor level.

The blast smashed a rear second floor door, broke 14 windows in the building and nine windows in a building at 1215 S. Sawyer av. No one was in the Culter center or stores at the time. Lt. William Ryan of the Fillmore st. station said the motive is a mystery. Police said the groups using the center are reputable. The possibility that a hall may have been used surreptitiously for gambling may be investigated.

GOVERNOR HINTS AT SPECIAL VOTE ON REVISED CODE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—Gov. Green today suggested that the final hurdle facing a proposed new Illinois constitution might be lowered by submitting the revised code to the voters at a special rather than a general election.

This plan would help the backers of a new constitution because the state law provides that to become effective it must win a majority of all the votes cast in the election. In a special election all who voted would be voting on the proposal. In a general election many voters might cast ballots for candidates but ignore the constitution.

In the past, however, the same plan failed to put across a revised constitution. In a special election Dec. 12, 1922, only 185,298 voters, or 16.70 per cent of the 1,106,696 who cast ballots, voted in favor of it.

KILLS DAUGHTER AND SELF AFTER WOUNDING THREE

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 9 (AP).—An unemployed World War I. veteran shot and killed himself in his home here tonight after killing one member of his family and critically wounding three others.

Coroner Edgar N. Mendenhall said that Gelle J. Smith, 43, an accountant who had been out of work, shot and killed his daughter, Audrey Smith, 22; wounded his mother, Mrs. Dora Smith, 73, his wife, Mrs. Nellie Smith, 48, and another daughter, Alma Jean Smith, 19, and then killed himself.

The coroner said Smith's mother and wife were not expected to live. He said Smith had been under treatment recently at the veterans' hospital at Indianapolis but had been dismissed.

Civilians Will Move from St. Nazaire Under Truce

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP).—An undisclosed number of civilians will be evacuated from the German held French port of St. Nazaire beginning Jan. 16, under a truce arranged between American and German military authorities, supreme headquarters announced today. The operation is expected to require 12 days.

DEATH TOLL PUT AT 23 IN CRASH OF AIR CLIPPER

7 Rescued; Big Sea Plane Wrecked at Trinidad.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP).—Pan American Airways today reported 23 of the 30 persons aboard the China Clipper lost their lives when the plane crashed last night at Port of Spain, Trinidad.

The plane was wrecked and sunk while alighting in the darkness. Seven of the 30 persons aboard were safe. Late word from Port of Spain said that nine bodies had been recovered.

No hope was held for the 14 missing, however, and W. O. Snyder, air line manager here, fixed the death toll at 23.

Investigators Flown to Scene.

Pan American officials pressed for an account of the crash. A plane bearing civil aeronautics authority and airline investigators was flown to Port of Spain today.

The 10 year old Glenn L. Martin built flying boat had flown the equivalent of 11 trips to the moon, piling up more than 12 million passenger miles.

The craft was manned by a crew of 13. The skipper, Capt. C. A. Goyette of Miami, was one of the survivors.

Missionary Family Missing.

All five members of a missionary family en route to Liberia apparently perished. Listed as missing, and thus presumed lost, were Paul John Whitlock of the Africa Inland Missions with headquarters in Brooklyn, his wife, and their three sons, 5, 3, and 2.

Another family of five was broken up. Charles Donald Williams, 29, of Rio de Janeiro and formerly of Detroit, Mich., survived, as did his daughter, Nancy, 7. But his daughters, Judith, 4, and Patricia, 2, and his wife, Margaret, 28, were known dead.

The Clipper was coming into Port of Spain about 9:15 p. m. when it crashed. It had left Miami at 6 a. m. yesterday en route to Leopoldville, Belgian Congo.

U.S. AND STATE ACTION FOR VETS URGED BY LEGION

Federal and state action to provide additional facilities for war veterans was asked by the Illinois American Legion's rehabilitation conference in the Hotel Sherman yesterday. Legislative and other governmental steps also were urged to pave the way for returning soldiers' reestablishment in civil life.

The conference called on the federal government to provide 1,000 additional beds at the veterans' hospital at Marion; 500 additional beds at Danville and the same number at Downey, near North Chicago, and went on record for more beds at Dwight.

The state, which provides for veterans under contract with the federal government, was asked to add approximately 300 beds each to the Elgin and Jacksonville hospitals to make complete units available for intensive treatment of veterans in those institutions.

Two amendments to the state small loans law were asked to enable veterans to take full advantage of the G. I. bill of rights. One change would permit veterans who are minors to obtain loans. The other would enable veterans to get loans under $500.

AFL RAPS WLB FOR WAGE HIKE AS VOTE NEARS

Action of the war labor board in granting a CIO request for a wage increase to employes of the Automatic Transportation company, 101 W. 87th st., in the middle of a campaign preceding a labor board election set for tomorrow to determine what union shall represent the workers, was protested yesterday by the company and John Schrier, American Federation of Labor organizer.

A spokesman for the national labor relations board said that the issuance of such an order by the WLB in the circumstances was irregular.

Schrier and Harry O'Reilly, AFL midwest director of organization, said that CIO union leaders are misrepresenting the order by telling employes that unless local 68 of the CIO United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Implement Workers' union wins they will not receive the increase. The increase will be paid, no matter who wins, O'Reilly asserted.

The increase, 5 cents an hour, retroactive to Sept. 1, 1942, amounts to $400 for some of the 600 workers involved.

NEW BUS LINE FOR JEFFERY AV. AREA ORDERED

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday ordered the Chicago Surface Lines to install a new bus line to serve approximately 11,000 persons—including 3,300 war plant workers—living in newly developed residential areas south of 95th st. and east of Jeffery av.

Beginning at 93d st. and Stony Island av., where it connects with existing facilities, the new line goes east to Jeffery av., south in Jeffery to Van Vlissingen rd., southeast in that road to 110th st., east in 100th to Torrence av., and south to end at 104th st. Returning, the buses will follow the same route.

MICHIGAN GRAFT PAYMENTS TOLD BY EX-LOBBYIST

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 9 [Special].—Testimony concerning graft payments to Michigan legislators during the 1939 session in behalf of a bill to license naturopaths was given today by Harry R. Williams, Wheaton, Ill., former lobbyist for the American Naturopathic Society of Michigan.

Williams was the chief witness called at the opening of a court hearing for 11 defendants indicted by Judge Leland W. Carr's one man grand jury on a charge of participating in a graft conspiracy to advance legislation.

Just before adjournment for the day, Williams, whose identity had been kept secret by Kim Sigler, special grand jury prosecutor, said that Sen. Carl F. Deiano, Kalamazoo Republican, one of the defendants, had fixed $2,500 as the price of getting the naturopath bill out of the house state affairs committee, where it eventually died.

Earlier in his recital Williams told of paying $500 to Henry F. Shea, former Laurium Democratic senator, to get him to introduce the naturopath bill after Chester M. Howell, former Republican senator from Saginaw, had declined to be its sponsor.

Williams said Howell had been paid from $350 to $400 for supporting the bill and that other defendants who received payments were: Edward J. Walsh, $200, including payment of "poker debts"; William G. Buckley, $100, and Francis J. Nowak, $50 to $75.

Walsh, Buckley, and Nowak are Detroit Democrats.

PREDICT FEW YOUNG FARMERS TO BE DRAFTED

Draft boards thruout Illinois are busy sending notices to farm youths, 18 thru 25, deferred because of their work, to begin reporting for preinduction physical examinations Monday. If the examination indicates they are available, their deferment will be reviewed by the board.

The examinations and the strict review of each youth's deferment, ordered in the recent Byrnes-Hershey directive, suggested by President Roosevelt, have brought a storm of protest from farm leaders. Any further drain of farm labor will reduce food production, they insist.

Most rural draft boards have searched their files for available men. Those deferred now have been considered time and again for induction and in each case new deferments have been given. There has been no change in the requirements for an agricultural deferment and it is the opinion of most farmers that federal orders to be "more strict" will not have any great influence in releasing more youths from farm work.

'TARZAN' TOILS IN T-SHIRT WITH MERCURY AT —15

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9 (AP).—The mercury hit 15 below here today but Carl Bourdeaux—known to his friends as Tarzan—insisted that if you relax and keep your mind off the weather you can't get cold.

To prove it he went about his work as a timekeeper at the Cargill shipyard at nearby Savage in trousers and a lightweight, short-sleeved T-shirt. "Tarzan," who is 33, has never worn a coat.

"I'm impervious to the weather hot or cold," he explained. "It is simply mind over matter. Relax and you're all right. It's only when you get tense that you freeze."

Bourdeaux insisted that he doesn't feel cold.

THE BBC FAILS TO HEED GEN. MONTGOMERY.

Only yesterday we expressed the hope that Field Marshal Montgomery's generous tribute to the American soldiers now under his command would mark the establishment of more wholesome relations between Britain and America. His warm words of praise for the American troops and for Gen. Eisenhower and the plea to forget their quarrel, addressed to sections of the British press that have been sniping at this country, seemed to us to promise a better day.

Unfortunately, Montgomery's advice was not taken seriously, even by his own government. Within 24 hours of his interview, the British Broadcasting corporation, a government monopoly, returned to the attack with slurring references to the situation as he found it when he took command of the northern wing. There were "no defense lines." The Americans were "somewhat bewildered." Supply lines were cut, few reserves were on hand, etc., etc. There were clear intimations in the broadcast that the chief credit for the repulse goes to Montgomery and his staff of British officers who have been at his side since El Alamein.

As if to underline this official intimation that the feuding will continue, the News Chronicle of London published an article by its political commentator, A. J. Cummings, resenting the announcement that no American generals are going to be fired. Mr. Cummings is apparently unwilling to leave the matter to Gen. Eisenhower's judgment. He wants to see heads roll. For its part in the vendetta, the London Daily Mail insists that events prove the necessity of enlarging Gen. Montgomery's scope of authority permanently.

Mr. Gene Currivan, the correspondent of the New York Times, who has been covering the 3d army's operations, has written in savage irony of the BBC broadcast. He can find no excuse for the assertion that, "thanks to Gen. Montgomery," the German drive was halted. American soldiers under Lt. Gen. Patton held the southern side of the bulge and stopped the Germans cold. "Up to this morning, when the British Broadcasting corporation went on the air," says Mr. Currivan, "correspondents here were under the impression that the 3d army had made a valuable contribution in stopping the German counter-offensive in the Ardennes. This illusion was shattered with an announcement that it was the British Field Marshal Montgomery who 'had stopped the German drive.'"

The statement of the BBC was heard all over the world as an official utterance of the British government. It will be taken as a cue not only by newspapers in Britain, but by stooges in this country, including individuals, newspapers, and magazines. Needless to say, the pantywaist diplomats in our state department have now been given the line they are to follow. This, we shall be continually reminded, is Britain's victory and the appropriate political conclusions are to be drawn from that fact. The new house committee on un-American activities should be on the lookout for propaganda to this effect.

It was only last Saturday, in his address to congress on the state of the nation, that Mr. Roosevelt asserted that all evidences of discord among the allies are to be attributed to German propaganda. "Every little rumor," he said, "which is intended to weaken our faith in our allies is like an actual enemy agent in our midst." That puts the BBC and half the London press on the spot.

In both countries, we are confident, the great majority of the people want united action and an all-out effort by all the allied armies to end the war as speedily as may be. So far as the United States is concerned, there can be few well founded complaints from our allies. We have placed by far the larger forces on the western front and have done by far the greater part of the hard fighting on the continent, and have suffered correspondingly large losses. Our country is not intriguing for enlarged power in Europe after the war and, indeed, is seeking nothing there except a stable peace. We still hope that Gen. Montgomery's effort to clear the atmosphere will succeed, but it is obvious that it hasn't yet.

JUNGLE TRIBUNE.

A few days ago we received the first copy of the Leyte edition of the Overseas Tribune, the most recent of the editions of this newspaper to carry news from home to our fighting men.

It wasn't, by the standards maintained in our own pressroom, any triumph of the graphic arts, but that didn't make any difference to the G. Is on Leyte, who grabbed the few available copies avidly and asked for more. It was printed on an old hand press, in the jungle, on rice paper captured from the Japs.

When we decided to meet the real need of men in overseas areas for news of America by printing a series of overseas editions, numerous technical problems arose. It would have been easy enough to print the papers in this country, but shipping space was not available to send them abroad, and in any event they would have been sadly out of date by the time they reached their destinations. Neither was it feasible to produce complete newspapers in the forward areas where the men were most starved for American news. The machinery and trained labor required for such operations do not exist in the jungles.

So a mechanical compromise was reached. The type is set and made up in The Tribune's own shops. By arrangement with the army air transport command, lightweight plastic printing plates are flown overseas. It is then up to our war correspondents to get the papers printed on the spot.

American troops landed on Leyte on Oct. 20. Arthur Veysey of The Tribune was with them. Ten days later, after the beachheads had been secured, applications were made for air priorities to fly plastic plates for the Leyte edition, and Veysey and Walter Simmons of The Tribune's staff, who also was at Leyte, were instructed to start arrangements for printing.

There were various delays in transmission. Veysey finally received plates for the editions dated Nov. 2, Nov. 9, and Nov. 16 in one batch. He found an ancient press which could be used by trimming the plates. Some of his other difficulties he has told Tribune readers about since—the tools available, a hammer, saw, and bolo; the use of scrap wood to back the plates for printing; of gasoline to dry the ink; of G. I. foot powder to keep the paper from sticking to the inked plates.

Joe Turek, who set type in The Tribune's composing room before he became a G. I., and Charles Beck, one of his pals from Chicago, appeared on the scene and went to work as volunteer assistants. Rodrigo, a Filipino boy, was the pressman—wage scale, 4 pesos an edition. With their help Veysey put the first Leyte edition of their home town paper in the hands of Chicagoans and other middle westerners fighting under Gen. MacArthur on the day before Christmas. The plates had left The Tribune eight days before.

Tribune reporters aren't expected to know about the mechanical problems of newspaper production. They are expected to use their ingenuity. Art Veysey used his and did a bang-up job for his paper and for the soldiers it was seeking to serve.

REGISTERING UNION AGENTS.

The state of Texas enacted a law requiring any paid organizer for a labor union to register with the state. R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, went to Texas, refused to register, made a speech soliciting union membership, was arrested, fined and sentenced to jail, and appealed his conviction. The appeal eventually was carried to the United States Supreme court.

The court, by a 5 to 4 vote, has just held the statute unconstitutional, as a violation of the rights to free speech and assembly. Mr. Justice Rutledge, who wrote the majority opinion, conceded the power of Texas to regulate labor unions but, repeating the words of Mr. Justice Holmes, held that any attempt to restrict free speech and assembly "must be justified by clear public interest, threatened not doubtfully or remotely but by clear and present danger." The majority of the court failed to find any such justification for the Texas statute, but held that where the action of the organizer goes farther than seeking members, and extends to such matters as the collection of funds or the obtaining of subscriptions, the state has the power to require a "reasonable registration."

The four justices in the minority, whose opinion was presented by Mr. Justice Roberts, contended that Texas had exercised its state powers validly. Mr. Roberts noted that the statute applied only to labor organizers who solicited for salary or profit, and that the act says nothing of speech but was aimed at solicitation of members.

Mr. Justice Jackson, while concurring with the majority, said in a separate opinion: "I must admit that in overriding the findings of the Texas court we are applying to Thomas a rule the benefit of which in all its breadth and vigor this court denies to employers in national war labor board cases."

Courts should not and in this case the court properly did not comment upon the wisdom of legislative acts. The fact is that the Texas law was a bad law, but the Supreme court, concerned as it was only with the question of constitutionality, could not say so.

There is a wide field in which the activities of labor unions should be regulated by law, and it is gratifying to see the court hold that states possess certain powers, which it did not define or limit, in this field. But the Texas act undertook to impose a limitation in a field where it is unnecessary and could well be vicious. It is not hard to fathom the state of mind of the Texas legislature in passing the statute. Its members considered that "northern agitators" were stirring up their native [and sometimes underpaid] labor and thereby disturbing peaceful labor relations in the state. The legislature undertook to stop this by placing these "agitators" under the control of a state licensing system.

It isn't the solicitation of members by unions or union agents that requires legislative restriction. It is the character of union leaders, and what they do to members, with the members' funds, and with the power that is derived from the organization, that needs regulation. The Texas act can well be written off as a misguided and rather foolish step in a field in which proper action, both by the states and the federal governments, is sorely needed.

EXPRESSING PATRIOTISM.

[Christian Science Monitor.]

Two women have been getting publicity in the newspapers lately. The first is said to live in St. Joseph, Mo., and is reported to have slammed a custard pie in the face of another who said she didn't care how long the war lasted because she was "making good money." A G. I. in France sent a dollar to the St. Joseph Chamber of Commerce for the patriotic pie heaver. The chamber of commerce, however, cannot find her. The fact is that she does not exist, and the story is just a variation of a yarn printed in almost every war work center.

The woman whose brand of patriotism we admire more is Mrs. Mary Slachaczynski, a scrubwoman in the La Salle Street railroad station in Chicago. Mrs. S. has recently been going off to school in the morning to study English and United States history. Finally she felt ready to become a United States citizen. When asked if she felt she was worthy of citizenship, Mrs. S. opened her purse and showed pictures of her two sons, one in France, the other in the Pacific; her Red Cross blood donation card, and $1,000 in war bonds "for my boys." Then she went off to her scrub brush and pail. There is more than one way, it seems, of expressing patriotic fervor.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. The word "bonanza" should make one think of which date? 1776 1812 1849 1861
2. Cider is normally obtained from which one of these sources?
   Kieffer Duke Elberta Jonathan
3. Which one of these trees should make one think of John W. Bricker? Red Oak
   Black Locust Cedar Buckeye
4. An aria is associated with which one of the following? Church Opera House
   Saloon Surveyor
5. Which one of these birds is nature's scavenger? Oriole Buzzard Woodpecker Albatross
6. You deserve one point for each correct matching of these men with their fields of endeavor.

WAR AMONG THE POETS.

The first issue of Pinnacle, bulletin of the newborn League for Sanity in Poetry, has come to the attention of this column, and we are pleased to learn that steps are being taken to chase the squirrels of modernism off the slopes of Mount Olympus. This group comes out of its corner slugging, but well aware that it is tackling a dangerous opponent who has the support of the referee himself, a daffy fellow by the name of Fashion.

"We must recognize," says Pinnacle, "that the forces arrayed against us are formidable and organized. One can hardly pick up a book-reviewing medium in any section of the country without reading the handwriting of those who would make of poetry a mockery and an outrage. One can hardly turn to a sophisticated magazine without finding prosy, obscure, unrhythmical, and often meaningless gabble occupying the poetic seat of honor. In the colleges no less than in the smoky dens of the bohemians, the Old Man of the Sea who goes by the name of modernism and surrealism has fastened itself upon the shoulders of poetry."

A contributor to Pinnacle warns its editors, however, that they will lose this fight. His letter says:

"It's all right to try for sanity in poetry, but have you stopped to consider that the vendors of the insane product are not always insane? In fact, they are often excellent business men and women. Ask any writer of beautiful traditional verse how much he is making. Then ask one of your e. e. cummings or Marianne Moores. You'll be surprised at the difference. As long as insane poetry can be made to pay, it will be written."

The prosperity of the insane poetry racket may be explained, in part, by the following announcement from the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

"The number of mental defectives and epileptics in state institutions increased from about 40,000 in 1920 to over 98,000 in 1940. The number of patients in state hospitals and a few other hospitals for mental disease increased from about 210,000 in 1920 to about 400,000 in 1940."

So it seems that the increase of squirrels on Mount Olympus may be attributed to the abundant nutfall in the adjacent valleys.

SONG OF A WEARY LADY.

let me settle back with the quiet days to the calm of dreamless nights
I would repose with prosaic ways for I have walked the heights

let me fashion my life of monotones of the plodding, graying hours
I would tread my small street's paving stones and look not there for flowers

O, the yellow sun and the crystal moon and the shadows on a peak had best be lost in the wind and soon if I'd find the peace I seek let me rock in a corner, rock and turn

then lilies, a fern and a silver urn to rot with me in sleep little girl.

Feline Cain and Abel.

"Aren't you feeling well?" I asked Ferdinand, my silver tabby cat, who was listlessly playing with Ronald, the catnip rat.

"Now that you mention it," he admitted, "I have been slightly under par the last week. Spots in front of the eyes, among other things."

"Green?" I asked.

"How did you know?"

"Because it's just a week ago that your brother arrived for a visit. You are no doubt also suffering from a light case of nose out of joint."

"The fuss people make over him," he cried in exasperation. "'Isn't he huge? Why, he's even bigger than Ferdinand—and much more gorgeous.' As if looks were everything. You ought to try carrying on an intelligent conversation with him. What a bore!"

"Your girl friend, the redhead, didn't think so."

"And that's another thing. He tells her he's from the south. She thinks he's a Kentucky colonel, at least. So now he's developing a drawl. If she knew, the so-called south is within a hundred miles of Chicago—and the sooner he heads back, the better for his health."

"I'll have no bloodshed," I said firmly. "After all, remember he is our guest."

"O, sure, sure," said Ferdinand. "But may I go on record as heartily agreeing with the guy who said, 'Guests, like fish, stink after three days'?"

E. F. asks: "What is the difference between option 1 and option 2 for the beneficiary of a national service life insurance policy? Option 1 says 'Payments will be made for 120 months certain.' Option 2 says 'Payments will be made for 199 months.' Over a period of years, would the payments on one of these amount to more than the other? Which would be best for a beneficiary 50 years old? What does the word 'certain' mean as used?"

Under the 120 payment plan, 120 payments are guaranteed, and if the beneficiary dies before the 120 payments are made, the remaining payments will be made to next of kin in the permitted class of beneficiaries. A little figuring generally will reveal that only about two-thirds of the face value of the policy will be paid if all the 120 payments are made. Option 2 [199 payments] guarantees 199 payments which generally pay out the face value of the policy. If the beneficiary would not be survived by any one in the permitted class of beneficiaries, the second option is perhaps the best, but if the beneficiary lives to collect only 20 of the 199 payments, no further payments will be made even if there are other beneficiaries to whom payments might be made.

IS "MORNING SICKNESS" A VITAMIN DEFICIENCY?

ONE of the most annoying manifestations that can come to the prospective mother is "morning sickness." Now and then the disturbance will become serious. It may be so difficult to retain nutriment that, despite repeated feedings with a carefully selected diet, weight and strength will be lost.

A year ago the suggestion was made that the situation might be ascribed to a vitamin deficiency. At any rate, subsequent to the administration of thiamin [B1] and pyridoxine [B6], many patients have improved markedly. Some received the drug by mouth; others, hypodermically. Results were sufficiently encouraging to warrant further trial.

Later, pyridoxine alone was tried and the dosage was based upon the amount of discomfort. If nausea appeared only in the morning, it was classified as relatively mild. If it extended thruout the day, it was moderate. If it was accompanied by violent vomiting, it was looked upon as severe, demanding prompt attention.

In all cases, the beginning dose was adjusted to the height and weight of the sufferer, and was introduced into the muscles. In certain women, a favorable response was observed after the first injection. Others required three portions each week, and little change was encountered until after the third or fourth "shot." No adverse reactions were noted and the substance was looked upon as harmless—something that any one could take.

As we would expect, the effect was more striking in the intractable types. It must be admitted that no one can tell how strong is the psychic influence of the procedure or in fact how much weight should be accorded the initial upset of the emotions. Oral use is frequently successful but results are not as speedy or as complete. Under this method, however, a fair number were symptom free within 48 hours after one or two tablets daily. In one series of 68 cases, absolute or practically total recovery was obtained. In another group of 27, nausea was banished after three days and vomiting, by the end of the fifth day.

One thing may be stated categorically—namely, that there were few indeed who were not benefited even tho entire cessation of the trouble failed to ensue. In a small percentage, actual vomiting ceased altho nausea remained. Apparently we have in this plan an excellent aid to one of the most distressing complications of what should be a perfectly normal process. Thus we have offered to us a simple remedy that bids fair to be effective.

We must not forget the importance of adhering to the rules of good hygiene and carefully prepared and balanced meals. Five or six small repasts per day may be supplied instead of the usual three. Occasionally sedatives will be valuable and we must recall that apprehension will need to be allayed.

A common—but erroneous—remark is, "Well, my mother and grandmother acted in this way with all their children and I guess I must follow suit."

TRENCH FOOT.

V. C. writes: Please settle a discussion. Was the trench foot of World War I. a ringworm infection or frostbite?

REPLY.

The condition was tantamount to frostbite. It was brought on by exposure to water and cold. Lack of exercise and a sluggish circulation were contributing factors.

Nugget of Information.

It may console all citizens who again are problemed with their income tax to learn that Sir Isaac Newton, the Einstein of his day, was, like the Einstein of this day, so baffled by elementary arithmetic that he could have been humiliated even by those Quiz Kids who are not masters of higher calculus, as is Joel Kupperman. No less an authority than Alexander Pope wrote that when Newton was master of the mint he was so confused he could not trust himself to keep the accounts but felt he must employ an accountant, as Einstein now does with his income tax returns. Or possibly he was just too busy watching apples fall.

Away, all you backers of Basic English. America has triumphed again. A new book just off the presses, "How We Live," has a vocabulary restricted to 714 words, a cut of 86 on Basic English. It is known as Basic American, and its sponsors say it is free of all technical, legal, economic, and emotional words. It deals with something called double entry thinking, meaning that every effect must have its cause, and is explained by the sponsors in the pungent sentence: "Things must come from somewhere before they can go anywhere." Alice in Wonderland, of course, said it better and long before: "When you have more of this, you can have less of that."

Crime and Punishment, Aleut.

First understatement of 1945: "Aleutian Islanders," a new brochure by George I. Quimby, anthropologist with the Chicago Museum of Natural History, states that punishment of children by the Aleuts was rare. The only type known, and common to all Eskimos, consisted of plunging a crying infant into snow or cold water. "This remedy," writes Mr. Quimby, "performed in winter amid broken ice, is very effectual."

INJUSTICE.

EASTERN FRANCE, Dec. 30.—I have read The Tribune for many years and always felt that if any one had a legitimate gripe which he wanted to make he could always do so in The Tribune.

Today, in the Stars and Stripes, we read that in Hood River, Ore., the Japanese-American soldiers' names have been scratched from the honor rolls and those of them who own land are advised to sell their property and never return.

Now we believe that enemy agents and aliens should be severely dealt with but that American citizens, who are fighting for their country, should get treatment like that is shocking. I think some one should wake up the smug citizens who have nothing better to do than aid the enemy by such tactics.

I have never seen the boys—Japanese-Americans to you, G. Is to us—fight, but from all accounts by others who have fought with them, they can't be beat. I have only come in contact with them as patients in our hospital. Without exception, we all agree, they are among our best patients and they look forward to going home just like all the rest of us.

If things like that are going on back in the states, with no one to look after their interests, then I'm afraid most of the things we are fighting for are a farce, and I, for one, will be ashamed to go home knowing that some of our boys lost their homes and chances to make homes while fighting for those same people who caused that loss.

WHAT HIROHITO'S WORTH ALIVE.

Whiting, Ind., Jan. 2.—The letter sent in recently by Henry Hammer of New Castle, Ind., indicates that he, like many, others, is in some confusion as to the reason that American airmen are so carefully instructed not to drop any bombs on the palace of the emperor of Japan. It's not out of love for the hare brained baboon, or diplomatic respect—nothing like that.

The Japs are fanatically loyal to hiszonor. Anything he says goes; no questions asked. If he told them to lay down their arms, hostilities would cease immediately. But if he were killed, we would find ourselves faced with the nasty task of having to slaughter the whole 90 million raving maniacs, every blasted one of them. So we let Mr. Big go on living until he is convinced that the hon. jig is up and gives the order to lay down arms.

WHY STALIN STALLS?

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Soviet Russia continues to aggravate the harmony among the united nations. As the American army in France and Belgium is exerting every effort to bring the war to an end, Russian forces are marking time around Budapest. It is easy to understand why there is no action in the vicinity of Warsaw. There are over 200,000 soviet agents feverishly at work within the still unoccupied Polish territory. When these agents report to Stalin that Poland is ready to be sovietized, then, and then only will the Russian forces find a way to advance at Warsaw. LEON T. WALKOWICZ.

PRO ATHLETICS.

Green Bay, Wis., Dec. 31.—I have just finished reading your Sunday paper and the Voice of the People, about professional athletes in war time, and wish to inform the A. E. F. veteran that I am a professional football player with the Green Bay Packers.

I have had seven years of military service and when this war broke out on Dec. 7, 1941, I tried to join any branch of the service that would take me, but was refused by the navy, army, marines, and coast guard. When my draft number came up two years after, I left my wife and served eight months, and then on an overseas examination was honorably discharged. I am hoping for another year of professional athletics in war time if it can raise the morale of our boys and I know that it does, for I have had letters from my buddies that are over there fighting.

PETE TINSLEY.

WARD'S AND WAR.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 31.—The administration tells us that the immediate future presents a most critical period of the war. They have increased draft quotas and are urging all persons in nonessential work to get a "war job."

Why in the name of common sense are they using the army to take over and operate the nonessential Montgomery Ward business? Why are workers engaged in a nonessential industry convinced that they are "striking for their country"? Why are they not willing to work for their country in a war job?

It certainly does not seem logical to urge every one to seek a war job and then use the army to operate a nonwar business, does it?

NO GARBAGE COLLECTIONS.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—This is the last day of the year and since election day our garbage can has only been emptied once or twice. I have already put a fire in it twice so we could add a bit more. It seems funny that in a ward with a Democratic alderman, the cans are only cleaned around election time, and we have to put up with a load of rats in summer. If all alleys are cleaned like ours, no wonder there are so many rats in Chicago. MRS. WM. G. RUEHL.

"SNOOPING" LANDLADIES.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—What legal action, if any, may be taken to prevent snooping landladies or managers from delving into dressers and highboy drawers to find out whether the tenant has so-called hoarded linen? Can a lease be broken where such conditions prevail?

R. B.

Where the tenant has exclusive right of access to the premises the relation is ordinarily the typical one of landlord and tenant, and the wording of the statute seems to apply providing for 60 days' notice, altho there is some authority for a week's notice on a tenancy by the week. If the landlord has right of access, keeping the rooms dusted, etc., a different rule ordinarily applies, and the relation can be terminated at the end of any of the recurrent periods without previous notice. PLAN OF $420,000 AIR TERMINAL TO BE DRAWN TODAY

Methods of Financing and Design Main Issues.

BY FRANK STURDY.

Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt will meet air lines' representatives today to develop a program for construction of the $420,000 terminal Mayor Kelly has decided to substitute for the more elaborate structure originally planned for the Chicago airport.

The air lines will be represented by Philip Willcox, executive vice president of United, and Kenneth Crago of American. Principal questions to be settled are the method of financing construction and the design of the building, loading platforms, and taxiways.

No objections to the new plan will be raised by the air lines, it is believed, for their original proposal was for a comparatively cheap, temporary terminal as a stop-gap at the present airport. Expert opinion is that it will be outgrown within five years.

Airport Bond Issue in June.

Meanwhile, the city must decide upon a site for a post-war airport of much greater size, a project now under way. The mayor has said he intends to put a 20 million dollar airport bond issue proposal before the voters in the June judicial election.

Commissioner Hewitt said tentative plans indicate the new airport building will be about 1,400 feet long and of one story. Cost and priorities limitations probably will dictate that noncritical materials be used extensively, but the building will be modern in design, Hewitt said. It probably will be built mainly of wood.

There are 214 flights a day scheduled in and out of Chicago airport this month, Hewitt said, and the air lines expect within the next few months to increase this one-third.

City's Air Traffic Potentials.

Air lines' statistics, Hewitt said, indicate the following air traffic potentials for the city:

	5 years post-war.	10 years post-war.
Daily flights	1,304	1,758
Minimum peak hour flights	85	139
Maximum peak hour flights	173	212
Maximum daily passengers	30,000	49,180
Minimum daily passengers	22,360	43,600
Peak hour passengers	4,000	5,700

The maximum capacity of the present airport is 120 plane movements an hour in good weather, Hewitt's figures substantiate the opinion that by five years after the war the city must have a much larger terminal to hold its position in the air transport industry.

GIRL, 23, BURNS TO DEATH TRYING TO SAVE SISTER

Miss Dorothy Emerson, 23, was burned to death yesterday and eight families routed in a second alarm fire in the two story frame house at 622 Adams st., Gary, Ind.

Mrs. William Emerson, the mother of the victim, said Dorothy, thinking her younger sister, Vera, was still in the building, rushed upstairs to find her. Vera meanwhile had fled out the back entrance. Miss Emerson is survived by her parents and sister, and three brothers in the service.

The Gary fire department, under the direction of Assistant Chief John Stapleton, carried three children to safety and aided the families to get out. Chief Stapleton said the fire, of undetermined origin, started in the second floor apartment of the landlady, Mrs. Dorothy Ugarana. Damage was estimated at $3,000.

RAISE DENIED, PARKS' DRIVERS MOVE TO STRIKE

Union Demands Wage Equal to Others.

A plea that 71 Chicago park district truck drivers be paid wages in line with those paid by other Cook county and Chicago government units met a rebuff from President Robert J. Dunham of the park board in a board meeting yesterday. This brought a threat from the union representatives that "something drastic" may have to be done and a strike appeared to be a possible result.

$200 a Month Is Top.

David O. Sark, president, and George W. Copps, secretary-treasurer of local 726 of the State and Municipal Teamsters, Chauffeurs, and Helpers union [AFL] asked the board for no specific increase, but pointed out that truck drivers' wages paid by the park district are below those paid by all other governmental units in the county.

The top wage paid by the park district for truckers is $200 a month, which includes a $25 monthly cost of living adjustment, allowed last year. The minimum wage paid by other governmental units in the county, Sark said, is $225.50, with the wages going as high as $236 for some agencies.

Council Advises Peace Steps.

Copps reported the park board's stand to the Teamsters' Joint council, representing 70,000 members, at a meeting last night and was advised to continue efforts for a peaceable settlement. Copps said the local union was pressing for quick action but that he would arrange today for a special meeting to plan further steps.

The union representatives said that park district drivers, formerly not unionized, became members of local 726 last summer and that an effort was made before adoption of the park budget to get a wage concession. They said they received no definite discouragement up to the time the budget was passed Dec. 29.

FREEZING PUP WAGS TRAIN TO A HALT; RESCUED

A dog's life took a turn for the better yesterday because Frank Pitman, 60, a ticket collector on the Chicago and North Western railway kept an entire trainload of commuters waiting while he went on a rescue mission.

Pitman saw the dog huddled under a viaduct about a mile and a half south of Crystal Lake as the train passed. On the return trip to Chicago, he asked the engineer to stop. Pitman, who will have been with the North Western 39 years in March, strode thru the snow to rescue a half frozen collie puppy.

At his home, 4203 Keystone av., his wife helped him tend the newcomer, but she said they couldn't keep it. They live in an apartment, she said, and their one dog, a Manchester terrier named Jinny, is all they can manage. She said she had called the Orphans of the Storm, and was expecting the organization to come for the collie. Meanwhile, she said, Jinny was watching over the pup.

TEAMSTERS PICK H. E. WOOD AS COUNCIL TRUSTEE

H. E. [Bill] Wood, secretary-treasurer of local 705, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, and Warehousemen [AFL], last night was elected trustee by secret ballot of the joint council of the IBT by several hundred representatives of the Chicago area in a meeting at 639 Ashland blvd. Wood will fill the vacancy created by the death of William Hanley. Frank Brown, president of the council and also president of local 710 of the IBT, said the council, a governing body, represented 70,000 members in the Chicago area.

Marriage of Mrs. Tilt Bissell in East Dec. 31 Is Disclosed

BY JUDITH CASS.

ONLY Mrs. Tilt Bissell's close friends are aware that she has been a bride for 10 days. She and Walter Phelps Jacob of New York, who originally had planned a January ceremony in Chicago, instead were married quietly Dec. 31 in a chapel in New York. The bride's parents, the Charles A. Tilts of Lake Shore dr., and her 10 year old daughter, Daphne, were not in the east for the wedding, but Mr. Jacob's mother, Mrs. William H. Jacob, and his children were present. Mr. Jacob, who is engaged in war production in New York, will bring his bride to Chicago for a few days soon before they return east to live. He has a son, 16, and twin daughters, who are 12.

Other romantic news of interest is contained in the announcement from Mr. and Mrs. Marcus C. Weimar of Kenilworth of the engagement of their daughter, Martha, to Lt. John Crawford Koeniger of the marine air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl W. Koeniger of South Orange, N. J. The Weimars just have returned from Los Angeles, Cal., where the announcement was made. Lt. Koeniger is stationed at El Toro, Cal.

Miss Weimar, a graduate of Pine Manor, attends Northwestern university. Lt. Koeniger attended the Northwood school in Lake Placid, N. Y., and Dartmouth college. He expects to go overseas soon.

On the Calendar.

The Winter club has reshuffled plans for its annual carnival to extend the gay young celebration over two days—Jan. 26 and 27. About 30 of the club's best young skaters will compete for the figure skating championships on the evening of the first date. The two champions will skate the following afternoon at a costume carnival, in which 250 children between the ages of 5 and 14 usually take part in a program of games and races.

Selections from "The Nutcracker Suite" will be presented in the costume carnival. Andria Rowley and Louise Clarke will be the ballerinas in the "Waltz of the Flowers," and Adrienne and Gwendolyn Osborne will do a "Chinese Dance." Other youngsters who will participate are Sandra Galitzine, Virginia Dennehy, Lynn Williams, Carter Wamboldt, Diane Scoble, and Paula Wilms.

An exhibition of the architectural work of John Lloyd Wright opened last Saturday in the Cliff Dwellers.

Birth News.

Somewhere in India, Lt. Col. John J. McDonough has received word by cable of the birth of a son, John Michael, Dec. 30 in the Evanston hospital. The baby and his mother, the former Anne O'Brien, and little sister, Nancy, are living with Mrs. McDonough's parents, the Michael J. O'Briens, in Highland Park while Col. McDonough is overseas. Also with the O'Briens is another daughter, Mrs. James Robert Lee, and her 15 months old daughter, Susan. Lt. Lee is serving with the navy in the Pacific.

Today's Events.

The Friends of Orphans will meet for luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today in the Kenilworth home of Mrs. William Sowle to make plans for the group's annual spring benefit Feb. 28. Co-hostesses for the luncheon will be Mrs. Chester W. Hauth, Mrs. Oscar M. Holen, Mrs. William H. Wark, Mrs. R. O. Brenner, Mrs. Frank Kreissl, Mrs. Vera M. Herzog, and Mrs. Wilford C. Lahman. This year's benefit, the ninth annual one, will be a luncheon, card party, and fashion show in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel to raise funds for the Lake Bluff orphanage, the Lydia Children's home, and the Central Baptist home of Maywood.

Chicago alumnae of National Park college in Washington, D. C., will meet for luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today in the Chicago College club, following the regular monthly board meeting at 10:30 a. m. New officers will be installed, with Mrs. Ralph Jaeger of Highland Park presiding. The day nursery which the group has maintained for some time at 1261 N. Wolcott av. has been closed because of unavoidable circumstances, and at this time its reorganization will be discussed.

Wedding News.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard Matson of Aurora announce the marriage Jan. 6 in the Holy Angels' church, Aurora, of their daughter, Marjorie Glee, to Ensign Albert Marvin Pike Jr. of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pike, also of Aurora. The bride attended De Pauw university, and Lt. Pike studied at Lake Forest academy and at the University of Illinois. They are at home temporarily in New Orleans, La.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Kelly of Castlewood terr. announce the marriage recently of their daughter, Nancy Louise, to Lt. [j. g.] John Egan Boles of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Boles of Joliet. The bride attended Mundelein college. Lt. Boles was graduated from the University of Illinois and received his doctor's degree in dentistry from Loyola university. They are living in Oceanside, Cal., where Lt. Boles is stationed with the marines.

The marriage of Miss Patricia Ann Behm, daughter of Mrs. Grace C. Behm of Washington, D. C., formerly of Chicago, to Sgt. Lowell Hulburt of the army, took place Dec. 26 in the army chapel at Bolling field, Washington, D. C. A reception in the Statler hotel followed, after which Sgt. Hulburt and his bride left for a wedding trip to his home in Clifton, Colo. Mrs. Hulburt, who attended Mary Washington college, Fredericksburg, Va., will continue her studies at the University of South Carolina when Sgt. Hulburt returns to his post at Camp Jackson, S. C.

From New Orleans, La., comes the announcement being made by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Welsch of the marriage there Nov. 28 of her daughter, Miss Sara Cecile Heim, to Lt. Theodore H. Hymen of the army transportation corps, son of Mrs. Nathan Hymen of Chicago and the late Mr. Hymen. Lt. Hymen is a graduate of the University of Chicago. His bride received her degree from Sophie Newcomb college. Mrs. Mrs. Hymen is living with her mother while her husband is overseas.

Coverlet Guild Luncheon.

Miss Rosalia Pollak will give an illustrated talk on jade before the Colonial Coverlet Guild of America at a noon luncheon meeting today in the Wedgwood room of Marshall Field & Co.

Defauw Gives 2 Old Masters Poor Treatment

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Desire Defauw, conductor; John Weicher and Franz Polesny, violinists. Presented at Orchestra hall Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 9, 1945. The program: Symphony in G major, B. & H. No. 13 ..... Haydn
Concerto for Two Violins and String Orchestra, D minor ..... Bach
Fantaisie on Two Walloon Christmas Carols ..... Jongen
Selections from "The Damnation of Faust" ..... Berlioz

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Because Desire Defauw's major flair is for the flashier externals of music, the best of yesterday's rather torpid concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra was neither the Haydn nor the Bach that began it, but the excerpts from Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust" that ended it. The invocation was deft, the dancing will-o'-the-wisps and sylphs were nimble, and, if the "Rakoczy" march had less than truly Gallic luster, at least it had flourish and the noisier kind of brilliance.

But neither Haydn nor Bach is particularly grateful for flourish, and noisy brilliance irritates them into sulky withdrawal. Each has his own character, best revealed in classic purity of line and unforced clarity of tone, and once the natural, unaffected rhythm is lost, little is left but muddle. The trouble with Mr. Defauw is that he refuses to let them alone. He conducts not the composers but himself.

Remember last year when a wag said of a Defauw concert that it was Brahms with benzedrine? Yesterday it was hophead Haydn, except for the buoyant opening of the finale, when Mr. Defauw didn't conduct at all but let the orchestra have its head, whereupon it ran briefly and gayly true to that once treasured, now almost vanished form. But that was about all of the lovely G major symphony that remained for cherishing. The opening was forced in heavy handed spurts and the serene legato of the largo was distorted almost out of recognition.

Nor was the Bach happier, tho John Weicher and Franz Polesny fiddled faithfully against an orchestral background so spottily conceived and manipulated it managed to be both dull and precious. Instead of a firm, resilient accompaniment supporting, underscoring, and projecting the solo instruments, there was an unsteady, almost abject performance by an orchestra which didn't seem to know quite what it was expected to do. Perhaps it found more histrionics than lucidity in Mr. Defauw's conducting.

O, yes, we had a novelty, too. A twice belated novelty of two Walloon Christmas carols blown up to orchestral proportions more than 40 years ago by one Joseph Jongen, who remembered Tschaikowsky's sugar plums, tho not quite how to duplicate their popularity. During the concert the violas and second violins changed places, and nowadays most of the stage elevations have been removed. But the trouble with the way our orchestra sounds today goes deeper than the mere mechanics of seating arrangements.

Illustrator Will Speak Before Library Group

Miss Lois Fisher, illustrator of the "Fresh from the Hills" feature in the Sunday Tribune, will give a demonstration lecture for the Chicago Library club at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Stevens building restaurant. Miss Fisher's program has been arranged to replace a talk by Joyce Nagle, director of the Human Engineering laboratory, who is unable to appear because of illness.

Stage Notes

"Ice-Capades of 1945" will play two weeks at the Chicago Arena, starting Thursday night, March 1. The cast includes Donna Atwood. The Old Smoothies, Trixie, Red McCarthy, and many other favorites, plus such newcomers as Ann Robinson and Esco La Rue. Sunday matinees are on the schedule, and opening night will be sponsored by the Chicago unit of the American women's voluntary services, which maintains lounges for men and women in service. Mail orders are now being filled. The Arena box-office opens Jan. 19.

"The Glass Menagerie" has arranged to stay at the Civic theater at least thru Feb. 10, and tickets are now on sale thru that period.

Anthropology Viewed as Key to Race Amity

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Anthropology was described yesterday by one of its noted students as being a study of mankind that not only is capable of decreasing racial and religious prejudice but also of bridging the chasm between science and theology.

The description was given by Ethel Alpenfels, University of Chicago anthropologist, who reported on an experimental course in anthropology conducted for the first time at the high school level. The experimental classes were at Thornton and Bloom Township High schools in Chicago Heights, sponsored by the Women of Goodwill of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews. Miss Alpenfels spoke before the annual meeting of the round table in the Palmer House.

"Science no longer teaches that man has descended from the ape," said Miss. Alpenfels. "On the contrary, anthropology and religion are very close. Both teach a common origin—that mankind and apes are descended from a common ancestor."

Miss Alpenfels said the courses in Chicago Heights not the only were the first at the high school level but also offered the first opportunity for controled experiment over a length of time of the racial and religious attitudes of students thru learning the facts of the history of mankind's development.

Chicago Heights, she said, with 37 national and racial groups and 31 religious denominations, afforded a typical site for such a basic experiment—" a box seat at the performance of group tension."

Racial and religious tensions were diminished by the courses by at least 15 per cent, and those students were found to hold the most prejudices whose intelligence quotient was the lowest, she added.

Dr. James M. Yard, executive director, in his annual report covered programs presented in 177 churches, 34 youth meetings, and 10 summer youth conferences in this area. In addition the round table held 65 meetings in service clubs and fraternal orders; 94 meetings in women's clubs; 120 assemblies in schools and colleges, and 85 radio programs. It distributed 600,000 pieces of literature, the most significant of which were the four book lists embracing "Reading for Democracy."

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Typewriter Drawing.

To market, to market! Uh huh, those are bananas! BABE.

Opposites.

Every one has had the experience of going down in an elevator.

To raise a building means to jack it up, and to raze it means to tear it down. AL OF DORCHESTER AV.

White Collar Vignette.

She was depressed that noon. A 40th birthday, she thought, was a little hard to face. After all, 40 was 40 to this white collar girl—and there was nothing to do but square her shoulders and take it.

As she wandered thru the millinery department of one of the stores, a hat in one of the cases caught her eye, a tailored felt. "May I see it?" she said to the pert young salesgirl. Looking up with a smile, the salesgirl studied her customer a moment and then answered, "My goodness, you don't want to see that hat. That's for a middle-aged woman! Here's one more your type." With that she brought out an impudent little concoction of flowers, a bit of veil, a bow . . . a much less expensive hat.

The white collar girl gazed at herself in the mirror. Something about the hat gave a lift to her spirits . . . or was it the pleasant, complimentary remark? The sun seemed to smile again as she sauntered out of the store. Forty wasn't so hard to face after all! PEG.

Office Irritations.

I'd like to ask business firms why, if they must omit the printed name from one half of a statement, they couldn't omit it from the top half, which is returned to them, instead of the lower half, so our files would disclose whose statement it is when we refer to it in the future?

As a matter of fact, when the bottom half does not carry the firm name, I simply don't return the top stub with my check, making more work for all concerned. SECRETARY.

Feminine Firsts.

Two of the 10 young women to receive Mademoiselle magazine's merit award for the last year are not only firsts but the only women to attain their particular distinction: Katheleen Dial, first lieutenant in the army nurse corps, the only woman in uniform to receive the distinguished flying cross, and Mary Fretch, war worker, whose suggestions have saved the country 35,000 man hours annually, the only woman among eight war workers summoned to Washington by the war production board as 1944's outstanding suggestioneers. . . . Now that the holidays are over we learn that the first Christmas card printed in America was designed by a woman, Mrs. E. O. Whitney. It was for Charles Dickens. . . . Black haired Margaret Egan becomes the first woman advertising manager of Marshall Field & Co.

Trick Lapels Mark Stylists' New Fashions

BY REA SEEGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—You can still tell a Fox-Brownie original suit by the trick lapels. One suit jacket this spring boasts two that are loose split in three and another that is split twice or slashed in slanted panels. For frosting there are white pique lapels of the under blouse, cut in the exact same size and outline as the wool lapels of the jacket.

No other designers being presented during this week's press showings of the New York Dress institute sign their original creations so unmistakably as does Brownie, the whimsical genius of this well known working team.

After the usual spicy build-up of the lapels in blouse or suit jacket, Brownie delights in swing and sway skirts, skirts that flaunt an exaggerated flare in back, or directly in front, a fullness that snaps as you walk, and a fullness that is well within the yardage limitations.

Another bit of Brownie whimsey is the purse pocket, a three dimensional extra attached securely to the side hipline. It is cut and fashioned right with the skirt. This idea should prove a boon to the forgetful lady who parks her money and bag at inconvenient times and places. With one of these blessedly secure pursebags, all that fuss and dither is abolished.

Staying right at home on the island of Manhattan, Brownie also has found the costumes of the Knickerbocker Dutch grand inspiration for 1945 fashions. She uses chin bows and long streamers tied under a roguish rolled Dutch collar, also immaculate white cuffs, and the picturesque huge berets and wide belts of those doughty pioneers of Nieuw Amsterdam.

All shades of gray wool make stunning street clothes, dresses, or suits. The snap of precise black and white checked wool is used for smart coat dresses and peplums that are plaited just over the slim straight skirts. Brief fitted jackets and those half inch wide belts parade again this season.

Her printed dresses are so deceptively simple in detail and construction they invariably become the smartest basic summer dress in any wardrobe. The printed designs are amusing and unusual.

Friends of Drama to Have Miss Hayes as Breakfast Guest

Preliminary to attending today's matinee performance of "Harriet" at the Erlanger theater the Friends of Drama will meet at noon in the Louis XVI. room of the Hotel Sherman for a matinee breakfast. Helen Hayes, star of the play, will attend the gathering, which is a 22d anniversary party for the group. Others of the cast also have been invited. It is planned to take a large birthday cake to one of the U. S. O. centers.

The breakfast program will include a talk by George Gaw on "Color and Human Nature" and songs by May Barron. Mrs. Lewis G. Blessing heads the hostess committee and in her group will be Mrs. Cyrus Garnett, Mrs. Arthur Merrill, Mrs. George Martin, Mrs. Harry Swigerg, Mrs. B. F. Troxel, and Mrs. Alice Gunthorp.

Social Agency's Work Reveals Healthy Interest in Family Life

BY NORMA LEE BROWNING.

There seems to be a lot of loose talk these days, as well as some grave concern, over the notion that the world [meaning the younger generation] is going straight to blazes while pa and ma watch with bleary eyed concern from a bar stool.

Don't you believe it, warns the Association for Family Living, whose headquarters is at 209 S. State st.

Last year approximately 30,000 persons participated voluntarily in a better-family-and-community-relationships movement in Chicago, and there is evidence that the number will double this year.

This includes only those individuals and groups serviced by one agency, the Association for Family Living. Thruout the nation other private and community organizations are fostering the same kind of movement.

What does this mean? It means that today not fewer but more people than ever before are becoming actively interested in how to make a success of family and community living.

It means that in spite of sensational statistics on divorce, immorality, and delinquency there has been a tremendous growth in the number of ordinary, every day, normal human beings who regard seriously their duties as members of a family and of a community.

It means that if the world is going to blazes the path at least will be marked by a few obstinate detours set up by the solid, stabilizing influence of people whose names never reach the headlines because there's nothing sensational in staying home and tending the children and learning to live right. Contrary to popular belief, this species is neither obsolete nor even well on its way out.

On the theory that effective living in a democracy can best be learned thru practice at home, the Association for Family Living for 20 years has been educating people for marriage and family life. The association has grown steadily in this time, but for the last year and a half the rate of growth has been greatly accelerated.

Last September there were more than 100 groups meeting for discussion of family and community problems under the leadership of trained staff members of the association.

According to Mrs. Evelyn Millis Duvall, director of the Association for Family Living, the growth has resulted from a change in the trend of thinking.

"People are more genuinely aware of the problems of family life," she said. "More important, they are aware that current research and science have taught us a lot about human behavior, and they are willing to learn. They are interested not only in man and wife relationships but in the preparation and adjustment for post-war relationships in the community at large. Their scope of interest is broadening."

For illustration, let's look in on a group of typical neighborhood mothers who have organized voluntarily to meet twice a month as a study group under the guidance of an association staff member.

There may be 30 or 300 in the group. They are rich, poor, middle class. Some have college educations; some have none. Mrs. A. is 23 and her husband is a music arranger; Mrs. B. is 48 and her husband is an economist; Mrs. C. is 32 and her husband is a truck driver; Mrs. D. is 25 and her husband is a mail order clerk; Mrs. E. is 41 and her husband is a dairyman; Mrs. F. is 37 and her husband is a welder.

They are from all walks of life and all races, yet there is a common denominator among them. Each is a parent. And each is interested in becoming a success at her job as a parent.

How can one tell? By the questions they ask, and here are some samples:

"How can I prepare my children

Get Viewpoint of Teen-Agers, Parents Urged

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Letters reach me almost every day from parents of adolescent children, but every so often I receive one from some one who has an interest in all young persons:

"I felt I must write you after reading your article about handling sympathetically boys and girls in their teens.

"Since my husband and I have no children of our own, we have delighted in doing all we could for any of the youngsters we knew, especially those with little opportunity to obtain their goals in life.

"We always found the best way to bring out the best in young people was by trusting them and not by being too strict and exacting. Scolding and preaching were never resorted to, no matter what the issue. All kinds of harmless and interesting amusements were encouraged, especially having them entertain their friends in our home.

"In our old age we are enjoying great happiness in having many of the girls and boys we have assisted come back to us for a visit—many of whom we hardly thought would prove successful are doing splendidly. Some have even offered to help us in any way possible.

"It pays to trust and sympathize with young persons, and thus help them to a better and nobler life."

A beautiful experience, is it not—to help unselfishly young men and women, with no thought except of their good; to see this help bear fruit in happy and useful lives, and then to find their love and gratitude easing your declining years?

Some of the mothers and fathers who are struggling with their sons and daughters in their teens, who are in conflict over so many little things and at swords' points over bigger ones, might take a leaf from the writer of this letter. For it is true, and true to human nature at almost any age, that no one is made responsive by unfriendly criticism.

What we need is to get our older children's viewpoint, to see that they have the pleasures of their age, reconcile them to our viewpoint in a friendly way where we must guide or protect them, and above all, trust them. Trust and sympathy afford the finest basis for influencing young persons.

Agency Finds Rising Interest in Family Life

to meet the existing world and its contradictions?"

"How should we go about discussing God and death and war and killing with our children?"

"How can I better understand my daughter?"

"How can I keep in step with the modern ideas of my children?"

"How can parents help themselves to develop their own personalities?"

"How may we release ourselves from the fears we feel for our children?"

"How can I teach my child to meet the confusion in the world today?"

"How can young people be given a long time point of view?"

These questions, taken from actual records of a neighborhood study group, are a far cry from the old days when mother's interest went no further than: "How can I get Johnny to eat his spinach?"

Now and then the mails still bring a scribbled note demanding: "Send me something on how to raise babies in a trailer, quick!" But for the most part, the questions and discussions indicate that parents are concerned with delinquency and the other symptoms of a disorganized society. They are grappling with the problems of finding more effective ways to meet their responsibilities. They are eager to understand their children and the questions that confront them.

"The family has become the buffer for all the inadequacies and neglect of our vast social disorganization," says Mrs. Duvall.

"Unorganized, parents represent the last stand of the amateur. Every other trade and profession has developed standards, has required study and practice and licensing before releasing the student into his work. Only one profession remains untutored and untrained . . . the bearing and rearing of our children.

"Now, at last, parents are organizing and trying to do something about these gaps."

Not only mothers, but fathers as well, are becoming more interested in their responsibility as parents, according to Sora Barth Loeb, educational coördinator of the Association for Family Living.

"The number of men who attend our meetings has increased considerably this last year," she said.

Many are interested in their role as expectant fathers, but most of them want to know:

"How can I, as a father, be the pattern for my boy, and where does my responsibility rest?"

Mr. B. has an adolescent boy who stays out longer than is expected and on numerous occasions has been disrespectful. Mr. B. is worried. He reads about juvenile delinquency and is sure his son is bound for no good end.

Mr. B. does what he'd do with any other kind of problem. He goes after competent help. Coming to a course on adolescence is no different for him than was the course in mechanics he took last winter when his car began acting up.

Step by step he goes thru the stages of child development with other parents in the class. Little by little the situation that brought him in becomes clearer. A month after insisting on an answer to his question: "How can I make my boy pick up his airplane junk?", he tells with a proud ring in his voice about the P-36 model his son submitted for the school hobby show.

There hadn't been any conversion either of the boy or his dad. Just a bit of reassurance, a little understanding of what to expect, a further appreciation of what is normal—this made the difference between an anxious and an accepting father. Probably the son still acts disrespectfully—most youngsters do. But dad can take it now, because he isn't afraid.

Sometimes all members of a family—parents and children—attend the study group meetings.

Recently, parents in a certain Chicago neighborhood complained that their children were going out of the area for entertainment and not getting home until the wee hours.

The "young offenders" themselves were asked to come to the next meeting. The situation was discussed. The youngsters' counterclaim was that their own neighborhood offered nothing in the way of recreation. The parents admitted this. They began to realize that instead of misbehaving, their children actually were protecting themselves by seeking entertainment in another neighborhood.

At all such meetings a staff member or counselor of the Association for Family Living is present [by request], not to chide or scold, but to guide the discussion, to help parents get the answers to their questions, to interpret or translate one generation's way of thinking to the other.

"A closer understanding between parents and children builds the kind of home that can be a bulwark of security against the pressures of the world," declares Edith G. Neisser, president of the association. "The experiences of many countries in recent years bear out the belief that, given a basic security in family relationships, children can come thru even the emotional upheavals of a war without serious damage to their personalities."

She emphasizes that in no case does the association set itself up as an arbiter.

"The important thing is to let the parents discuss their own problems and find their own answers," she adds. "There is virtue in the very talking thru process. What seemed like a hopeless tangle when you faced it alone begins to straighten itself out when you talk it thru with others who have the same problem."

The Association for Family Living is a member of the Council of Social Agencies of Chicago. It is supported by memberships, contributions, and a small allocation from the Chicago Community Fund.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 9.—Rita Johnson and Henry Travers have been signed for leading spots with Abbott and Costello in Edmund L. Hartman's original, "The Naughty Nineties." Hartman also will produce. This is A. and C.'s 13th comedy for Universal. Hope they aren't superstitious. Rita plays a female gambler, and Travers a ship's captain. Rita could get many pointers at Las Vegas. . . . If John Decker has his way with Gene Fowler, John Emery will play the Barrymore part in "Good Night, Sweet Prince." Emery virtually was raised by the Barrymore clan—all of them. . . . Louis Bromfield's finally put it over. He hopes to have the picture "Colorado" hit the theaters the same time his book of the same title hits the stands. And contrary to popular belief, the pioneer woman in it will not be played by Greer Garson but by Lana Turner. . . . Mary Pickford, Gary Cooper, Jack Benny, and Danny Kaye are listed as the stars who will be present at the White House for the President's birthday ball.

Just One More Chance.

Anita Colby had a letter from her sister who wrote: "I just cut my own throat. I learned that it really was Clark Gable who called up the other night and asked me out to dinner. And I thought it was somebody having fun with me, and hung up." . . . The reason Clark Gable is not making a picture and will not make a picture is that, as he has said before, he will not work until he finds a story he thinks is suitable. . . . Even tho John McNulty is here writing for Paramount, he will continue to do his chore for the New Yorker. And you will find more and more Hollywood items slipped in because of him. When he was asked how he liked our town as compared with New York, he quipped, "I like oranges, also apples. But I don't know yet which I like the most."

Better Luck Next Time.

Too bad Mary Astor's New York play, "Many Happy Returns," failed. But Mary made a terrific hit. This time I hope she picks a winner. . . . The New York Federation of Women's Clubs presented a special award to David O. Selznick for "Since You Went Away." But he won't be able to receive it in person; there's still a lawsuit back there that keeps him out of town. . . . Charlie Baron, former dancing partner of Julanne Johnson, will do his dancing for Sol Lesser in "Crazy to Dance." Charlie is also head man at Arthur Murray's studio here. . . . Pat Smart, thru her appearances at the Bliss Hayden theater, got the nod from Hal Wallis for "Don't Ever Grieve Me." . . . She and Ted Sheater are seeing the town together.

Wedding Bells, etc.

One minute after Mrs. D. W. Becker of Chicago receives her divorce at Las Vegas she will be married to Charley Grapewin. The divorce mills are so heavy laden there [between 25 and 35 go thru a day] that another judge is being appointed. . . . Several diners at Mocambo were milling about Lynn Bari's and Sid Luft's table. Phil Silvers rushed up to Lynn and inquired, "What's all the excitement about?" Lynn told him it was their first anniversary. Silvers shrugged and said, "From all this excitement, I thought you were about to announce your divorce!" . . . Tim Durant is telling friends he'll be off to Mexico end of this month to start a picture. Since he's never done any film work without Charlie Chaplin, I'm wondering if that means Chaplin expects to do his next picture down there????!!

'Private Investigator Maclain'. . . . .

By Baynard Kendrick

(Copyright: 1945: By Baynard Kendrick.)

SYNOPSIS: In the sumptuous terrace apartment of the successful novelist, Larmar Jordan, a cocktail party is in session. Capt. Duncan Maclain sits alone with his Seeing Eye dog, Schnucke. He is joined by Sarah Hanley, Larmar's agent. Out on the terrace Sybella Ford, his fiancee, is chatting with Paul Hirst, Larmar's secretary. Troy Singleton arrived. Bob Morse, reporter, tells Maclain he is doing a profile on Larmar, whose wife, Lucia, is very charming, and whose latest inamorata is Troy Singleton.

INSTALMENT III.

MYSTERIOUS INVITATION.

Larmar watched Kit and the young officer leave the terrace. "Boorish, isn't he?"

He turned slowly to face Lucia at the other end of the desk.

"A friend of yours, isn't he, darling?" Larmar's irregular white teeth showed in an annoying semblance of a smile.

"I thought you might find Kit amusing! She's just a child."

If you're deliberately trying to get me involved with some one else, Lucia, pick out one who doesn't use a T-square to cut her hair."

"Aren't you involved enough already, darling?"

He stood up slowly. She could irritate him more than any one living, and his face and tone were ugly when he asked her, "What do you mean?"

"Isn't that Troy Singleton that Harry just let in? I'm sure she won't be guarded by an officer who might create a scene."

"If she's here, you asked her." His voice spoke honest disbelief.

Lucia said mockingly, "Now, really, dear. This seems to be the point where the wife goes to her room."

The terrace was quiet for a space of three quick steps as Lucia walked away. Larmar picked up an empty cocktail glass from the desk and replaced it, then reached a sudden decision, skirted two tables doubly noisy with the chatter of guests nervous with pointed unconcern. At the study door he stretched out both hands and took Troy Singleton's firmly in his own.

"This is delightful, Troy. You know every one, I believe." Before she could answer, he had led her to the desk and installed her, back to the crowd, in the place occupied a few minutes before by the garrulous Kit.

Harry came with cocktails.

Over the glass furious black eyes, made more striking by tiny red glints of rage, opened wide and silently cursed Larmar.

"What makes you think I know every one?"

"Don't you? I thought you'd met most of them."

"Where would I meet them?"

"O, around town."

"Around town," she mimicked. Her fingers closed tightly on the glass stem, threatening to break it.

"You know Bob Morse."

"Naturally. Every girl who's checked hats in a night club knows that drunken bum. I thought when you asked me here this afternoon that you wanted me to meet people. I would not have come—not to be herded to your desk like a farmer stabling a cow."

Larmar's pale blue eyes crinkled at the corners. He put up a hand to shield them. The crowd on the terrace was thinning already, couples drifting with obvious nonchalance toward the study to scuttle gracefully thru the door.

He moved his gaze to Troy, thinking idly how perfect she was in face and figure, too perfect, perhaps to be quite real.

"You're very far from being a cow, darling," he said. "The only trouble is I didn't ask you to come."

"Really? I'll forgive you because you're tight, Larmar."

He regarded her in silence and decided after a time that she was serious. "What makes you think I'm tight, darling?"

"You'd have to be drunk to lie deliberately to me."

"Yes," he admitted, his eyes half puzzled. "Yes, I would. Decidedly."

"Then why did you say you never invited me? Is it some new form of humiliation?"

"It's the truth," declared Larmar.

Troy straightened up and took a half sheet of note paper from an initialed bag that hung pendant from her slender shoulder. She held it out wordlessly.

Larmar read it, refolded the two sharp creases and put it in his pocket.

"I want that back, please," said Troy.

"I'll return it when I find out who wrote it," he told her.

"It's written on your paper—"

"And typewriter," he finished for her. "Still I didn't write it, Troy." He turned back to face her, speaking earnestly. "Do you think I'd be so foolish as to ask you up here?"

"Why not?"

"Because I think too much of you to subject you to insults—particularly in my own home. It's not your fault or mine, Troy. It's just one of those impossible situations that both of us know."

She bit one full lip into a deeper crimson. "And now that I'm here in answer to this mysterious invitation, are you going to introduce me to any one?"

"Certainly," he told her quietly, "any one you want to know. Can you take it?"

"No!" She slid down from the desk. "But, I can take a hint if it's tossed at me with both fists, Larmar. Some day you may meet a situation you can't quite handle. I hope I'm there."

"I hope so too, darling. I enjoy your company."

"I'm relieving you of it right now. Harry will see me out." She marched across the terrace.

Larmar waited until she was gone, then sauntered over and stepped thru the windows into Lucia's room.

His wife was stretched out on a blue chaise longue. He kicked a chintz covered puff up close beside her and sat down.

"Guests all gone?" Lucia asked.

"I'm sure I don't know," said Larmar stolidly. "And furthermore I don't care. They came here at your invitation—not mine."

"All of them? Lucia lowered the magazine.

"All of them," he told her firmly. "You're not very clever, Lucia. In fact, when you get jealous, you're quite obvious." He took the note from his pocket and tossed it in her lap. "What was the idea of sending this to Troy Singleton? What did you think you'd gain by standing this cocktail party on its ear?"

"Larmy, what's the use? We're getting nowhere fast. You're seen all over New York with the Singleton girl. I've kept my mouth shut, but it hurts when you take me for a fool and try to contrive some silly trick to foist the blame on me for bringing her here."

He stood up, cold and unresponsive. Lucia began to cry.

"What an actress!" said Larmar, staring with a frown. "Make it loud, darling. Plenty of good throaty sobs so that the whole house can't help hearing you!"

Across the street the bells in the steeple started their afternoon song. Lucia's sobs grew louder.

"Even Maclain in the study can't hear you now, darling." Larmar grinned. "Those chimes will ring for 15 minutes. I wonder if you can hold out that long!"

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Emma Hembel, 414 Hubbard st., Horicon, Wis.

THE QUESTION.

What was your greatest ambition when you were in your teens?

WHERE ASKED.

Chicago Temple building, 77 W. Washington st.

THE ANSWERS.

Mrs. Ralph Hall Collis, secretary, 753 Emerson st., Evanston—My ambition was to be a kindergarten teacher. I started to college and met a tall, handsome man [who had a lot of beautiful black hair—but he's as bald as can be now]. Within a year I married him. Since then I've been a Methodist minister's wife.

The Rev. Allen P. McCaul, 2212 Ridge av., Evanston—I have always had the desire to assist persons in finding a normal, happy life. When I was in my teens I met a fine man who was a minister. He convinced me that the only way to be happy was thru religious faith. I decided then that I wanted to be a minister too.

Mrs. Don Crocker, housewife, 169 N. Cuyler av., Oak Park—When I was in high school I wanted to be a foreign interpreter, then an English and Latin teacher. I became engaged. Now I'm married and have two children. The only thing I'm interpreting now is the baby's goos and gaas. It's interesting.

Mrs. Don Olson, general office work, Garden Prairie, Ill.—Ever since I was 6 years old all I wanted to be was a teacher. I carried out my ambition and taught for two years. However, it didn't last very long. I decided I'd rather be married than have a career of teaching. That's what happened to my ambition.

The Rev. W. B. Plummer, 641 N. St. Louis av.—At one time I was going to be a pharmacist. My love for powerful machinery got the better of me, however, and I decided to be a locomotive engineer. I still enviously watch the engineers on these big locomotives. Unless you pursue an ambition it will never be attained.

The Rev. Don Olson, Garden Prairie, Ill.—During my college days I worked in a radio station as a remote control engineer because I had always wanted to be a radio engineer. My associates and family taught me it was more interesting to work in a field where I would work with people rather than things.

BREAKFAST CLUB BAND QUITS IN PRODUCER ROW

The Breakfast Club program, radio variety show, went out over the Blue network yesterday from Chicago studios without any orchestral background because of a musicians' dispute. E. R. Borroff, vice president in charge of the Chicago office, said late yesterday that the musicians were called off because the management declined to accede to a demand of the Chicago Federation of Musicians that the producer of the program, Lew Green, be removed by yesterday.

Borroff said E. A. Benkert, recording secretary of the Chicago union, on Jan. 5 had demanded the removal of Green because of minor difficulties. He added that the network management was not aware of any dissatisfaction with Green, who has produced the program for two years. Borroff said the network declined to accede to the request "because it would recognize the right of the union to dictate the selection of personnel employed by the Blue network."

Green, it was stated, formerly was a member of the New York local of the American Federation of Musicians, with which the Chicago local is affiliated. James C. Petrillo, head of both the American and Chicago federations, was unavailable for comment yesterday.

University Polish Clubs' Council to Meet Tonight

The Chicago Council of University Polish clubs will meet at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Polish Women's Alliance building, 1309 N. Ashland av. Taking precedence on the program will be reports concerning the work of the council's committee on education, of which Judge Walter J. La Buy is adviser and Miss Eleanor Krasczyk is chairman. Leon A. Kupeck will preside.

4th Presbyterian Group.

The Women's Federation of the Fourth Presbyterian church will hear Dr. A. W. Loos discuss "The Church's War Service" at 11:30 a. m. today in the church. The meeting will be followed by luncheon at 12:45.

In many kinds of baking, molasses may be used to replace part of the sugar, sometimes all of it. Spiced cookies of any kind, for example, might be made entirely with molasses, even if the recipe calls for sugar alone. In making the substitution, the cook will need to take into account the acidity of molasses, which needs a little soda as a neutralizer, and the moisture content.

Here's the way to substitute molasses in cake or cookies: ½ cup molasses and ¼ teaspoon soda equal in effect ½ cup sugar plus 1 teaspoon baking powder and 2 tablespoons milk or water. Therefore, in substituting a cup of molasses for a cup of sugar, you'd add ½ teaspoon soda, eliminate 2 teaspoons baking powder in the recipe, and cut down the milk or water by ¼ cup [4 tablespoons].

Honey, like molasses, may replace sugar measure for measure, because it is equally sweet. Its moisture content must be considered in the same way, and if you are replacing 1 cup of sugar with 1 cup of honey, you'll want to cut down on the milk in the recipe by ¼ cup, as with molasses. Honey doesn't have the acidity of molasses, so the baking powder would remain unchanged.

A large amount of a sirup, such as honey or molasses, will change the texture of a cake, making it more compact, less fine grained. A sirup-made cake will keep longer, remaining moist for a longer period of time, however. Unless sugar rations are extremely limited, it usually is better to replace only a part of the sugar with sirup.

Frosted Molasses Bars.
½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup molasses
3 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1¼ teaspoons cinnamon
1¼ teaspoons ginger
1 teaspoon allspice
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
¾ cup sour milk

Cream shortening and sugar until fluffy. Add eggs and molasses and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with sour milk, blend thoroly, and spread in two greased 8 inch square pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Frost while warm with a confectioners' sugar icing flavored with vanilla, cool, and cut into bars.

Honey may replace sugar in any pie filling, usually without any adjustment for moisture content.

Lemon Honey Fruit Pie.
2 cups chopped or grated apples
Juice of 1 lemon
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1 cup honey
1 egg, beaten
⅛ teaspoon salt
Pastry for double crust

Combine filling ingredients, pour into pastry lined pie pan, and cover with top crust which has been pierced. Bake at 450 degrees for 15-20 minutes, or until the edges of the crust are golden brown, then reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake 10 minutes longer. This is a tart filling of extremely pleasant flavor.

FLATTEN TIN CANS FOR SALVAGE!

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Walnut Horns.
[Six dozen small cookies.]
1 egg
1 cake yeast
2 cups all purpose flour
Walnut Filling:
¾ pound nuts, ground
¼ cup sugar
½ cup milk

Cream shortening thoroly, add egg and yeast cake which has been dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm milk. Add flour and mix well. Chill for two hours. Roll out very thin on a floured board. Cut in 2 inch squares, put a teaspoon of filling on one corner, roll and shape in a horn. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 375 degrees for 15 minutes. While still hot roll in powdered sugar. To make filling, combine ingredients and cook slowly until thick. Cool before using.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 spades	Pass	6 diamonds	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 diamonds	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of clubs.

Numerical superiority is not always the determining factor in making the choice between two suits in the selection of a trump. We have from time to time observed cases in which a four card suit was made trump [partner having indicated that he had four of that suit] reserving a five carder on the side, which provided the necessary discards. I do not at the moment recall previously having come across a hand where a well supported six card major was relegated to the background, in favor of a four card minor. But here is the striking case. Mark it well.

The normal contract of six spades was reached at most tables of the tournament in which this hand was dealt. When the heart finesse failed and the diamond honors would not drop another case was charged up to hard luck. One pair abandoned the quest for maximum, and were willing to accept the lower score of the minor suit slam because they felt it was safer and earned a rather unusual top score.

South opened with one spade and North decided against an immediate jump shift, tho his hand was fully worth it, because he wished to provide himself with sufficient elbow space to show hearts, diamonds, and spades without getting up into the stratosphere before giving a complete description of his hand. South's rebid of two spades is on the conservative side but a three spade call would have been a gross overbid.

When North showed his second suit, South was under compulsion to make a constructive bid and raised to four. North now bid five spades. This would appear to run counter to the modern practice which provides that a player who mentions three suits and also jumps promises a singleton in the fourth suit. North, however, felt his previous bidding had been so conservative that he could take the liberty of exaggerating in this respect. South elected to bid the slam in diamonds, which still permitted North to return to spades, but this North declined to do on the theory that South's spades would provide discards for North's losers in either clubs or hearts. In this judgment he was vindicated. His only loser was a trump trick.

Paris Designer Accents with Dressy Details

BY ANNE BRUYERE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—Stitched on black wool oak leaves covering velvet jackets, hip lines accentuated, by drapery of panther, and swishing empire skirts of brightly colored taffeta, with bodices of handmade Normandy lace, appeared in Marcel Rochas' current fashion parade.

Everything shown by this house is dressy and feminine. Even scotch plaid sports ensembles are trimmed with rows of two inch wide fringes over epaulets and pockets. A velvet afternoon suit has a cutaway front jacket bordered with blue fox and worn with a silver lamé blouse.

On one black, extremely decollete dress, covered with three inch wide fringes, is a large, brilliant clip designed with a six petaled, ruby studded flower set among emerald leaves on a platinum background. The flower in the clip, created by Jauboussin, opens to reveal a tiny watch.

The show included a white satin evening gown formed of six inch wide, fitted drapery, alternating with close, six inch wide shirring from the bodice, beginning at the bust, to the knees. The floor length skirt is extremely full.

Gisele Dumatras' millinery for 1945 features feathers, beads, and flowers fixed over the ears.

An off-the-face, chartreuse green felt bonnet has tiny, multicolored wings covering the ears. A black felt tocque is trimmed with six rows of gold beads encircling the crown and ears.

Six petaled, banana beige flowers are concentrated on the sides of a tall, draped velvet hat of the same color. Bright yellow and brown sunflowers form an evening headdress covering the ears and nape. Only white, purple

APPROVE CHANGES IN PRO FOOTBALL RULES

NAME VETERAN REFEREES FOR GOLDEN GLOVES

Nine Officials Will Be in Charge.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
PICTURES ON NEXT PAGE.

The 18th Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournaments, which open on the south side in St. Sabina gymnasium Jan. 29, will be officiated by the same group of veteran referees which has conducted THE TRIBUNE'S bouts since their inception. The presence of these experienced men in the ring not only insures impartial decisions but is protection for the inexperienced boxers who are making first appearances.

Phil Collins.

Chicago's youngsters, many of them 16 and 17, who soon will be called to military service, have an opportunity to continue preparation by competition in contact sport. There will be older boys in Golden Gloves from the navy and army, but most of these will be enrolled in the open division.

Parents Must Approve Entry.

The veteran Golden Gloves referees are Phil Collins, Dave Miller, Tommy Thomas, Norm McGarity, Joe McNamara, Tom Gilmore, George Young, Jess O'Brien, and John Behr.

These men carefully supervise the inexperienced boxers. A boy must be 16 years of age to compete in Golden Gloves. This age limit is the minimum permitted by the Central Association of the Amateur Athletic union, which sanctions the tournaments. Entry may be made by the blank which is printed daily on these pages. When the entry is received, a letter of instructions will be mailed inclosing a parental consent card.

The members of the C. Y. O. will appear at the first physical examination Jan. 18. Other Chicago boys will be assigned to the examinations Jan. 24 and 26.

Tourney Opens Jan. 29.

Medical cards are filled out for all contestants and the boxers will be assigned to the south or north side sectionals. The St. Sabina matches on the south side will be held Jan. 29 and 30. The north side trials are scheduled in Loyola university gymnasium, Loyola av. and Sheridan rd., Jan. 31 and Feb. 1 and 2.

The city championships will be held Feb. 12 in the Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace. Novice champions from the north and south will fight for city titles and open division boxers also will be matched in the eight weight classes. The winners in the latter division will represent Chicago in the Tournament of Champions in the Chicago Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28.

FORMER CAPTAIN OF MT. CARMEL ELEVEN KILLED

Angelo De Marco, 26, of 2865 E. 93d st., a chief storekeeper, U. S. N., who was captain and right guard of the Mount Carmel High school football eleven in 1935, was killed in a truck accident, Dec. 23, in North Africa, his father, James, has been notified. He was a member of the All-City and All-Catholic honorary football squads in 1934 and 1935.

Angelo De Marco.

He attended Notre Dame and Purdue universities and for a time was employed by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation before entering the navy Jan. 2, 1942. He won his navy blanket playing with the Pensacola Pre-Flight Naval Air station eleven before going to Africa six months ago. Surviving besides his father, are a sister, Mrs. Mary Turner of 9226 Anthony av., and a brother, Joseph, of Detroit. Memorial high mass will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. in St. Patrick's church, 95th st. and Commercial av.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

[While Arch Ward, sports editor and regular conductor of this column, is on vacation, the Wake will be prepared by members of the sports staff.]

On the day horse racing was halted by governmental edict, Gov. James H. Davis of Louisiana appointed Joe Collins as a racing commissioner to succeed Capt. John F. Clark Jr., resigned. . . . Joe says it's the softest job he's ever had. . . . Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern, annual visitor to the Sugar bowl, calls this year's game the best he ever has seen. . . . When interviewed for the radio between halves of the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco, Coach Jimmy Phelan of St. Mary's Pre-Fight school said he had paid little attention to details of the contest in the first half. . . . "I was too busy watching this Hackett of Ohio State. . . . I can't recall having seen another guard who was quite as fast at leading interference. He plays a whale of a defensive game and in a sort of an unobtrusive way, too." . . . The spectacular growth of Golden Gloves is told in an article by Edward Prell of The Tribune sports staff in the February issue of Esquire, which goes on sale at the news stands today. . . . Stars of the Gridley [Ill.] High school basketball team this season are brothers named Tyrus Cobb Kaufmann and Rogers Hornsby Kaufmann. . . . As you might have guessed, the boys play baseball, too. . . . When an old time Iowa basketball player told Dave Danner, the Hawkeyes' all-Western conference guard last year, that the best play in basketball is still the "old up and in," Danner, who was prevented by illness from playing this winter, responded, "Well, our team is working on a new one. We call it the 'up, in, and often.'" . . .

Lt. John Tallett, the former Notre Dame first baseman, who has been reported missing in action with the air force over Czecho-Slovakia, has been approached by a number of major league clubs. . . . The St. Louis Browns queried his parents—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tallett of North Chicago—as to his whereabouts only a short time ago. . . . The Hollywood post of the American Legion, which promotes weekly boxing shows, will place a plaque honoring the late Lupe Velez in the lobby of the arena. The Mexican film star rarely missed a fight program there. . . . Steve Lach, former Duke university and Chicago Cardinals half back, was a mainstay of the Alea Barracks football team in the Hawaii league in the season just closed. . . . Bill Pepper of the Great Lakes basketball squad, a former Minnesota regular, has four brothers and 20 other relatives in the service. . . . The New Orleans Midwinter Sports association gave every member of the Duke and Alabama squads, Sugar bowl adversaries, a wrist watch. . . . An auction to dispose of horses left over from the abbreviated meeting will be held tomorrow at the Fair Grounds track in New Orleans.

It Happened in Dubuque.

Marie Waring was hurrying along Third st. of a recent morning when she was stopped by a neighbor woman, who, as per custom, inquired, "And have you heard from your boy, Jimmy, lately, Mrs. Waring?"

"Yes," replied Mrs. Waring, happily, "we had a letter from Jim only this morning."

"O, and did you now!" exclaimed the neighbor in delight, "And did he say where he is now?"

"Yes," was the answer, "he did. Jim's in India now."

"In India, is it!" gasped the other woman in astonishment. Then, after a brief pause, she added, "My, my, it won't be long now before they'll be sending him acrost, will it?"

Why Censors Go Mad.

Then there was the sailor, who, upon returning from Jap held territory [that was], produced a rubber stamp he had appropriated as a souvenir. Some of his mates thought it would be sort of a novelty to stamp their home bound letters with the unknown characters.

When the censor, a very alert officer, came upon these undecipherable inscriptions he brought out his mighty pair of shears and cut them all out. A few days later, to the censor's surprise and embarrassment, the stamped notation was translated. It read, "PASSED BY THE NAVAL CENSOR."—Asiatic Tom, fleet postoffice, San Francisco.

ASSOCIATION TO GO AHEAD WITH PLANS FOR 1945

The American association is going ahead with plans to operate in 1945 unless future governmental orders make it necessary to discontinue play, George M. Trautman of Columbus, O., president of the class AA baseball circuit, said last night.

Presidents of the eight clubs, in a meeting in the Morrison hotel yesterday, confirmed a 1945 schedule previously drawn up, Trautman said.

HEALTH FORCES BILL THOMS TO QUIT HAWKS

Slated for Post-War Managerial Post.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Bill Thoms, one of professional hockey's best centers for 10 years before he became ill early last season, yesterday gave up his comeback with the Hawks and announced his retirement from active participation in the game. It was said he probably will become manager of the Hawks' Kansas City club when the American association resumes after the war.

Thoms came to the Chicago team from the Toronto Maple Leafs in the 1938-'39 season in a swap for Doc Romnes and for several seasons was among the National league's leading scorers.

Team Faces Busy Month.

Meanwhile the remainder of this frigid month of January is to be a busy one for the Blackhawks, whether or not they succeed in locating the cages of their adversaries. Whether they ride, walk, or skate to work they are in for a sight of gliding, what with five home games and three road encounters being booked for the remainder of the month.

A bulletin from Press Agent Joe Farrell of the Hawks, just flashed to this department, has promised the Chicago attack will show 15 per cent improvement in the game which the Hawks will play in the Stadium next Sunday night.

Farrell Talks for Thompson.

Farrell had a long talk with the harried Hawk manager, Paul Thompson. Paul was too choked up from hopeful emotion to make a public statement, but Farrell made one for him, saying:

"Cully Simon, the aggressive defense man who played such a fine game against New York last Sunday, seemed to take to his new surroundings quicker than Don Grosso and Butch McDonald.

Grosso to Stay at Wing.

"Grosso has played center for the last seven seasons but has told Manager Thompson he will be all right in his new assighment at left wing. He will continue in that position with the two Hawk scorers, Bill Mosienko and Clint Smith.

The second line will be made up of Pete Horeck, Cully Dahlstrom, and Mush March. The other line will be made up of McDonald, Bus Brayshaw, and Johnny Harms.

ANDERSON WILL STAY AS COACH OF BLUEJACKETS

Lt. Comdr. Rollie Williams, newly appointed athletic officer of the Great Lakes Naval Training center, announced last night that Chief Forrest Anderson, who has been acting basketball coach, will continue in that post, and that he, Williams, will conduct the business of the athletic office and act in an advisory capacity as far as coaching the team is concerned.

The Bluejackets, under Anderson, started off with a couple of losses to Illinois, and then won 13 straight games.

Anderson, a Gary, Ind., product, was a sophomore at Stanford university when he entered the navy.

ELMHURST WINS NO. 5; DEFEATS LOYOLA, 44 TO 30

Elmhurst college won its fifth victory in six games by defeating Loyola university, 44 to 30, in Elmhurst last night. Forward Billy Bizer scored six field goals and one free throw to lead the Elmhurst attack. Henry Harkensee, Loyola forward, led his team with 11 points.

Elmhurst took the lead early, and substituted freely thereafter. Elmhurst led at the half, 19 to 16.

Report Bill Alexander Has Resigned at Georgia Tech

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 9 (AP).—The Constitution said tonight that W. A. [Bill] Alexander, Georgia Tech coach for a quarter of a century, has resigned and will be succeeded by Robert Lee Dodd, his assistant for several years. The official announcement is to be made about Feb. 1, Sports Editor Jack Troy said. Alexander will become Tech's athletic director.

Chicago Ball Writers Pitch Food, Jibes

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Chicago Baseball Writers, flanked by 350 guests, made merry in various ways last night at their seventh annual Diamond dinner, held in the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel.

The Charley Grimm-Robert Lewis act, an annual rib tickler, was abandoned because of the illness of the Cub manager, but the versatile Lewis, after a quick visit to E. Harold Burns' wardrobe department, turned up as an assistant to Prof. Jack Ryan who seryed as curator in a sketch billed as "Chicago's Own Baseball Museum." Also aiding in this act was Lyall Smith in the role of custodian of a rare museum piece.

With due formality Prof. Ryan enshrined various articles, one a glass "that would have been used for a drink if James Dykes had bought a drink." Another was the instrument used by Larry MacPhail, then of the Dodgers, when he did the carpenter job that separated Vice President Jim Gallagher of the Cubs from the service of Second Baseman Billy Herman.

In a radio sketch titled "Consternation Please," Val Sherman sandwiched the commercials between the questions and answers as handled by four of the baseball writing set.

CLASSIC TEAMS START 2D HALF ACTION TONIGHT

Second half activities in the Classic league will begin tonight in Bennett's Bowl, 2045 W. Cermak rd., with the Thompson Restaurants attempting to pick up where they left off a week ago in concluding first round games—in first place.

Leading scores of teams and individuals for first half competition include: High team series, Thompsons, 3211; high team game, Monarch Beers, 1130; high individual game, Dick Winsberg of Monarchs, 288, and high series, 712; individual average, Jake Lanzen, Thompsons, 198. Tonight's schedule:

Thompson Restaurants vs. Sunkist Pies. Meister Braus vs. Chapin & Gore; Monarch Beers vs. Congress Arcade; Prima Beers vs. Keeley Half and Half; Du Bouchett Liquors vs. Washington Shirts.

HOOSIERS, LED BY FARIS, BEAT DEPAUW, 58-38

Greencastle, Ind., Jan. 9 [Special].—Gene Faris, forward, scored 24 points to lead the Indiana university basketball team to a 58 to 38 victory over DePauw here tonight. When the two teams played Dec. 5 DePauw won, 51 to 50. The DePauw reserves tonight beat the Indiana reserves, 41 to 32, in the first game.

Faris and Al Kralovansky, center, paced the Hoosiers in scoring throughout the game and helped give Indiana a 28 to 14 half time lead. Thirty-two fouls were called in the game, 17 against DePauw. Lineups:

SAILORS WIN, 67-39

Great Lakes' Bluejackets scored their 13th consecutive basketball victory last night, defeating Illinois State Normal's quintet, 67 to 39, on the station floor. Coach Forrest Anderson of the Bluejackets employed every player on the squad during the game and the starting five saw little action.

Mickey McGuire's 10 points paced the sailors' scoring while Bob Carpenter of Normal was high point man of the game with 13. Great Lakes led at half time, 31 to 17.

The Glenview N. A. S. quintet will play at Great Lakes tonight. Lineups:

Chicago Latin Wins, 70-34, as Groth Gets 46

Johnny Groth of Chicago Latin, who led the Private school league football scoring with 12 touchdowns and five extra points, yesterday established a new record league basketball record by scoring 46 points against Chicago Christian school. Chicago Latin won, 70 to 34.

Groth, a guard, scored 18 field goals and 10 free shots, to break the mark of 34 points established two years ago by Hugh Simpson, then captain of the Francis Parker quintet. Only two other Latin players scored more than one basket as the players fed the ball to Groth. Chicago Latin led, 37 to 9, at the half.

Todd in First Loss.

Todd school of Woodstock was knocked out of the undefeated class as Francis Parker, trailing 13 to 4 at the end of the first period, rallied to win, 33 to 28. The score was tied at half time as the Parker team, on a complete reversal of the first period, scored 13 points while limiting Todd to four. Parker was led by Bob Sills, who scored 14 points.

LANE TECH WINS TWO

BOX SCORES ON NEXT PAGE.

City league junior teams held the spotlight yesterday since only four senior quintets were in action in a total of 14 games.

In the north section, Lane Tech's juniors and seniors were both victorious over the Roosevelt. The Lane seniors won, 40 to 33, and the Lane juniors had an easy time as they advanced from a 24 to 10 half time lead to a 54 to 27 victory.

Fenger and Parker met in the south section junior-senior games. The Titan juniors defeated Parker, 40 to 26. But Parker won the senior game, 27 to 21, after the score had been tied, 15 to 15, at the half.

Commandos Score 85 Points.

Marshall's juniors ran up the highest score of the season by routing Kelvyn Park, 85 to 26, for their second straight triumph in the west section. The Commandos led, 51 to 13, at the half. Howie Doman scored with 20 points.

The Gage Park and Tilden juniors each won their second straight contest in the central section.

Rangers Get 4 in 3d; Beat Toronto, 5-4

SOCCER ON WORLD WIDE BASIS AIM OF COMMISSION

Plans for world-wide international soccer competition are being made for the post-war period by officials of the Illinois State Soccer commission. Dr. Peter Peel, new chairman of the commission, made the announcement yesterday after a joint meeting with the National Soccer league in the Sherman hotel.

"Soccer," said Dr. Peel, "is the logical sport for international play and the development of goodwill. It is the national pastime of 53 nations and matches have been played to crowds of more than 140,000."

Elected at the same time was Fred Weiszmann of the Wrigley Building restaurant, to the commission vacancy created by the elevation of Dr. Peel. Fred Netto was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Hold Draft Today

THE National Football league executive committee decided last night to hold the annual draft of college players today. Each of the 11 clubs will select 30 players from the list of eligible college athletes, tho nearly all are or will be in service.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

If a National Football league player stops a whirling elbow or forearm with his chin next season he may have the satisfaction of knowing the offender will be punished with a 15 yard assessment against his team. This is the most important rules change suggested in a six hour session yesterday as the pro owners and coaches gathered in the Blackstone hotel for the annual winter session.

In fact, the rules committee distinguished itself, except for this one proposal, by turning deaf ears on a number of radical changes which had been suggested by its members. It turned thumbs down on the sudden death extra period to be used in event of ties at the end of regulation time. Likewise, the six man board was just as unalterably opposed to suggestions that the try for extra point after touchdown be abolished.

De Groot Due Today.

When Dud De Groot, coach of the Washington Redskins, failed to show up, speculation started that he might not return next year. This quickly was squelched, tho, when it was learned De Groot will arrive today from California where he watched the Shrine East-West game New Year's day. Asked if De Groot will coach the Redskins next year, Owner George Preston Marshall, who was in fine voice, answered:

"As far as I know, he will. I want him back, but I've been reading in the papers that he will go to Cornell, Colgate, and a few other places. After all, coaches are no problem. We have plenty of them, including myself."

Expect to Operate.

All clubs were represented for the league sessions which will start today, but the delegates, as tho by unanimous agreement, would make no predictions for the 1945 season.

Additional minor changes will be recommended. One is that if the ball is not properly handled on the snap from center it shall be a fumble, with both sides eligible to run with the ball.

Another carries the suggestion that the rule be changed so that the quarter back, if he remains under center and reaches for the ball, must actually take it. This is designed to take some of the trickery out of T formation plays.

Pointing out that in one instance an offender is not penalized for roughing a passer, the committee asked that this be cleared up. This is the situation: If the passer is roughed before throwing the ball which is completed, the offensive team now must choose between letting the gain stand or claim the 15 yard roughness penalty. The committee is asking that the offensive team get the gain, plus 15 yards for the foul.

Change Out of Bounds Rule.

Another change which was approved says that when a kick goes out of bounds on the fly inside the defensive 20 yard line the ball shall be put in play on the 20 yard line. However, if the ball rolls out of bounds inside the 20 yard mark it shall be put in play where it crosses the sideline.

The committee also recommended that the try for extra point be permitted from any point on or back of the 2 yard line [the present rule specifies that the try be made from the 2 yard mark]; that all players must wear stockings, as a matter of uniformity; that on a fair catch the receiver be permitted to take as many steps as necessary, the ball being dead when caught, with either team eligible to recover in case of a muff; and that substitutions be permitted at any time when the clock is running provided they be completed before the ball is snapped, with a time limit of 30 seconds on a substitution. This substituting would not be allowed in the last two minutes of each half.

Elmer Layden, president of the league, was chairman of the rules committee meeting.

BIG NINE TEAMS STRESS SCORING IN EARLY GAMES

Michigan's Geahan Leads Individuals with 37.

High scores will again make their weight felt in the Western conference basketball race, if figures obtained in the early phase of the winter sport mean anything.

University of Michigan, up among the leaders after losing its opening game, sheds some light on the basket shooting to come. In three games the Wolverines have scored a total of 138 points and to prove that Michigan didn't pay too much attention to the defensive department of the contests their opponents ran up a total of 133 points.

Lead in Team Scoring.

Northwestern and Indiana lead the team scoring parade with 52 and 53 points, respectively, in their opening games. Northwestern, too, did not do too badly, allowing the badgers only 37 points in the first Big Nine game for both schools.

The first set of 1945 weekly Big Nine basketball statistics finds Bob Geahan, Michigan forward from Lansing, leading the individual scorers with a total of 37 points, made from 15 field goals and seven free throws in three games.

Risen, Lund Are Tied.

Arnold Risen, Ohio State, and Don Lund, Michigan, both centers, are tied for second place at 31 points each. Risen scored 13 field goals and five free throws in two games, while Lund made his total on 11 field goals and nine free throws in three games.

Walt Rucke of Minnesota, marine veteran of Tarawa, served notice that he must be reckoned with when individual scoring is discussed, for he tallied 18 points in an upset 49 to 44 victory over the Boilermakers Monday night. In the same game Purdue's Red Anderson increased his rating in the individual statistics column by scoring eight points. Statistics follow:

Oriole Braves Winter, Makes Bird History

BY BOB BECKER.

A crippled Baltimore oriole that couldn't migrate to southern Mexico or Columbia last fall and therefore had to stay along the north shore during the present cold weather is one of the most surprising bird "holdovers" from 1944 that we've ever heard of.

We tried to get a glimpse of the oriole a few days ago, but apparently we were too late. The bird has been staying close to the feeding station maintained by Rodney C. Glover, Lake Bluff, Ill. It has disappeared and Glover believes that it has been killed by a predator.

This crippled oriole is the first representative of the species that has been reported to us as an unwilling winter resident. [Usually this species wisely leaves here early in the fall.]

We checked quite a few feeding stations in our vicinity last Sunday to learn if any one had finches or redpolls. This is the first January in several years that these birds have not visited us. They are around, however, and visiting feed counters not far from our home, so they may show up most any day.

BELL, AL JOLSON TO ARRIVE FOR BOUT TOMORROW

O'Neil Bell, Detroit welterweight, and Al Jolson, native of New Orleans, scheduled to reach town last Monday, have delayed their arrival until tomorrow for an eight round bout in the Coliseum Friday night, Matchmaker Jack Kearns said yesterday. Both are employed in defense plants, Bell in Detroit, and Al in Binghamton, N. Y. It was ample reason for the Illinois Athletic commission's decision to waive enforcement of its rule that windup fighters must be on the scene five days in advance of a bout.

The supporting card:

Jimmy Scherrer, Milwaukee, vs. Jack Eaton, Detroit [8], 147; Johnny Flanagan vs. Dave Mason, Cleveland [6], heavyweights; Art Mo-Whorter, Gary, vs. Charley Polk [6], 175; Tony Brush, Cleveland, vs. Artie Brown [6], 147; Bobby Lee vs. Kid Raymond [4], 145.

36 Entered by Glen Ellyn in Silver Skates

The Glen Ellyn A. A. A., winner of the Illinois state speed skating team championship last week, has entered 36 boys and girls in the 28th Silver Skates Derbies Jan. 20 and 21 at Garfield park with the hope that Glen Ellyn can break the long list of victories compiled in The Tribune Charities' races by the Catholic Youth organization as the suburban champions did in the state meet.

Sunday Is Entry Deadline.

Five days remain in which entries will be accepted for the 28th Derbies which long have been the climax of the midwestern season. A record entry in the eight Derbies is anticipated because of the exceptional weather afforded for training. Post entries will not be accepted because of the size of the field and all letters must be postmarked by midnight Sunday.

Last week three of the Glen Ellyn girls won or shared in state titles in the competition on Lake Ellyn in the Chicago suburb. They are Barbara Meyer, junior champion; Donna Mae Long, midget champion, and Mary Beekley, who tied for the state junior championship. Other girls who have won titles are Janet Rudolph, Marge Kennard, Janet Smith, Barbara and Joan Starrett.

Outstanding skaters in the boys' Derbies are Dave Roll and Vic Olsen, intermediate Derby; Tom Tilden, junior Derby, and Barney Meyer, juvenile Derby.

Plaques to Be Awarded.

Plaques will be given all skaters finishing second and third in lieu of chromium and bronze skates. The silver and bronze medals awarded for fourth, fifth, and sixth places in each of the eight Derbies will be continued.

All contestants reporting for their trials on Jan. 20 and 21 will be given souvenir medals. The Walter Eckersall Memorial trophy.

NORTH-SOUTH CATHOLIC STARS, COACHES TO PLAY

The first annual North-South Catholic league basketball games, with proceeds going to the Chicago service men's centers, will be played in Loyola gymnasium Sunday evening, Jan. 28.

The first game on the program will pit the North section All-Star coaches against the South section All-Stars. The second game will match the senior All-Stars from the North section of the league against the senior All-Stars from the South section.

BEE-VACS CLICK FOR G. I. JOE ON DAYTIME SHIFT

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Out Fullerton av. way these days, there are five war workers who are proving they can click as a team in the day time as well as on the nocturnal bowling shift. This quintet is the Bee-Vac fivesome, who Sunday night toppled 4,044 pins to win first place money of $1,000 and the championship trophy in the ninth annual Ray Schalk holiday sweepstakes at Evergreen Towers.

In scoring their triumph, the Bee-Vacs outshot such outstanding teams as the Hustings and Clark Supplies of Milwaukee, the Meister Braus of Chicago, and the E. & B. Beers of Detroit. Individual star of the winners was young Al Walter, who climaxed the team's high individual series of 872 with a fiery 277.

Are War Workers, Too.

Aside from their bowling talents, the Bee-Vacs are remarkable in that they are probably the only top flight team in these parts engaged in war work in the same plant. Each day finds them on the day shift in the Birtman Electric company, 4140 Fullerton av.

The senior of the team is Ed Wiehle, 57 year olds native Chicagoan, who has been a bowler for 30 years. When he is not maintaining a 190 average with the Bee-Vacs in the Windy City league, Ed is plant superintendent of the Birtman company. His lifetime high is a 298, rolled in an industrial tournament.

Walter Is Anchor Man.

Walter, the 30 year old anchor man, has been tumbling pins for 10 years, during which time his best effort has been a 290. He carries an average of 196, the team's high.

Thirty-eight year old George Notz, who is maintaining an average of 195 in the Windy City doings, was a member of the Birk Bros. Brewing team, which, in 1938, set the all-time team high for the American Bowling Congress, a 3,234 which was rolled in the Coliseum here.

Completing the Bee-Vac quintet are two 39 year olds, Clarence Steinke and Charles Ruzicka. The latter holds an average of 192. His all-time high is a 289. He once captured the Bankers' championship with a 705. Steinke, a native of Cicero, carries a league mark of 194, and is the only member of the team to boast a perfect 300 game.

These eight men, with Phil Collins (picture on previous page) again will serve as referees in the Golden Gloves amateur tournament series.

NORDLY, COACH AT MINNESOTA, OBTAINS LEAVE

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9 (AP).—Dr. Carl Nordly, University of Minnesota's head basketball coach, today was granted an unexplained emergency leave of absence to begin Jan. 15, W. C. Coffey, university president, announced today.

His place will be taken by Weston Mitchell, veteran Minneapolis Central High school basketball coach, who will also continue his teaching duties at Central.

GEARS TO MEET SHEBOYGAN PRO FIVE TONIGHT

The American Gears will play the Sheboygan Redskins, western division leaders of the National Professional Basketball league, in a game tonight in the Coliseum. Before the Redskin game, there will be a contest between two girl fives, the White-Liners and Milwaukee.

The Redskins lost Sunday night to the Fort Wayne Zollner Pistons in an overtime game, 55 to 54, and in their last meeting defeated the Gears, 54 to 27.

Fans will have their first chance this year to view a former Loyola star in Mike Novak, now with the Redskins.

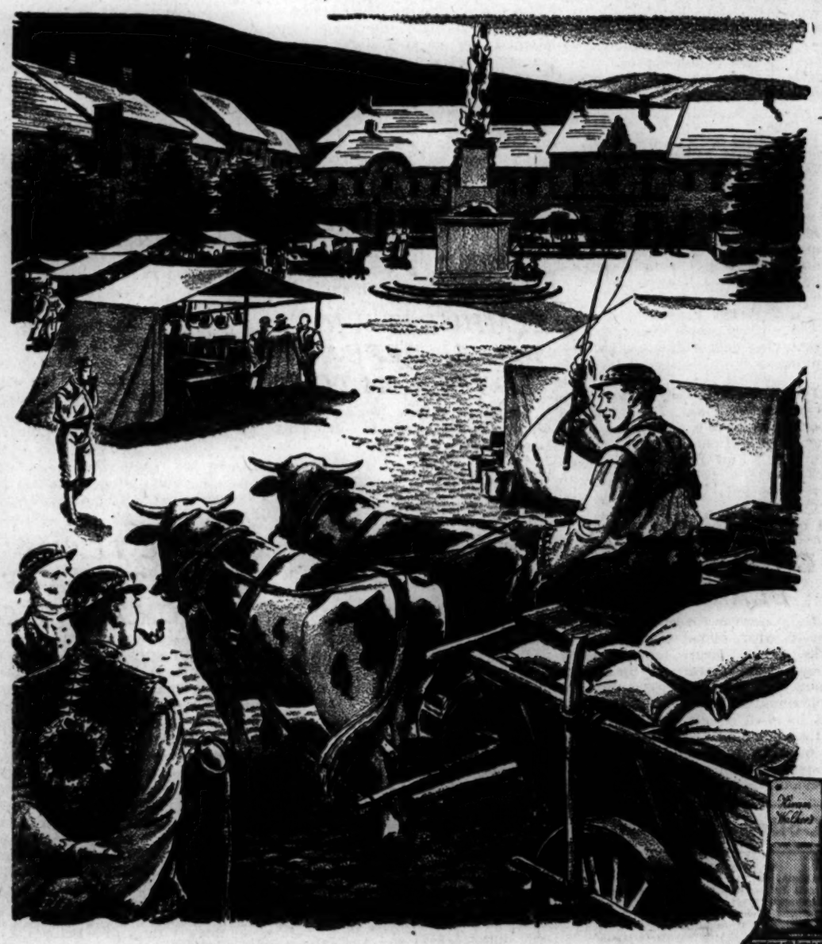
Today! The gin you've waited 3 years to enjoy!
Gin of pre-war quality made from pre-war imported botanicals



1 Today Hiram Walker brings you gin made with the same imported herbs, roots and berries used in the making of Hiram Walker's pre-war gin.

2 And remember, between Repeal and Pearl Harbor Americans bought more Walker-made gin than any other kind.

Today, you can once again enjoy the pleasure of real, pre-war quality gin.

For Hiram Walker's Gin is made not only to pre-war formula . . . but from pre-war imported botanicals which are unobtainable today.

The reason we now have these rare botanicals, like cassia from China and coriander from Czechoslovakia, is this: Prior to the war it was our policy to purchase these botanicals in the best crop years and far in excess of our annual requirements. This enabled us always to have on hand a treasured reserve.

When we suspended gin distilling in favor of war production in February 1942, this priceless reserve was carefully preserved and sealed away.

Today, it's these pre-war, imported botanicals that give Hiram Walker's Gin its real, pre-war quality. The quality which, between Repeal and Pearl Harbor, led Americans to buy more Walker-made gin than any other kind.

CHICAGO BANKS PROMOTE MANY TO BIGGER JOBS

53 City and Suburb Meetings Held.

Fifty-three Chicago and suburban banks yesterday held annual meetings of stockholders or directors' meetings, or both, at which promotions of personnel were made and several new names were added to the lists of directors. Many of the meetings were routine.

Irvin L. Porter.

Stockholders of the First National Bank of Chicago elected Irvin L. Porter, a vice president since 1925, to a directorship at the annual meeting. He replaced Charles A. McCulloch, who did not seek re-election. All other directors were reelected.

New Offices Created.

Edward Eagle Brown, president of the bank since 1934, was elected chairman after the directors amended the by-laws to create the position of chairman and vice chairman of the board. Brown will continue as the executive head of the bank. James B. Forgan was elected vice chairman and Bentley G. McCloud president. Both had been vice presidents.

Homer J. Livingston, counsel, was elected vice president and transferred from the law department to the banking department. Raymond H. Becker, Clarence W. Weldon, William W. O'Brien, and Robert G. Collins were promoted to vice presidents from assistant vice presidencies.

Elmer E. Schmus, a vice president, was elected vice president and cashier, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Emil A. Stake last month. Schmus, with the bank since 1909, has been a vice president since 1937.

Others Win Promotions.

Leslie H. Dreyer and Norman G. Stockdale were promoted from assistant cashiers to assistant vice presidents, and John H. Weedon from assistant secretary to assistant vice president in the trust department.

New officers elected were Charles E. Brandriff, assistant trust officer; Edward W. Burkill, assistant attorney; Walter F. Clow, assistant manager, real estate department; Kenneth G. Morton, assistant secretary; Otto W. Foell, Arthur F. Fritz, Herbert G. Hedin, and Paul E. Nordstrum, assistant cashiers.

Elmer T. Stevens, president of Charles A. Stevens & Co., was elected a director of the City National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago at the annual stockholders' meeting. Philip R. Clarke, president, presided over the meeting which was attended by Charles G. Dawes, chairman.

Elmer T. Stevens.

Clarke said that the bank paid no excess profits taxes in 1944, and that the average maturity of $160,617,000 of United States government securities held as of Dec. 31, 1944, was about 26 months, among the lowest in the country. The board of directors re-elected all the bank's officers.

Northern Trust Elects Seven.

Directors of Northern Trust company elected seven new officers, promoted five, and reëlected all other officers. Arthur J. O'Hara, associated with Northern Trust since 1933, was made a vice president and manager of investment research.

Herbert E. Altman, Arthur C. Zimmerman, G. Ronald Nish, and Leslie Franks were elected assistant cashiers. James L. Porter of the trust department was made an assistant secretary, Frank E. Corliss an assistant manager of the bond department, and Winston C. Moore was elected attorney. William C. Weidert was promoted from assistant secretary to attorney. Samuel G. Creden and Gordon S. Thomson were elected second vice presidents.

The retirement of William S. Miller, vice president and general counsel, was announced. He has been with the bank 45 years. Carl H. Zeiss, vice president and general attorney, was promoted to vice president and general counsel to fill the vacancy.

New York Man Elected.

The board of directors of the American National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago elected A. M. Strong vice president in charge of its expanded foreign department. Strong, who has been in the foreign banking field since 1916, for

Eastern Banks Report Profit Gains in 1944

A profitable year surpassing 1943 in earnings and extent of operations was reported by a number of New York City banks yesterday at their annual stockholders' meetings. Several reported that 1944 was the best year in their history.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank, declared that some post-war planning has been "conducted in an atmosphere of unreality," specifically referring to the Bretton Woods monetary conference and the Dumbarton Oaks peace organization plan.

Says Optimism Hinders Victory.

He said domestic post-war planning had caused undue optimism leading to premature forecasts of the end of the war. The United States must prepare for peace, but preparation carried beyond the useful stage of planning is certain to impair the way the country wages war, he asserted.

Of Chase National's operations in 1944, Aldrich said total loans were 31 per cent larger at the end of the year than a year earlier. Total net earnings at $3.01 a share compared with $3.33 for 1943. As previously reported, the decline was attributable to a drop in profits from securities.

Gordon S. Rentschler, chairman of the National City bank, reported to stockholders that government security holdings were three times those of 1939, and deposits were doubled. The bank's statement showed $2,409,240,200 in government obligations and $4,205,072,012 in deposits. Loans and discounts on Dec. 31 were 901 million dollars against 633 million a year earlier. Earnings were $23,914,374, equal to $3.86 a share, compared with $17,559,390, or $2.83 a share in 1943.

"Out of Real Estate Business."

Shareholders of the Chemical Bank and Trust company were informed by Percy H. Johnston, chairman, that 1944 was the best year in the bank's history both from the standpoint of operations and earnings. He said the bank "was practically out of the real estate business."

The First National Bank of New York expects to continue its present annual dividend rate of $80 a share for the time being, said Leon Fraser, president. Three years ago it was lowered from $100. Fraser said with lower interest rates on securities holdings and in the middle of war, he would not recommend any change at present. Net income for 1944 amounted to $12,426,834, against $10,615,903 in 1943, tho taxes increased $1,600,000.

PACKARD GROSS LARGER, BUT NET INCOME MAY DIP

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 9 (AP).—George T. Christopher, president of the Packard Motor Car company, said today that Packard's gross business for 1944 probably exceeded 450 million dollars, compared with about 341 million in 1943.

He said net earnings may be less than in 1943 because of lowered prices to the government for PT boat marine and Rolls-Royce aircraft engines. Deliveries were 57 per cent higher than in the preceding year, but sales and billings were up only 32 per cent, he said.

Business on the company's books at the year-end approximated 700 million, Christopher said.

He said his present guess was that the initial post-war passenger automobiles would cost 17 to 20 per cent more than their 1942 counterparts.

National Tea Management Promises Reply to Critics

Letters questioning the business judgment of the National Tea company management soon will be "answered comletely" in a message to shareholders, John McKinlay, chairman of the board, said yesterday. The critical letters were sent to stockholders Jan. 6 by John Cuneo and three other shareholders. Cuneo, president of Cuneo Press, owns 101,325 shares of National common and 1,907 shares of preferred.

BOOST POWER, SPEED OF BIG EXPERIMENTAL ARMY BOMBER, XB-19A

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 9 (AP).—Fisher body division of General Motors corporation announced today that it has completed installation of new, more powerful engines, turbo-superchargers, and reversible pitch propellers on the XB-19A, world's largest experimental bomber.

The undertaking increased the 80 ton bomber's power approximately 30 per cent, made possible high altitude operation, and stepped up speed, range, and load carrying capacity materially.

The bomber can carry 18 tons of bombs or 124 fully armed men. Its liquid cooled engines produced by the Allison division of G. M. are rated at 2,600 horse power and described as the most powerful in existence. Its wing spread is 212 feet, its length, 150 feet.

After the new installations and other engineering changes the big bomber was returned to Wright field for additional flight tests. It has been used by the army as a flying laboratory for improvements to equipment of bombers now in active combat.

ADVISE SIMPLER STRUCTURE IN TRANSIT PLANS

Simplification of the financial structure of a unified traction company, proposals for which are being examined in federal District court, is urged in a set of suggestions prepared for the court by a committee representig one of the surface lines junior investor groups, the Chicago Railways 5 per cent series A bonds. John E. Blunt is chairman and Carl R. Latham is attorney for the committee.

The suggestions include a request that no bonus be granted the first mortgage bondholders, either in cash or more 4 per cent bonds, for giving up their present 5 per cent securities and a plea that the series A holders be granted $1,600,000 of income bonds as well as 282,582 shares of common stock for their 15 million dollar holding.

Under the recommended plan the stock would have a stated value of $25 a share. In all, 996,000 shares would be handed over to the junior security holders of the elevated and surface lines, and total bonded indebtedness would be held below 80 million dollars. The plan as it stands in court would give only stock to the junior investors.

COURT STUDIES PLEA TO END FTC CEMENT ORDER

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday took under advisement following oral arguments a motion by the Marquette Cement Manufacturing company to set aside a federal trade commission order restraining the company and 74 other defendants from continuing use of the delivered price formula.

The company charged the commission with pre-judgment of the issues, bias, and prejudice against the industry in formulating the order. Edward A. Zimmerman, attorney for Marquette, told the court "that if public business is conducted by a fast growing, power hungry horde of burocrats, it is just as well that a body as the FTC should be paralyzed."

The FTC had contended yesterday that if its order against the company were set aside the authority of all government agencies would be imperiled and rendered useless.

ADVISE PLACING RATE BUREAUS UNDER ICC RULE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—The interstate commerce commission today recommended in its annual report that railroad and motor carrier rate bureaus be brought under ICC regulation. The commission, which now passes upon rates only after they are established, said events during the last year made it doubtful if enforcement of anti-trust laws alone was sufficient to prevent "reprehensible" rate-fixing practices.

Demand Vote by Prudential Staff on Union

Large withdrawals by employes of the Prudential Insurance company from the Communist dominated United Office and Professional Workers of America union [CIO] since the November election has resulted in a demand for a national labor relations board election to determine whether the union now represents a majority of the employes.

The request for the election was filed by the Industrial and Ordinary Insurance Agents union, a federal union of the American Federation of Labor, of which Albert A. O'Neil is the midwest director. The demand for the election, among employes of the company in Illinois and 10 other states, was filed with the board Nov. 30, 60 days before the expiration of the present contract between the CIO union and the company on Feb. 1.

Many Agents Resigned.

Wholesale withdrawals from the CIO union came as a result of attempts on the part of union officials to collect $1 from each member last fall for the CIO Political Action committee, O'Neil charged. Many agents refused to contribute and resigned from the union.

Others resigned after the election when they were informed that they would have no right to vote on union matters, altho they still must pay dues as union members, until the $1 contribution to the PAC was paid. Members who notified the company they no longer desired to be represented by the union and requested the company to cease deducting $2 a month from their pay as dues, were told the deductions would continue to Feb. 1.

Called Communist Member.

The United Office and Professional Workers of America is headed by foreign born Lewis Merrill, who was born Louis Cohen. In testimony before the Dies committee Aug. 18, 1938, John P. Frey, president of the AFL metal trades department, described Merrill as a member of the Communist party in New York City.

The union has consistently followed the Communist party line. Its most recent convention was addressed by Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime union, whose Communist connections have been mentioned scores of times in congressional investigations.

WHEAT AND RYE SLUMP ON LATE PROFIT SELLING

Grain markets weakened during late trading yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after an advance had carried corn futures and deferred deliveries of wheat to new seasonal peaks. Heavy profit taking sales orders suddenly appeared in rye, which closed down ⅝ to 1⅝ cents a bushel.

Wheat futures dropped 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents. Corn was off ¾ to ⅞ cent, oats, ⅝ to ⅞ cent, and barley ⅞ to 1⅝ cents.

A recommendation by the President that congress appropriate 2 billion dollars for the Commodity Credit corporation to permit support for agricultural markets and announcement that the war food administration soon would start to buy corn for stockpile purposes had no price making influence. As a result of the WFA plan to purchase 50 million bushels by March 15 farmers offered corn to terminal markets less freely.

U. S. RESTRICTS COAL SHIPMENTS INTO LAKES AREA

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—The solid fuels administration tonight requested producers in two southern Appalachian mining districts to ship no more coal into the area west of Pittsburgh and north of central Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois until Jan. 15. The request was made because of car shortages resulting from congestions caused by the weather.

It applies to producers in districts 7 and 8, covering southern West Virginia, western Virginia, eastern Kentucky, and northeastern Tennessee. It permits shipments of by-product coal for steel or gas use to any point and permits coal to be shipped to, but not north of Pittsburgh; Youngstown and Akron, O.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo. Shipments also are permitted to Columbus, O.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—All classes of qualified security holders have approved by the necessary 66⅔ majority the reorganization plan of the Milwaukee railroad, the interstate commerce commission announced today.

ASSEMBLY LINE MAKES BID FOR HOME BUILDING

Product 'Desirable and Attractive.'

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A dwelling built with panels produced on a factory assembly line can make a home as attractive and acceptable as a structure built according to the specifications, prejudices, and sentiments of an individual architect. That is the premise on which the mass producers of houses base their plans for the post-war period.

Proponents of the factory built house like Foster Gunnison blame the "artistic pretensions of architects," for the high cost of housing in the past. In Gunnison's factory at New Albany, Ind., there is not an architect on the staff.

Gunnison believes that a designing engineer who spends a year—or perhaps two—developing a model adaptable for mass production can provide the public better housing than an architect who puts in a limited amount of time designing an individual structure.

Convinced of Opportunity.

Gunnison and others in the field are convinced that the time is at hand when the efficiency and greater product value made possible thru industrialization can be translated into housing.

Housing has lagged behind other industries. Automobiles and electrical devices long have been turned out on a scale and at prices that gave them a mass market. The traditional belief that such methods could not be adapted to home construction is gradually weakening.

No emotional prejudice exists today against the automobile because it is turned out on a mass production basis. Millions of people drive Fords and Chevrolets and Plymouths, and it doesn't bother the individual owner that his neighbor drives the same type of vehicle as he does.

The traditionalists argue, however, that the home is "different and individual." Actually, the factory produced dwelling leaves plenty of opportunity for the housewife to show her individuality and taste, and landscaping can avoid the appearance of uniformity, producers assert.

Manufacturers in the housing field distinguish between mass production and prefabrication. The latter term has been used loosely to cover construction where certain materials have been made in advance of actual erection. By mass production Gunnison means the same type of assembly line product flow that is used in the automobile industry. This method, introduced by Henry Ford, was not accepted immediately by other manufacturers, but today is essential to any manufacturer who expects to stay in competition.

Not only are manufacturers planning standardization of types of dwellings, but also standardization of selling and distribution methods. A standard order form and standard sales presentation will be used.

F. D. R. WILL ASK CUT IN RESERVE NOTE GOLD RATIO

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt told congress today he will propose legislation reducing the gold reserve requirements of the 12 federal reserve banks.

This arises primarily because gold reserves have become relatively smaller when compared with rapidly growing amount of money in circulation.

Pennsylvania Road Markets 52 Million of 3⅛ Pct. Bonds

A large syndicate headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. yesterday was awarded $51,782,000 of Pennsylvania Railroad company 3⅛ per cent bonds, due in 1985, the second large railroad issue sold at competitive bidding this year.

The winning bid was 100.609, compared with 99.5799 offered by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago, and 99.675 by the Equitable Life Assurance society. The bonds were reoffered at 101.68, subject to formal regulatory agency approval.

The securities are part of 60 million dollars of series "F" general obligations and proceeds will be used to finance retirement of outstanding 4¼s due in 1970.

Land Bank Offering Is Big.

Charles R. Dunn, fiscal agent for the 12 federal land banks, offered 114 million dollars of 2¼ per cent consolidated federal farm loan bonds at 100⅜ and interest to yield about 2.20 per cent. The bonds are due Feb. 1, 1955, and not redeemable before Feb. 1, 1953. Proceeds and other funds will be used to buy and retire on Feb. 1 at par and accrued interest about $116,841,000 of consolidated 3½, 3¼, and 3 per cent land bank bonds held by the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation.

An offering of 100,000 shares of Monogram Pictures corporation 5½ per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock will be made today at $10 a share by a banking group headed by Emanuel & Co. Net proceeds of $851,340 will provide additional working capital.

The State of West Virginia awarded a 1 million dollar road bond issue to Bankers Trust company and associates on a bid of 100.06 for a combination of coupons.

Market City National Stock.

An underwriting group managed by Bacon, Whipple & Co. marketed 9,000 shares of City National Bank and Trust company capital stock at $195 a share. The stock was sold by an investment company.

A special offering of 6,500 shares of Pressed Steel Car company was sold on the Chicago Stock exchange by Weinress & Co.

Blyth & Co. offered 5,000 shares of Rayonier, Inc., common stock as a secondary distribution at $17 a share.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. announced the books have been closed on an offering of 60,000 shares of Servel $4.50 preferred stock.

Cattle Selling Wave Stops; Prices Steady

Report Ceiling Near

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—An order imposing ceilings on prices of live cattle is expected to be issued by government food agencies within the next 24 hours, Authoritative sources said the order would place the ceiling between $17.50 and $18 a hundred pounds and would increase the government subsidy to slaughterers from $1.10 to $1.60 a hundred pounds on cattle grading good and choice.

The wave of cattle selling that swept the country Monday subsided yesterday as abruptly as if had developed. From Monday volume at 20 markets 37 per cent above corresponding 1944 day, shipments fell 18 per cent below the corresponding 1944 Tuesday and equaled the lowest Tuesday total in two months.

Receipts of 8,000 head at the Chicago stock yards were augmented by a large carryover of animals that arrived late Monday and prices failed to recover any of Monday's sharp losses. Despite the decrease, receipts for the two days were 16 per cent larger than for the corresponding 1944 days.

Buyers again dominated the market for many classes of cattle, but most seemed content to buy stock worth less than $16 at prices in line with late Monday. Best loads sold 25 to 50 cents lower, but the trade carried a nominal top quotation of $17, which was 50 cents under the ceiling recently proposed by the office of price administration. Most heifers, beef cows, canners, cutters, and bulls were steady. Calves showed some strength.

Hog prices held at the ceilings when demand far exceeded supplies. The average was unchanged at $14.70.

[At Washington, D. C., War Food Administrator Marvin Jones appealed to farmers to increase production of pigs for marketing as fat hogs next falls and winter and said the present government support price on hogs will be continued until March 1, 1946. The WFA previously had guaranteed to support prices until June 1, 1945.]

Only minor price changes occurred on the sheep and lamb market.

FARE CUT OF 6½ PCT. PLANNED ON MARCH 1 BY AMERICAN AIRLINES

American Airlines plans a 6½ per cent reduction in fares thruout its system about March 1, A. N. Kemp, president, announced yesterday. New operating methods, improved maintenance procedures, and a higher rate of utilization of planes will make the reductions possible, despite increased costs of materials and supplies and the highest wage rates in company history, he said.

"American is carrying increasing quantities of war traffic and with a limited number of aircraft available to us during this period the company is experiencing very high load factors with a resultant lower cost per passenger mile," Kemp said.

Illinois Jobless Pay Held Exempt from Income Tax

Robert L. Gordon, acting state director of labor, said yesterday payments to unemployed workers under the Illinois unemployment compensation law are exempt from federal income taxes.

PROFIT CASHING STALLS STOCK MARKET DRIVE

Turnover Largest Since July 5.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Selected rails and industrials pushed higher to new seven year peaks in today's stock market on the largest volume in six months, but insistent profit taking depressed many leaders.

Large buying and selling orders came out after a quiet opening and twice in the first hour the ticker tape fell two minutes behind floor transactions. The pace then slowed and trends were well mixed at the close. Turnover of 2,261,940 shares, largest since July 5, compared with 1,994,622 yesterday. In the first hour 708,000 shares were traded.

Possible Reaction Causes Caution.

Caution became the watchword despite persistent inflation thinking based on long-war spending and numerous customers, believing that a large reaction was possible if severely bearish news should develop, stood aside. Pressure of idle investment funds provided strong support. The President's budget message seemed to affect the market little.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was up 0.1 at 59.6, a new peak since Sept. 16, 1937. Of 998 issues traded, 394 advanced, 373 declined, and 231 were unchanged.

RAIL BONDS AT NEW HIGH.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—The bond market advance slowed today after the sustained climb of more than a week, but the list had many firm spots, especially among rails. Forty-five issues gained a point or more, the smallest number in several days.

Profit taking made large inroads late and numerous loans closed substantially under the peaks. Sales continued high at $20,972,500, compared with $21,913,000 yesterday. The Associated Press 20 rail average reached a new high at 98.5, but other major domestic groups declined slightly.

CHICAGO SHARES GAIN.

Prices advanced again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange and turnover increased to 61,500 shares, a high since July 5. Among more active issues were Peabody Coal, Armour, and New York Central. Among 20 stocks reaching new 1944-'45 highs were Hall Printing, up 2, and Allis-Chalmers, up 1¼.

Rock Island Coast Train Leaves Half Hour Earlier

Effective Sunday the Rock Island Lines' Pacific coast train, the Golden State limited, will leave La Salle Street station at 8 p. m., one-half hour earlier than at present, A. D. Martin, passenger traffic manager, announced yesterday. The eastbound Golden State's 11:30 a. m. arrival time in Chicago will not be changed.

Whatever You Leave Should Be Protected

It makes no difference whether the property you leave is worth $5,000 or $5,000,000, it should be protected for the sake of your family.

You can obtain that protection by naming the American National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago as your executor. Estate management by American National assures the continuing responsibility of an organization whose members have well-seasoned judgment, broad business experience and knowledge of investments, taxes and accounting.

The advantages of an American National executorship are great, for this institution can economically and efficiently handle the largest estate, yet it offers an understanding of the needs of the smaller estate, and a willingness to devote its best efforts to meeting those requirements.

Executors fees are low and are subject to approval of the probate court. Why not make an appointment for you and your lawyer to discuss this matter in full with one of our Trust Officers?

[A copy of our new booklet, "Modern Safeguards For Your Estate," will be mailed on request. Write our Trust Department or phone Franklin 9200.]

People and Events

The National Security Traders' association yesterday announced establishment of a national educational committee to prepare and put into operation lectures and study courses for returning veterans and others who wish to enter the trading division of the securities industry. Peter V. Feil of Langill & Co., Chicago, is vice chairman of the committee. Paul I. Moreland of Detroit is chairman.

Douglas F. G. Eliot, general purchasing agent of the Western Electric company, was elected president of the Manufacturers' Junction Railway company to succeed W. H. DeWitt, who will retire Jan. 31 after 39 years with Western Electric. The company announced that beginning Feb. 1 Wilbur McGirr, traffic manager at the company's Hawthorne works, will be in charge of traffic operations of Western Electric.

Robert B. Griffin, vice president and director of United Wallpaper, Inc., was elected senior vice president and Robert L. Boyd was elected vice president in charge of operations. Griffin has been a member of the board of directors since 1927. Boyd was general manager of operations.

Rockwell-Barnes company, Chicago paper specialists, announced the appointment of Frederick H. Jones Jr. as director of advertising. Jones formerly was associated with Horder's, Inc., and Associated Stationers Supply as advertising and sales promotion manager.

Lawrence W. Nolte has joined Needham, Louis & Brorby, Inc., advertising agency, as an account executive, after serving in the army for three and a half years as a lieutenant colonel. Before that he was in charge of advertising for the American Dry Milk institute.

Olin D. Stansbury, who is resigning Feb. 1 as advertising manager of Marshall Field & Co., will join Stix, Baer & Fuller of St. Louis, Mo., as publicity director and sales promotion manager.

Morton D. Cahn yesterday was elected a director of B. Kuppenheimer & Co. to succeed the late Sol Kline. Other directors and officers of the company were reelected.

The Illinois Society of Certified Accountants will meet tonight in the Palmer House.
